HOUSE IS NEAR SHOWDOWN ON HUGE TAX BILL

Leaders Strive to Evolve Substitute for Sales Levy Measure.

TREASURY PROJECTS ARE STUDIED ANEW

Fights Faced if Certain of These Recommendations Are Adopted.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

Whether the heretofore thoroughly beaten Democratic and Republican leaders sponsoring the bipartisan billion-dollar tax bill are to get a budget-balancing measure through the House or will have to leave the job up to the Senate and conferees representing both houses is expected to be decided in the next few days.

Leaders worked yesterday trying to smooth out difficulties and find a substitute tax program for the $600,000,000 manufacturers' sales tax section which was smashed by the revolting House last week.

Representative Heartsill Ragon (Democrat), of Arkansas, chairman of a special ways and means subcommittee appointed by Representative Charles R. Crisp ((Democrat), of Georgia, acting chairman of the committee to draft a substitute program, said he expects to have his report ready to submit to the full committee tomorrow morning.

Alternative Plans Studied.

What the substitute plan would comprise he refused to predict, but it is expected to be based on tax recommendations made by the Treasury Department but rejected by the committee as more objectionable than the general manufacturers' sales tax.

Among the suggestions the subcommittee is studying are an increase of 1 cent in the first-class postage rates, estimated to raise $135,000,000; a tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline, estimated to raise $150,000,000; 2-cent stamp tax on bank checks, $97,000,000; special automobile sales taxes, to raise $100,000,000; increase of one-sixth in tobacco taxes, to raise $58,000,000; 5 per cent sales tax on radios and phonographs, to raise $10,000,000; stamp tax on real estate transfers to raise $10,000,000 to $15,000,000; tax of 7 per cent on domestic consumption of gas and electricity, to raise $57,000,000, and taxes on mechanical refrigerators.

Stock Transactions Levy.

Representative Fiorella H. LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, who was largely responsible for the success of the fight to strike the sales tax out of the bill, has announced that he will seek to have the House approve his plan to tax stock exchange transactions. He proposes a tax of one-quarter of 1 per cent on exchange transactions, with a one-half per cent tax on short sales, with a minimum of 4 cents per share. He estimated this tax would yield between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000.

Special sales taxes on cosmetics, jewelry and other luxuries also are being urged by the New Yorker, who is active in the effort to increase gift taxes proposed by the ways and means committee from a maximum of 30 to a 45 per cent top. The House already has increased inheritance taxes above the figures recommended by the committee.

Whether the heat of the rebellion becomes less sizzling or not it is certain that there will be fights launched against several of the Treasury tax recommendations which the Ragon subcommittee is studying. There is opposition to the proposed gasoline sales tax on the part of members who believe that the Federal Government should leave this source of revenue to the hard-pressed States.

Power and Auto Taxes.

There also will be a fight against any effort to tax domestic consump-

Hit-Run Car Kills Winchester Man

Leesburg Suspect Arrested After Blood Is Found Smeared on Auto.

Winchester, Va., March 27 (A.P.).—Arthur Smith, 50-year-old threshing machine operator, was struck and killed by a hit-and-run motorist last night.

West Virginia police, who were informed of the fatality, arrested David C. Utta, of Leesburg, Va., at Romney. They said one of the machine's head lights was missing and the car was smeared with blood.

Utta, who was returned to the Winchester jail, denied any knowledge of the tragedy. His wife and two children, who were with him when the arrest was made, are also being questioned by Winchester police.

Smith leaves a wife and son.

Chaos in House Costs 2 Billion Market Dive

Average Price of 180 Leading Stocks and Bonds Drops Heavily to Wipe Out Gains Made Since December.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

How a single week of legislative chaos and political disorganization in the House of Representatives entailed a direct loss of more than $2,000,000,000 in listed stock and bond values and set the entire country back to the early December trough of the depression after six consecutive weeks of the most encouraging recovery, was the burden of the week-end business comment and editorial discussion in every section of the United States on Saturday and Sunday, according to a special Washington Post survey. Seldom, if ever, in this generation has opinion appeared to focus so unanimously upon the shocking effect of legislative proceedings on business and finance.

Saturday's heavy liquidation in the security markets carried the average price of 180 leading stocks and bonds to the level of the triple bottom of December 17, January 5 and February 10, so that, measured in terms of security values alone—without reference to the permanent improvement in banking credit—the country was thrown back abruptly last week to the darkest pit of the depression of last December.

The values wiped off in listed securities alone by the single week's disorder in the House aggregate approximately twice the annual total of the new taxes sought to be raised to balance the Federal budget.

The average price of 20 high-grade rails on the New York Stock Exchange at Saturday's close, for example, was at the all-time record low of $29.10, which compares with an average of $34.40 a month ago, and $95.90 at the corresponding period last year.

If to this staggering bill is added the losses in wheat, cotton and live stock prices, all of which sagged sharply in sympathy with the grave set-back in securities, the cost of the breakdown of the Democratic leadership in the House is increased by

MARYLAND COUPLE FOUND SHOT DEAD

Bodies of Married Woman and Friend Discovered Near Frederick.

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., March 27.—The bodies of Mrs. Dewey Batt, 26, of Hagerstown, and William A. Doughty, 26, of Williamsport, Md., both of whom had been shot, were found this afternoon by M. H. Long, a member of the Catoctin Country Club, near Frederick, lying just off the highway which skirts the rear of the Catoctin golf course.

Mrs. Batt had been shot twice through the breast, one bullet piercing the heart, and Doughty through the head. The condition of the bodies indicated they had been dead between 8 and 10 hours.

While a note was found beside the bodies, according to a statement made tonight by Magistrate Alton Y. Bennett, indicating that Doughty shot the woman and then himself, the magistrate intimated that the note as well as the revolver found under Doughty's arm may have been planted and that it might have been a double murder. No car was found at the scene.

Long, who was playing golf, came upon the bodies lying within six feet of each other on the ground, just off the highway which leads from the national highway to the Frederick-Harpers Ferry State road.

Dewey Batt, husband of the woman, who resides in this city, learned

6 Injured as Auto Is Forced Off Road

Boy, 4, May Die as Result of Crash on Highway Near Herndon.

A 4-year-old boy was critically injured and five other persons were hurt yesterday afternoon when their automobile was forced from the Winchester-Washington highway near Herndon, Va. All were from Vienna, Va.

The car was wrecked after another machine, driven by an unidentified man, cut sharply in front of it in an effort to avoid striking a car traveling in the opposite direction and traveling on the wrong side of the highway. Neither of the other machines stopped.

The injured persons were taken to the Leesburg Hospital. The most seriously injured was George Moser, 4 years old. He suffered a fractured skull and broken right arm. Little hope is held for his recovery.

Others injured were Miss Bertha Moser, 22 years old, fractured left arm and cuts and bruises to the body; Dana Moser, 9 years old, cuts to the face; Miss Rose Carr, driver of the machine, bruises; Mrs. C. C. Carr, bruises, and a Mrs. Moser, believed to be the mother of the children, bruises.

27 Radicals Imprisoned For Ruling Welsh Town

Mardy, Wales, March 27 (A.P.).—Arrest and sentence to prison of 27 men and women of this little mining village has revealed that Communists managed affairs here during the last few years.

The leader of the group, Arthur Horner, was sentenced to fifteen months in prison after testimony that he had assumed the role of dictator of the group's activities. So influential had the Communists become that the village was known to neighboring towns as "Little Moscow."

ARLINGTON OFFICIAL MAY GIVE UP TODAY

Court Clerk Duncan, Alleged Short in Accounts, Being Sought by Police.

Arlington County police up to late last night had been unable to locate William H. Duncan, clerk of the Arlington County court, for whom a warrant was issued Saturday following report by State Auditor T. Coleman Andrews declaring Duncan was approximately $15,000 short in his accounts.

Sheriff Howard B. Fields, who holds the warrant, and Arlington County policemen, were searching for Duncan last night. It was understood, however, that he was in Washington and would surrender today.

The warrant was issued by Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas after a long conference at the courthouse Saturday with State Auditor Andrews. Charges that Duncan took more than $500 belonging to the State of Virginia are contained in the warrant.

Andrews announced the alleged shortage in Duncan's accounts after a three-day survey of his books by McCarthy Downs, of Andrews' staff. He said it would take a month to check the books completely.

County Treasurer Wade Ball and F. J. Hallock, clerk of the school board, are at liberty on $5,000 bond each, after having been served with warrants charging defalcations in their accounts.

Charles Y. Latimer, of Takoma Park, who was appointed to succeed Berry E. Clark as clerk to the Montgomery County Commissioners, will go to Baltimore today with C. A. Korbley, of Mohican Hills, the assistant clerk, to arrange for bond. After they have been bonded they will be sworn into office. Clark was removed from office following an alleged shortage in his accounts.

Snake Really Has Hips, Field Museum Reveals

Chicago, March 27 (A.P.).—The slang term, "the snake's hips," is grammatically correct, the Field Museum of Natural History said today in announcing the opening of an exhibit of reptile skeletons, including one of a huge rock python.

The python, the announcement said, does possess hips because the serpent retains a vestige of hind legs. Several other species of snakes besides the rock python also still have hips.

Troops Guard Four In Killing of Police

Florida Mob Seeks 3 Men and Woman Accused in Slaying of 2.

Lakeland, Fla., March 27 (A.P.).—National Guard troops with machine guns were ordered here tonight to guard four prisoners held in the city jail in connection with the killing of two police officers late today.

The troops were requested of Gov. Carlton, at Tallahassee, by Sheriff James A. Johnson, of Bartow, when more than 1,500 persons milled about the jail.

The slain officers were T. A. Nicholson and W. T. Barnett. They were killed when they went to answer a call that there were disorders at the home of Sam Acree, in North Lakeland. The four prisoners are Sam Acree and his wife, Joseph E. Johnston and Perry Acree.

Johnston told officers tonight he shot Nicholson as the officer scuffled with Perry Acree and Perry's mother, who was trying to prevent the arrest of her son. Then he dropped the pistol, he said, and did not know who killed Barnett.

SOVIET FORCES DIG TRENCHES, JAPANESE HEAR

Activity Is Reported on Siberian Border Near Pogranichnaya.

CHINESE AND KOREANS DECLARED RECRUITED

Tokyo Will Refuse to Reply to Drummond and May Leave League.

Tokyo (Monday), March 28 (A.P.).—The foreign office received information today from an undisclosed source that Soviet military authorities were digging trenches on the Siberian border in the neighborhood of Pogranichnaya. It was said that the Russian military were recruiting Chinese and Korean laborers at Vladivostok for the work on the Soviet Russian border opposite Kirin Province, Manchuria.

It was learned on good authority today that Japan has decided to refuse to give the League of Nations a statement of her case in the Sino-Japanese dispute—a decision which eventually may lead to Japanese withdrawal from the league.

Will Refuse Answer.

It means that Japan will decline to give Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the league, statements called for under paragraph 2 of Article XV of the league covenant.

Well informed quarters believed this was the first step in a series of Japanese refusals to participate in the League's effort to apply Article XV to the Manchurian incident.

This decision also confirmed an Associated Press dispatch of February 6 in which it was stated that Japan would resist application of Article XV, even to the extent of withdrawal from the League, and that Japan would decline to submit a statement of her case.

It also became known on good authority that it was highly unlikely the Japanese delegation would attend the next session of the League of Nations Assembly.

Sentiment Is Gaining.

Although official confirmation of the government's decision was not immediately available, it was known that sentiment for quitting the League was gaining rapidly, especially in foreign office circles.

Article XV, paragraph 1, provides that if a dispute between members is not submitted to arbitration or judicial settlement under Article XIII, that any member in the dispute may submit it to the council for investigation.

Paragraph 2 says: "For this purpose the parties to the dispute will communicate to the secretary-general as promptly as possible, statements of their case with all the relevant facts and papers, and the council may forthwith direct the publication thereof."

Shanghai (Monday), March 28 (A.P.).—As Sino-Japanese armistice negotiators foregathered today, it became more and more apparent that either China or Japan or both would have to make concessions if Shanghai is to have peace soon.

The fly in the ointment still was the withdrawal of Japanese troops from the Shanghai zone and the method of carrying out this retreat. It was understood that a military subcommittee of the peace conference would present suggestions today for Japanese withdrawal. The conditions were not divulged.

Japanese members of the military group independently stated, however, that any suggestion that the Japanese give up their positions west of Chapei and north to Woosung would fall on deaf Japanese ears. The Chinese military delegates said that unless Japan was willing to give up occupied Chinese territory the conference was doomed to failure.

THRONGS BRAVE EASTER RAIN TO ATTEND CHURCH

Yearly Egg-Rolling Today at White House Also Is Threatened.

SUNRISE RITES DRAW THOUSANDS TO SCENE

Showers Mar Usual Parade of Finery; Hoovers Take Part in Services.

Sheltered by a single umbrella in the amphitheater of Arlington Cemetery, the President and Mrs. Hoover led the Nation in observance of Easter at a sunrise service yesterday.

While the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, stood with head bared to the rain and praised the Day of Resurrection, the President and the First Lady looked across a roof of multicolored umbrellas to the vista of soldier graves, veiled by a gray mist.

Beside them on a raised marble platform sat Walter H. Newton, one of the President's secretaries; the White House military and naval aids, the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House; the Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, chaplain of the Senate, and while he was not preaching, Bishop Freeman. Nearby were Vice President Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann.

Meet to Reaffirm Faith.

Echoing through the marble pillared amphitheater adjoining the resting place of the Unknown Soldier, and beyond the graves, the voice of Bishop Freeman was clearly audible above the rain and wind swept trees. "We are in the presence of the dead," he declared, "but our theme is life. No place could be more fitting in which to recognize the great truth of the resurrection. Even while showers may seem to dampen our ardor we are met here to reaffirm our faith."

Members of the Grand Commandery of the Knights Templar, sponsors of the services, sat in front of the presidential party. Their jeweled swords twinkled in the opaque light, while pearl-like drops of rain clung to their chapeaux.

Stirring music from the United States Marine Band, protected by a marble arch, dispersed any gloom that may have pervaded the hundreds of worshipers that filled the tiers of the big amphitheater, many of whom were without protection from the rain.

When the service was over, L. Whiting Estes, deputy grand commander of the local Knights Templar, was heard to remark to the President, "It will be my turn to preside here next year, Mr. President, and I promise you better weather."

Hoovers Cancel Church Visit.

Because of the inclement weather, the President and Mrs. Hoover canceled their visit to the Friends Meeting House and spent the remainder of Easter Sunday indoors. Mrs. Hoover faces a strenuous afternoon today

Moscow to Get Relief From Shortage of Eggs

Moscow, March 27 (A.P.).—The people of Moscow, who have felt an acute shortage of eggs for more than two months, today were promised relief soon in the form of a shipment from distant points.

Shipments of 490 carloads of eggs and 1,120,000 laying hens are expected to arrive April 1. Owing to a heavy demand for exports, no eggs have been available here since mid-January except in the best hotels and on the private market, where they sold for 80 kopecks (about 40 cents) apiece, or eight times their regular price in the cooperative stores.

Penthouse Couple Robbed Of $30,000 Cash and Gems

Two Armed Men, Posing as Friends Bearing Lily, Gain Admission to Roof-Top Home and Escape After Ransacking Apartment.

Chicago, March 27 (A.P.).—Two robbers today invaded a penthouse atop a Gold Coast apartment building, terrorized members of the family and servants while they ransacked the rooms, and then escaped with $30,000 in jewelry and currency.

The penthouse was occupied by Norman E. Bensinger, head of a chain of billiard and bowling establishments. The robbers gained admission by posing as friends who were bringing an Easter lily to the Bensingers. Attired in new spring clothing, and one of them carrying the lily, they were taken to the penthouse without question by the elevator operator.

Once there their tactics changed. Displaying revolvers, the robbers herded Mr. and Mrs. Bensinger, who were at dinner, and their three servants into one room. Bensinger was then forced to accompany one of the men on a search of the penthouse while the other stood guard over Mrs. Bensinger and the servants.

On leaving the robbers threatened retaliation if the Bensingers notified police of the robbery until fifteen minutes elapsed.

New Storms in Dixie Kill 12 and Injure 50

Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee Are Hit by Cyclonic Winds; Casualty Toll Is Mounting; Property Damage Is Heavy.

Atlanta, Ga., March 27 (U.P.).—Central Alabama and Georgia were battered by cyclonic storms today for the second time in a week. Early reports showed at least 12 known dead and more than 50 injured.

Chilton County, Ala., which gave up 40 lives to the devastating tornado last Monday night was stricken anew by today's blast. At least six persons died in Chilton County today, near Lawley and Jemison.

Today's storm followed in the same general direction the path of the storm last week, in which more than 300 were killed, 2,500 injured and more than 5,000 persons made homeless. At one spot, the latest storm moved within a single mile of a huddle of broken houses leveled last week.

The storm started today in Bibb County, Ala., 60 miles west of Montgomery, and made a hop-skip and jump through Lawley, Randolph, Centerville, Mount Pleasant, Jemison, Thorsby, Lock Eighteen, Elmore County, Ala., and on into Georgia at Corinth, East Newnan and then northward to Cleveland, Tenn.

A Mobile & Ohio passenger train took the bodies of Walker Lawrence, 35, and his 2-year-old son, Austen, and of Mrs. Perry Hicks to Montgomery. Advised of the tragedy by radio, more than 1,000 persons jammed the railroad station at Montgomery to see that train come in. Four other deaths were reported at Lawley, including Miss Jane Green, 72.

Conflicting reports came from Thorsby, reported victim of both tornadoes. A postal telegraph lineman telephoned his office at Montgomery that nineteen had been killed but that figure could not be confirmed. Six were known dead at Thorsby, where the storm last week felled more than two score.

Two unidentified men were killed in Elmore County, adjoining Mont-

THREAT RIDICULOUS, DAVIDSON DECLARES

Says Call of "Extortionist" Hoax; Guard, However, Is Provided for Child.

The latest of the extortion "threats" against Capital notables—that received by Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson, threatening the safety of her daughter, Daisy—was labeled a hoax by all interested parties last night.

The father of the child told a Post reporter last night that he thought it "extremely odd" that, while only he and Mrs. Davidson knew of the telephone threat and they had told no one of it, not even the police, that a newspaperman should call to inquire about it.

Mr. Davidson said: "The whole thing is ridiculous. There is no sense to it. It is obviously the work of a crank and is just one of the dozen or more which have been received by people in Washington in the last few weeks."

While Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford and Inspector Frank S. W. Burke went through the routine precautions of providing a 24-hour guard for the Davidson child, they both concurred in the belief that the telephone threat is a hoax.

Gen. Glassford tried to communicate with Mrs. Davidson yesterday, but was unsuccessful. He did talk with Sir Willmott Lewis, whose son, Willmott, jr., was threatened with harm unless $1,500 was given to the extortionist. The Lewis case the police are inclined to regard more seriously.

Gen. Glassford announced that there had been no new developments in the Lewis case, and Inspector Burke said the police have had no success in

Eight Hurt as Tornado Levels Oil Town Houses

Henderson, Tex., March 27 (A.P.).—Eight persons were injured and a score of shacks were demolished by a tornado which today struck Selmon City, East Texas oil field town. Ambulances were hurried to the scene immediately and brought the injured the ten miles to Henderson. Hospital attendants said none were in a serious condition.

A number of oil derricks were blown down, and the Christmas tree on one well was broken off, permitting the well to run wild near a highway.

Britain to Retire Credit Here Soon

$50,000,000 Balance of Private Debt May Be Paid in Advance.

London, March 27 (A.P.).—Reliable financial circles tonight accepted as well founded the belief that Great Britain soon would retire the remaining $50,000,000 of a private credit of $200,000,000 obtained in the United States last August.

(The New York Herald Tribune today said that the British government would retire $30,000,000 of the credit when it falls due on Tuesday, in the opinion of financiers in New York.)

It was pointed out that in an endeavor to prevent too sudden a rise in the value of the pound sterling—considered bad from the point of view of trade and general financial stability—the British authorities have been purchasing dollars and francs and other currencies in large quantities. Thus the government should be in a position to retire the remaining portion of the American credit.

FLEISCHER AID FIRES HIS WAY OUT OF JAIL

Wounds Guard and Throws Handful of Pepper in Eyes of Another.

South Bend, Ind., March 27 (A.P.).—Basil Banghart, a gunman of the Detroit "purple" gang, wounded a guard, temporarily blinded another, and shot his way out of St. Joseph County jail here today.

An associate of Harry Fleischer, sought in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping, Banghart was a fugitive from the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

Banghart stole down the stairs from the second floor lockup while Jailer Stanley Klosinski was holding roll call for 30 other prisoners. As he reached the first floor, the gunman met Edward Wroblewski, another guard. He threw a handful of red pepper in his eyes. Then he ran to the jail office, smashed open a gun rack and snatched out a submachine gun.

Jailer Klosinski heard the noise and started down from the second floor, a pistol in his hand. He was greeted with a burst from the machine gun and fell with wounds in the left arm. His condition was reported critical tonight.

Banghart intimidated several other guards and trusties, fled outside, commandeered a taxicab, and forced the driver to take him to Mishawaka, six miles away. There trace of him was lost.

Banghart was scheduled to go on trial tomorrow in connection with two robberies here on February 9.

Jazz on "Vatican" Program Explained

Mix-Up During Attempted Sacred Broadcast Is Laid to Error.

Boston, March 17 (U.P.).—Radio listeners who expected to hear a short wave rebroadcast of sacred music by the Sistine Choir from Rome today were mystified when the unmistakable "oompah-oompah" of a jazz orchestra issued from their loudspeakers.

William Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston and dean of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy in America, introduced the broadcast. An announcer then said Station HVJ, Vatican City Radio Station, would next be heard. But piano and dance music followed.

It lasted ten minutes when announcement was made from National Broadcasting Company studios in New York that "owing to circumstances over which we have no control" the attempt to broadcast the Sistine Choir would have to be discontinued. Later Station WEEI of Boston explained: "The incident was caused by a mixup at the Rome station. The operators in the Italian broadcasting company station had neglected to switch from their own program to the international broadcast coming from Vatican City, where the music of the Sistine Choir was being transmitted."

Physician Says Mackay Making Good Progress

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—Clarence H. Mackay, head of the Postal Telegraph Co., who is confined to his bed with a slight brain concussion following upon a fall, was reported "in exceedingly satisfactory condition" today by Dr. Foster Kennedy, brain specialist.

Mr. Mackay suffered some hemorrhage into the spinal membrane as well as concussion, when he slipped and fell a few days ago in his bathroom. Dr. Kennedy said he probably would be confined to his bed about three weeks.

NORFOLK MAN USES PLANE TO SEE KIDNAPERS

John Hughes Curtis Is Encouraged After Secret Trip.

PLANS TO PAY VISIT TO LINDBERGH TODAY

Considers Negotiations for Return of Flier's Son in Semifinal Stage.

Norfolk, Va., March 27 (A.P.).—John Hughes Curtis, shipbuilder, returned to Norfolk this afternoon from an airplane trip in an effort to make contact with the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby. He said he will see Col. Lindbergh personally tomorrow.

The meeting, Mr. Curtis indicated, would take place at or near Hopewell.

"We are going up there," Mr. Curtis said when asked if his statement meant that the intervenors would go to see Col. Lindbergh or if the colonel would come to Norfolk.

Asked if he considered the negotiations in a final stage, Curtis said, "I consider them in a semifinal stage."

He said he could not say how much longer it would take to complete the negotiations although he was encouraged as a result of his trip, which he made at least partly by airplane. He said he considered his trip quite successful, but added that he was confident too much publicity at this time would frustrate his work.

Is Silent on His Trip.

"In order to do certain work," he said, "in carrying out matters started several weeks ago before the breaking of the publicity regarding our trip to Hopewell, it was necessary for me to leave town. As to where, how or to whom I talked, I am not in a position to state at this time. I left early Saturday morning and returned this afternoon.

"I saw my time was getting limited," Mr. Curtis said, "so that is the reason I slipped away hurriedly yesterday. Too much publicity has been given to our efforts."

Asked if he had gone in a special plane, Mr. Curtis replied, "I did not say I went in a plane." He then refused to say whether the trip was made by air, though it was ascertained some time after his departure that he left here as a plane passenger.

Refuses to Answer Questions.

Asked if he made a contact with the reputed representative of the kidnapers who is said to have approached him March 9, Mr. Curtis answered:

"Now, that is the kind of question I can not answer."

Shortly after returning to Norfolk Mr. Curtis informed the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, the other intervenors serving with him, of the results of his trip.

Dean Peacock indicated that Curtis made the trip to complete final negotiations, rather than to effect the actual recovery of the baby. He said he had prepared himself, however, to go at once, should anything definite develop.

Return Expected Shortly.

"We expect some time this week to have the baby, either in our hands,

LIQUOR IS BIG ISSUE OF PRIMARY IN OHIO

Test Due Soon as Republican Aspirants Face Ballot; Drys Threatened.

Columbus, Ohio, March 27 (A.P.).—Political astronomers opposed to prohibition profess to see a quarter moon tipped on end in Ohio's political skies—an Indian sign of wet weather ahead.

Whether or not these prophets are doomed to eclipse, it is probable the home State of the Antisaloon League, which maintains headquarters at Westerville, Ohio, is heading toward a significant test of the wet and dry question.

The election in 1930 of Senator Robert J. Bulkley, a wet Democrat, was a blow to the massed ranks of the drys largely offset by the election, on the same day, of a dry Democratic governor, George White.

Both Appear Certain.

With primary lists closed, both White and Bulkley appear certain of renomination. Should both be returned to office, however, the same divided interpretation can not be placed on the result.

For recently the governor startled some of his dry supporters by issuing before a W. C. T. U. conference a warning that dry adherents were making a mistake in opposing a referendum.

As the governor insisted that he still believes in prohibition, his statement may have been interpreted too broadly by the liberals.

The Republican primary, however, promises to have enough fighting on the prohibition issue to make up for the lack of it in Democratic ranks.

The issue snapped to the fore when at the last minute L. J. Taber, of Columbus, master many years of the National Grange, entered for the nomination for United States senator.

Taber long has been a dry and his petitions were headed by J. H. Larrimore, active in Antisaloon League headquarters.

His principal opponent for the honor of meeting Bulkley in the fall is Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, of Cincinnati, an emphatic opponent of prohibition.

Three other candidates are in the race, Charles A. Bracher, of Dayton; Mrs. Elizabeth C. T. Miller, of Cleveland, and Mayor Jacob S. Coxey of Massilon.

Ingalls Seeks Governorship.

In the gubernatorial race, the debate is among the youthful David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy in Charge of Aeronautics, who takes the antiprohibition side of the question; Myers Y. Cooper, of Cincinnati, former governor, a dry, and Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown. A fourth entrant is James C. B. Beatty.

Presidential politics has been subordinated to the discovery that a majority of Ohio's delegates to the Republican national convention have wet leanings.

The situation may have a bearing upon whether the State's influence will be cast on the side of a liberal prohibition plank in the national platform.

Of the 55 delegates, all but 3 are pledged to President Hoover.

A slate of delegates for Gov. White is opposed in but five districts.

Neither President Hoover nor Gov. White entered the preferential primary.

Gov. William H. Murray of Oklahoma will receive the Democratic preference, as he is the only candidate who filed.

Senator France, Mayor Coxey and Olin J. Ross, of Columbus, are seeking the Republican preference. This vote is not binding upon the delegates.

BUCKEYE STATE DRAWS WET-DRY BATTLE LINES

He was educated in Shorter College, Georgia School of Technology and the University of Kentucky and was said to be well known in Chicago club circles. He is survived by his widow, Florence M. Builders in Britain Effect Work Pact

More Than Half-Million Will Be Affected by Agreement.

London, March 27 (U.P.).—More than 500,000 persons will be affected by a final agreement reached last night by the national building council in a move to improve working conditions and decrease unemployment in the building trade.

The agreement provides for a 44-hour week, extra payment for dangerous work and the fixing of wage rates. The wage rate will be 19½ pence per hour in London and 14 pence in the country. The agreement also provides for traveling expenses in accordance with the cost of living in various towns in which work is done.

The agreement is effective for one year and officials predicted that it would considerably decrease unemployment in the trade, which at present has about 200,000 unemployed.

British unemployment figures, which have not been published recently, were more than 2,500,000 in December.

Mackrell to Lead Campaign of Davis

Pennsylvania Senator Will Announce His Platform in Few Days.

(Associated Press.)

Joseph N. Mackrell, of Pittsburgh, yesterday was appointed manager of the renomination campaign of Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania.

In announcing the appointment, the Pennsylvania Republican said he would have in the hands of Mackrell within a day or two a copy of his platform.

"Because of the tremendous pressure which will be upon me in fulfilling my duties as senator," Davis said, "I will have but very little time to give to the campaign, and I shall depend wholly upon you and those associated with you, as well as upon my many friends, to carry the burden of the campaign."

KIDNAPING ALARM EMPTIES CHURCHES

Jersey Towns Upset at Report, but Little Ones Were Only Taking Walk.

Collingswood, N. J., March 27 (A.P.).—Two children decided to take a walk after Sunday school today and precipitated a kidnaping scare that caused fire sirens to shriek in a dozen towns, 26 American Legion posts to mobilize, churches to dismiss their congregations for a house-to-house search and police and firemen to drag a creek.

The missing children were Betty Perrin, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Montrose Perrin, and Raymond Eichelberger, 5, son of Percy Eichelberger, principal of the Collingswood High School.

Eichelberger drove them to Sunday school and told them he would call for them at 10:30. When he returned they were not to be found. The Rev. Ivan H. Hagedorn said they had left.

Chief of Police Harry Hayes broadcast the alarm to all towns within a 25-mile radius. Fire Marshal Villian Kown sounded the siren and 200 volunteers came running. Scores of neighbors joined in the hunt.

At 1 p. m. an emergency call was sent to the Collingswood American Legion Post. Commander Richard T. Collins enlisted other posts in 25 nearby communities having a membership of more than 4,000, and reported that most of the legionnaires responded. Camden police guarded all roads and offered to send as many men as were needed.

Announcement that the children were missing was made in all churches in Collingswood and in many other communities. Most of them dismissed their congregations to join in the search.

Authorities estimated that fully two-third of Collingswood's 14,000 inhabitants took a hand in a house-to-house canvass.

Finally at 3 o'clock Patrolman Folyard Degan found the children trudging along the road at Audubon. They had walked to Magnolia, seven miles from church, and were on their way back.

The Collingswood fire siren sounded again to notify searchers that the children were found, but many of them still were out at nightfall.

Second Dies Following Robbery of Gamblers

St. Louis, March 27 (A.P.).—Philip Battisto, described by police as an associate of "cuckoo" gangsters, died in a hospital today, the second victim of a shooting that followed the robbery of a gambling house last night. Harry Johnson, a former convict, was found dead in Battisto's automobile in another section of the city a short time after the robbery.

Witnesses told police that Battisto and Johnson had robbed eight or ten men in a dice game and were shot from a second-story window by the Chinese owner of the place where the game was in progress as they ran from the building.

Air Program Sent From Fast Train

Music Is Broadcast From Dining Car From Here to Baltimore.

Baltimore, March 27 (A.P.).—As a train sped 26½ miles through a downpour of rain tonight, radio listeners heard a half hour of entertainment coming from a dining car fitted up as a special studio.

The train was en route from Washington to Baltimore when the WABC-GBS network was cut into the traveling studio to pick up Jack Denny and his orchestra and Belle Baker, soloist. Short wave equipment made possible the connection between the speeding train and the network, receiving stations being located at Laurel and Beltsville, Md.

The program was switched to the train after a preliminary announcement by Andre Baruch at Laurel, the main control point. On the train, Louis Dean took charge, introducing Senator Clarence C. Dill, of Washington State, as guest speaker. The senator congratulated radio engineers for the progress they have made, declaring that in the field of possible future development "we find the promise of a closer human association—a more human brotherhood the world around."

Lindbergh Clews Checked at Boston

Police Seek Nurse, Who Used Betty Gow's Name, and Flier.

Boston, March 27 (A.P.).—Police were checking two clews to the kidnaped Lindbergh baby tonight, one at the request of Newark, N. J., police and the other as the result of a "tip" in an anonymous letter.

Newark authorities requested that a former Boston nurse, said to have used the alias of Betty Gow, and her fiance, Jack Marsten, alias Warbug Jack, former aviator, be taken into custody for questioning.

Both were believed to be in Boston and police tonight said they had definite trace of them. The nurse, not a relative of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh's baby nurse, also was said by police to have used the name of Bettu Gruenler and Betty Marsten.

An anonymous letter to James McDevitts, deputy superintendent of police, said two members of the "Purple Gang" of Detroit were hiding in Boston. Police were seeking them.

or in the hands of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh," he said.

The trip made by Mr. Curtis is the first definite move, so far as is known, in the negotiations here since the visit made last Tuesday by the three men to the Lindbergh home, near Hopewell, N. J. One other contact was reported to have been made by Mr. Curtis since the conference with Col. Lindbergh, but he refused either to confirm or deny the report.

Alexandria Search Fails To Find Kidnaped Child

Acting on information that the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was a captive in a house in Alexandria, Va., police of that city last night obtained a search warrant, surrounded the building and, after rousing the occupants, conducted an extensive investigation.

Although two small children were found asleep in a room on the second floor, they in no way resembled the kidnaped baby. The house, located at 507 Duke street, was occupied by two women, Mrs. Etta Williams and Mrs. Mary Love. They said they had lived there about a month and were both natives of Alexandria. The building is listed in the Alexandria city directory as being vacant.

The information received by police stated that a child strongly resembling the Lindbergh baby, had been seen leaving and entering the house a number of times. In each instance, the report pointed out, the child was accompanied by a man and woman. Although activity had been noted inside the house for some time, it was learned, window shades and blinds had always been kept drawn.

Following more than half on hour's search of the premises, police declared they were convinced that the report was erroneous.

Fingerprints Cast Doubt On Dead Man as Slayer

Las Vegas, Nev. March 27 (A.P.).—Partial fingerprint examination today weakened the conviction of police that the body of a Hoover dam laborer in the morgue here is that of William L. Tallman, suspected slayer of Mrs. Virginia Patty, in Los Angeles three years ago.

Although scars, physical peculiarities, general measurements and handwriting tallied with descriptions of Tallman, Louis Hord, identification expert of the Las Vegas police force, said a fingerprint comparison showed little similarity.

their attempts to locate a missing Marine sergeant who is suspected of having tried to extort $1,500 from Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth.

Whether the police will follow the instructions given by the man who called Mrs. Davidson and demanded that $2,000 be left at a designated grocery store, will depend upon a conference today of police officials.

EASTER IS DESOLATE AT LINDBERGH HOME

Colonel and Wife Continue Seclusion as Search for Baby Is Fruitless.

Hopewell, N. J., March 27 (A.P.).—It was a desolate Easter in the Lindbergh home on Sourland Mountain, and one of the quietest days the household has seen since the kidnaping March 1 of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr.

Charles and Anne Lindbergh spent the day in their continued seclusion, with Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, and Col. and Mrs. Henry Breckinridge the only other members now of the immediate household.

None of them left the estate and for the first day since the baby was seized from his crib there were no callers, but messengers made nearly 50 deliveries of flowers and plants from sympathizing friends.

The police detail at the home, which has maintained headquarters in the Lindbergh garage adjoining the house, was reduced to a mere skeleton of its usual number, to permit the troopers and detectives to attend Easter services or to spend the day with their families.

The family arose late in the morning. The three women went about the house doing sundry little duties, but for the most part Mrs. Lindbergh sat quietly by herself. Her pale face peered occasionally from the windows.

The five had dinner in the early afternoon, and afterward Col. Lindbergh went outside and spent some time walking about the grounds and talking to the troopers.

Both the Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh were described as appearing more rested during the past week, for their sleep is less often interrupted now by calls, which must be answered personally, and life has fallen into a kind of routine.

The colonel appears restless frequently, pacing about the grounds as if the enforced inactivity were especially trying.

Meanwhile, the police investigation is fruitless. For the second day the bulletins of Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf have ignored questions about the three Norfolk, Va., citizens, who believe they have been in touch with representatives of the kidnapers.

Ohio Mine Quiet After Gun Battle

More Than 200 Shots Are Reported Fired; Shaft Is Being Guarded.

New Philadelphia, Ohio, March 27 (A.P.).—The wooded hills about the Wolford Coal Co. mine, near Newport, tonight were quiet after a gun battle last night in which, officers estimated, 200 to 250 shots were fired by striking miners or sympathizers.

Sheriff Harry C. Smith said that he had not learned of any one being hit by the bullets from snipers in a crowd of 700 to 1,000 miners, or by the fire from the mine company's two machine guns. The firing continued for three hours.

Eight deputies were on guard at the mine tonight as the company planned to continue production with the 58 men it has employed since it reopened last Wednesday after a shutdown because of a wage strike. No National Guard troops will be called unless further trouble breaks, the sheriff said. Several company houses were riddled by bullets last night, Smith said.

Atlantic City Lifeboat Aids Vessel in Distress

Atlantic City, N. J., March 27 (A.P.).—Caught in a northeast storm off Atlantic City tonight, the auxiliary two-masted schooner Emma and Ruth, of Philadelphia, sent up distress flares for a pilot to guide her to a safe anchorage.

A Coast Guard lifeboat crew answered the signals and brought the ship through the channel into the safety of the inlet. Easter promenaders, seeing the flares several miles off the Steel Pier, became excited when a report spread that a ship was burning at sea.

KENTUCKY EJECTS 4 MORE STUDENTS

Two Women in Third Group Seeking to Investigate Mine Conditions.

Pineville, Ky., March 27 (A.P.).—Four more Eastern students, two of them women, were escorted from Pineville today after interviewing County Attorney Walter B. Smith and having Bell County's mine problems explained to them by a group of citizens, led by Cleon K. Calvert, Pineville attorney.

The students were Mrs. Eleanor Curtis Henderson, of Columbia University; Miss Margaret Bailey, of New York University; Willard Spence, of Union Theological Seminary, of New York, and Herbert Ellis, of Harvard.

They came here from Knoxville, Tenn., to demand from Smith an explanation for the rejection from Bell County of two bus loads of students Friday and Saturday.

Eleanor Curtis, as spokesman, charged the students were turned back by an "unlawful mob." Smith denied this, and said those who turned them back were "my officers and a group of representative Bell County citizens."

After being told by Smith they could not remain in the county because, he said, he had evidence they were connected with the Communist party, the four students said they would go to Frankfort, the State capital, to protest to Gov. Ruby Laffoon.

Calvert asked a group of citizens who had gathered in Smith's office to bring the four students to his office, where they were lectured for almost one hour on coal-field conditions which the students ejected had come here to observe.

Then, with Chief of Police Pearl Osborne of Pinesville leading the way, the students were escorted in their own automobile by a line of other cars to a point about 3 miles from Pineville and left to their own devices.

Knoxville, Tenn., March 27 (A.P.).—Two groups of Eastern college students, ejected from the southeastern Kentucky coal-mining area, left here today for Nashville, Tenn., and Frankfort, Ky., to protest to the Governors of Tennessee and Kentucky the alleged treatment they received from officers in being escorted out of the State border section.

Frankfort, Ky., March 27 (A.P.).—If a group of Eastern university and college students who came to Kentucky to investigate conditions in the coal fields desire an audience with Gov. Ruby Laffoon, the chief executive said tonight he will see them tomorrow.

(Associated Press.)

Donald Henderson, Columbia University economics instructor and president of the national college committee of the National Students League, sought in Washington yesterday intercession by members in Congress for the Eastern students barred from surveying Kentucky coal mining conditions.

He conferred with Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, author of a bill before the Senate manufactures committee providing for Federal investigation of conditions in Harlan and Bell Counties, and Senator Logan (Democrat), Kentucky.

BATTLE TO PREVENT WET PLANKS BEGUN

Dry Board of Strategy Holds Both Parties Would Be Placed in Peril.

(United Press.)

A "fight to the finish" on attempts to write "wet" or resubmission planks into either Republican or Democratic platforms was announced here last night by the National Prohibition Board of Strategy, the recently formed superorganization of prohibition forces.

Through this announcement, made by Edwin C. Dinwiddie, executive secretary, the combined dry forces join issue with those leaders in both parties who are seeking pronouncements against prohibition at the Chicago conventions in June.

This ultimatum meant failure of recent efforts to get the dry organizations to support a "referendum" through resubmission of the eighteenth amendment. Dinwiddie said a "referendum" only means resubmission for repeal.

Dinwiddie addressed himself particularly to the Republicans, declaring "a knowledge of conditions and prevailing sentiment nationally among the great body of dry Republicans throughout the country forces the conviction that the party can not go wet without abandoning all hope of success at the polls."

Want Enforcement Planks.

He suggested that Republican leaders "recall numerous and well-known State contests in which dry Republicans refused to support the party candidate because of his known wetness and through this loss of support the party went down to defeat."

Turning to the Democrats, Dinwiddie said, "The board admonishes the Democratic leaders to profit by the experience of the past and not be led into repudiation of prohibition either in its platform or by its candidates."

"The national prohibition board of strategy, representing the united dry forces of the country," Dinwiddie said, "will fight to a finish the attempt to write wet planks into party platforms next June, even when camouflaged under the name of 'referendum,' which is only another term for resubmission for repeal.

"The objective of the board is to secure enforcement planks in party platforms and the nomination and election of candidates committeed to enforcement.

New Wet Move on the Hill.

"Party leaders are warned that millions of drys over the country who believe in prohibition as the right principle of government and who insist that it be given a fair chance under favorable conditions, will refuse to support their party if it allows itself to be misled by wet sophistry into adopting a wet course at the forthcoming conventions, either as to platform or nominees."

Representative J. Charles Linthicum (Democrat), of Maryland, chairman of the House "wet bloc," announced last night through the Congressional District Modification League, that he would begin circulation on April 7 of a petition to force a House vote on the 2.75 per cent beer bill, introduced some time ago.

Everyone's in a Racket! It's a Trifling Problem

By JOHN J. DALY

RACKETEERING in this country represents what Prof. James Shelly, of Canterbury College, New Zealand, describes as a "fine spirit of independence and adventure." He thinks it a good sign—a revolt against efforts of politicians "to make tame rabbits out of people." In this light, the visiting professor looks upon racketeering as "a comparatively trifling problem."

It is a trifling problem. In fact, racketeering if viewed from the proper angle is no problem at all. Certainly, some of the American people do not consider it a problem. Otherwise, it would have been solved long ago—or dissolved.

In a way, racketeering is a flareback to the American Revolution, to the good old days of the colonies, when slogans abounded in the land: "Do not shoot till you see the whites of their eyes!"

Racketeering would strengthen society rather than weaken it, the professor states, if some social organization could be built up to embody what he calls the "independent spirit, and at the same time eliminate harmful aspects."

Well, the organizations are on their way. Hardly a day passes without a new club, or something of that order, to promote a racket.

• • • •

THIS is the age of the racket and the racketeer. Today, any man without a racket is lost. Racketeers run the show. The old spirit of adventure and independence, the spirit of '32, is rife in the land.

No doubt, there are some harmful aspects to racketeering, but, as the professor surmises, some good is bound to come out of it. The more racketeers the greater Nation we will build.

It all comes from training. Politicians may try to make rabbiteers out of the people, but the racketeers hold the upper hand. As training for racketeering starts in the kindergarten, the politicians step into the game a little bit too late. By the time the demagogues get around to garnering votes they must deal directly with the racketeers—and that is just too bad, for the politicians. When racketeers meet racketeers, then comes the showdown.

The theory is this: If you don't start a racket, or get in on one, somebody else will. So get in while the getting is good. Get everything out of it you can, or some other racketeer will come along, with his bold spirit of adventure, and make you pay tribute.

• • • •

ADVENTURE? Independence? Yes, and romance! All these elements are embodied in the great American pastime; adventure, in eluding the law; romance, in the love of excitement; independence, won at the point of a pistol—financial independence for those who work only at racketeering, and have mercy on no man or woman.

Have you a little racket in your home? Have you a little racketeer ready to carry on, in the true American style, when your time comes to turn over the reins of racketeering? Younger hands will be waiting.

The torch of independence must not die down. The light of liberty must not flicker, or fade.

On with the racket. Onward, racketeers!

IRISH RAP ENGLAND IN DEMONSTRATIONS

Some Declare That Abolition of Oath Would Not Be Sufficient.

Dublin, March 27 (A.P.). — The strength of Irish Republicanism was demonstrated today by meetings and processions in commemoration of the Easter uprising of 1916, throughout the length and breadth of Ireland.

Members of the Irish Republican army and other technically illegal organizations denounced Great Britain from a hundred platforms.

They informed Eamon de Valera, new president of the Irish Free State, either directly or by implication, that even abolishing the oath of allegiance to the British king would not satisfy their demand for complete severance from England and the British Empire.

Those who took part in the demonstrations were unarmed and no disorders were reported. The regular uniformed army of the Free State was confined to barracks.

Army Marches Silently.

The men of the Irish Republican army marched silently with set faces and very much on their best behavior in a great Dublin demonstration.

At the grave of the marchers' comrades who fell in the rebellion 16 years ago, Moss Towney, member of the Irish Republican Army Council, reiterated the army's resolve to set up a republic, smash the Anglo-Irish treaty and remove British interests from Ireland.

After the speech the army marched back to the tune of the late John Philip Sousa's march, "The Double Eagle," and dispersed.

Arbor Hill Prison Cemetery, where a number of the executed men lie in a common grave, was opened to the public for the first time today. While warm Easter sunshine sparkled through the gray, grim prison yard and splashed along the grisly firing wall of the executioners, many saw the grave of their relatives and friends for the first time.

Armed Police Keep Peace.

Belfast, Northern Ireland, March 27 (A.P.).—Strong bodies of armed police kept peace throughout Northern Ireland, where many Republican demonstrations were held today in commemoration of Dublin's Easter rebellion of 1916.

"Owing to the presence of armed soldiers of England, there will be no oration here today," said Malachi Quinn, noted Ulster Republican, to 300 persons who assembled in St. Mary's Graveyard at Newry, County Down.

All roads leading to Newry were patrolled by armed police. A large force of the police also assembled at the cross in the center of the cemetery. At the foot of the cross Mr. Quinn placed a wreath in memory of those who fell in the 1916 uprising and read their names.

DAVID SINTON INGALLS.

AT 18, "Dave" Ingalls was thinking about tap day, at 20 he was a World War "ace," at 27 he was a member of the Ohio Legislature and at 32 he is the youngest member of the "Little Cabinet."

The Alexandrine career of this young man has affected neither his head nor his ego; he remains as "regular," unaffected and loyal as he was in the Navy mess.

While his flying career was in the records when his appointment came over the wires to the Navy Department, he was very much of an unknown quantity to the air-minded officials there. His first day in office he invited Rear Admiral William E. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, out to Anacostia. He went aloft in a little 200-horsepower Boeing and was Immelman turning, "falling leafing," outside looping and side slipping to the amazement of the crowd. When Ingalls landed and had taken off his helmet, Moffett took his pipe out of his mouth, laid a hand on his shoulder and said feelingly, "You'll do."

The 32-year-old Cabinet member was the first "ace" of the Navy. He brought down six enemy planes and one balloon during the war and received the British Distinguished Flying Cross and the Distinguished Service Medal from his own Government.

Instead of enlisting in the Cherifian Squadron, he decided to go back to school when the war was over and graduated from Harvard Law School. He became a member of the foremost law firm of Cleveland, but abandoned the law for politics and became the first air-minded member of the Ohio Legislature. He commuted from Columbus to his home in Cleveland always by plane and even designed the "Ingalls Code" for the regulation of interstate flying which was adopted by his own and several other States.

He is married to a charming girl and is the father of three beautiful children.

'Precautions' Galore Fail To Keep Man From Jail

Chicago, March 27 (A.P.).—When a police squad stopped his automobile, Harry Molter, 25 years old, was prepared for about everything except what happened.

"What is all this for?" asked Sergt. Donald Wagner as he took inventory of the well-stocked car.

"That blackjack," Molter smiled, "I carry in case of a fight.

"Those empty five-gallon cans and that six-foot rubber hose—well, if my auto runs out of gasoline I'd be able to syphon some gas out of another car.

"And I've always been afraid I'd lose my keys. That explains that electric ignition jumper. I could attach it and drive off if I lost the ignition key.

"With the glass cutter I could cut out a window if I lost the key to the car door.

"That 'jimmy' bar is really necessary if I lost the key to my front door. Then I could break into my own house.

"And that lead pipe—I carry it so I can make repairs if the plumbing at home goes wrong."

But what Harry really needed was a writ of habeas corpus.

"I'm going to lock you up," the sergeant said.

British Laborites Back Irish Antioath Moves

Blackpool, England, March 27 (A.P.).—George Buchanan and James Maxton, independent labor members of Parliament, were "backing the Irish government" in its intention to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British king, Buchanan told the annual conference of his party here today.

"As far as the Independent Labor party group in the House of Commons is concerned, we shall oppose strongly any attempt to bludgeon or browbeat the Irish people," Buchanan said.

Debate on the question of disaffiliation or otherwise of the Independent Labor party, a left-wing group, from the regular Labor party, which is the principal business before the conference, will begin tomorrow.

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—Brice P. LEAGUE INQUISITORS GREETED IN NANKING

Brass Bands Play and Many Line 5 Miles of Streets to Roar Welcome.

Nanking, China, March 27 (A.P.).—China's capital turned out today in holiday fashion to welcome the League of Nations' commission sent to inquire into the troublesome dispute between China and Japan.

For the first time since the Japanese attacked the Chapei native section of Shanghai two months ago, Nanking this Easter breathed a sigh of relief with the commission's arrival.

Preparations to strengthen the capital's defenses, which had been going on for two months, slackened.

Thousands of coolies who had been working on sandbag barricades, along with flag-waving civilians, lined 5 miles of streets to greet the first of the delegation—Lord Lytton, of Britain, and Count Luigi Aldrovandi Marescotti, of Italy—who arrived this morning from Shanghai by steamer.

Enthusiastic Welcome.

Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, the American commissioner; Gen. Claudel, the French, and Heinrich Schnee, the German member, arrived in the afternoon by automobile from Hangchow.

The visitors received an enthusiastic welcome from a large party of high Chinese government officials, including Lo Wen-Kan, foreign minister.

A Chinese brass band, playing sprightly airs of the late American bandmaster, John Philip Sousa, welcomed Lord Lytton's party, while four Japanese destroyers lying off Nanking dressed ship in the commission's honor.

The four destroyers, which on February 2 shelled the Chinese fortification of Nanking, still were stripped for action. The warships' big guns still were pointed in the direction of the Chinese gun emplacements ashore.

Signs Demand Justice.

Modern advertising methods, with the ancient walls of Nanking as a background, were used to attract the commissioners' attention to China's case.

On the walls of the city, through the great gates of which the commission passed in automobiles, were painted signs with the slogans:

"All we demand is justice."

"The Chinese people stand ready to sacrifice their lives for the sake of justice, but will not submit to force."

"Opposition to Japanese militarism is not antiforeignism."

The commissioners' cars passed along miles of streets. On both sides were tens of thousands of men, women and children waving flags. Boy Scouts and policemen were there, but few soldiers.

Father Reese Tells Life of Grace Need

Says Individuals Should Celebrate Spiritual Resurrection.

The Washington Catholic radio hour, broadcast yesterday from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, had as preacher the Rev. J. Kelly Reese, assistant rector of the church. His topic was "Resurrexit Sicut Praedixit."

"Easter for us should be more than the commemoration of the Resurrection of Christ," Father Reese said. "At Easter we should celebrate our spiritual resurrection. In order to rise to the life of grace we must, according to the precepts of the church, go to confession and communion. Christ is risen from the dead. Let us also rise from the grave of sin to the life of grace. Christ dies no more, but lives forever. Let us no more die the death of sin, but let us preserve the life of grace forever."

The Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of the church, presided at the service. The soloists, under the direction of Prof. Harry Wheaton Howard, organist, were Miss Florence Yocum, soprano; Miss Kathryn Bowers, contralto, and Miss Ann Arlen, violinist.

The blessing of the sick and solemn Lourdes procession took place at the Grotto of Our Lady of Lourdes in the church.

Russia to Protect Private Live Stock

Decree Attacks Common Ownership; Promises Prosecution.

Moscow, March 27 (A.P.).—Realization here that the Soviet state still is some distance from real communism was indicated today in a decree of the Communist party's central executive committee that hereafter live stock privately owned by individual members of collective farms will be protected.

The decree condemned some cases of compulsory conversion of such property into common ownership. It promised to prosecute those responsible, but went a step further and promised government assistance to those members of collective farms who were unable to acquire their own live stock.

There are three forms of rural property ownership under the present socialistic scheme, namely: The agricultural association, permitting peasants working collectively to retain their own homes and other property; the artel, where only live stock can be privately owned; the commune, where everything is common property.

U. S.-JAPANESE WAR FORECAST BY SOVIET Government Press Asserts Domination of Pacific Will Be at Stake.

Moscow, March 27 (A.P.).—A prediction that war between the United States and Japan would grow out of the Manchurian conflict between China and Japan was made in the Red Star, Soviet military publication, today.

Rivalry between America and Japan for domination of the Pacific would cause the war, the newspaper said. It explained that America would not let Japan obtain control of such an important Asiatic territory as China without a fight.

The Red Army organ mentioned the American fleet maneuvers in the Pacific. It said there was increasing agitation in the United States for strengthening American naval bases on the Pacific and that there were anti-American military aviation demonstrations in Japan.

"Japanese-American contradictions now are confined to a diplomatic state," the newspaper added, "but everything confirms the belief that an armed attack between Japan and America can not be avoided."

The Soviet contention that the United States is engaged in war plans also was voiced in Izvestia, Soviet government newspaper, under the headline, "United States Prepares for War."

It published a Washington dispatch which said a "Government committee" had recommended to President Hoover laws empowering Congress to stabilize prices in war time and authorizing the Government to take over private property necessary for the conducting of war.

"America is planning to mobilize the utmost material as well as human resources in armed conflict," the newspaper concluded.

Wingless Autogiro Reported Perfected

London, March 27 (A.P.).—Juan de la Cierva, Spanish inventor of the autogiro, was reported today to have perfected a machine much like the autogiro, except that it is without wings, and to have made several flights in it.

The flying machine, which is now at Hamble Airdrome, England, is one of the first of the heavier-than-air type without wings. It was described as capable of bullet-like velocity, getting up and alighting in a short landing space, and descending safely and gently, like a parachute.

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—The German dirigible Graf Zeppelin, on its homeward flight from Pernambuco, Brazil, was reported over north latitude 27.08, west longitude 25.45, about 400 miles west of the Canary Islands, at 4 p. m. (Eastern standard time) today by the Radiomarine Corporation here.

Its position was reported by the dirigible, which left Pernambuco at 12:58 a. m. Saturday (9:58 p. m. Eastern standard time Friday) on the return flight of its first regular trip to Brazil this year.

CATHOLIC ATTITUDE ON MARRIAGES HIT

Churches of Christ Council Attacks Pledging of of Children.

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America today termed the Roman Catholic attitude toward intermarriage of Protestants and Catholics "intolerable."

The council's committee on marriage and the home advised Protestants not to enter into such marriages.

The recommendation was one of four made by the committee after a study of the subject of "mixed marriages" extending over several months.

In making public the committee's conclusions, the council said it "refrains from making any attack upon the Roman Catholic Church, but in good temper takes issue with its position on mixed marriages, on the ground that it is intolerable."

Opposes Child Pledge.

The committee protested specifically against "the requirement by any church that the children of mixed marriages should be pledged to that church."

Mixed marriages should not be undertaken, the committee held, where "intolerable conditions are imposed by either church in which membership is held."

The committee's report, approved at the March meeting of the council's administrative committee, was originally drafted prior to the Vatican decree of February 5, requiring that the children of marriages between Catholics and non-Catholics be reared in the Catholic faith under pain of annulment of the marriage, refusal of participation in church activities, denial of a church funeral, and in extreme cases, public excommunication.

Not Termed Laws.

In making public the committee's recommendations, the council says they are to be taken, "not as regulations, but as suggestions to church members for their consideration."

The committee was headed by Dr. Howard Chandler Robbins, professor of pastoral theology in the General Theological Seminary, New York, as chairman.

Among the lay members were George W. Wickersham, Prof. Ernest R. Groves, of the University of North Carolina; Prof. Alva W. Taylor, of the School of Religion, Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Robert E. Speer, president of the national board of the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, jr.

Socialization of Trade Australian Vote Issue

Sydney, New South Wales (Monday), March 28 (A.P.).—The New South Wales labor conference today named socialization of industry and agriculture as one of the main issues in the next state election. Premier J. T. Lang, in an address, accused Prime Minister Joseph Lyons of Australia of trying to reduce the standard of living.

"The Labor party must resist to the uttermost or itself be wiped out," he said.

Nitti, Capone Aid, Reported 'On Spot'

Revolt Against Him as New Head of Syndicate Is Rumored.

Chicago, March 27 (A.P.).—The Herald and Examiner says it has learned Frank Nitti, chief lieutenant of Al Capone, who returned here last week after serving fifteen months at Leavenworth, has been marked for death by his erstwhile associates.

The diminutive gangman, who won the title "The Enforcer" because of the stern discipline he meted out to rebels in the Capone camp, had expected to take charge of the syndicate during the incarceration of Al, the paper said. Murray Humphries, the present leader, was to have been relegated to a subordinate post, under Nitti's plans.

Humphries led a revolt, according to the paper, and was joined by such tribal chiefs as "Red" Barker, "Three Finger Jack" White, Klondike and Spike O'Donnell, Frank McErlane, "Red" Bolton and "Bubs" Quinlan. The paper interprets the controversy as foreshadowing disintegration of the Capone syndicate and as a possible precursor to a bloody gang war.

PARTIES FACE DRIVE FOR ANTIWAR POLICY

Motorcade of Women From All States to Descend Upon Chicago Conventions.

(Associated Press.)

A concerted attack on the two national conventions in Chicago in June is being planned by a number of prominent women, who will urge both political parties to adopt definite programs to outlaw war.

Behind the movement are Miss Katharine Anthony, of New York; Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, of Missouri, and others who propose to have at least one automobile of women from every State in the Union converge on Chicago. On the second day of each convention a street parade of these is projected, augmented by automobiles containing representatives from various colleges and others who would have the two political parties adopt planks in their platforms declaring against war as a means of settling differences between nations.

Those directing the movement will not offer any plank at either convention, but will direct their efforts by interviews with convention delegates from their respective States to have a declaration against war adopted. They also plan to continue the campaign actively among all candidates during the approaching national campaign.

Detectives Robbed By Woman Bandit

Contribute $15 to $800 Loot Taken by Armed Pair on Train.

San Francisco, March 27 (A.P.).—Authorities today sought a woman and her male assistant who last night robbed passengers of a Southern Pacific train of $800 and valuable jewelry, but missed $2,000 carried by a traveler, forced to act as collector of the loot.

Victims of the robbers included two Los Angeles detectives, Harry F. Herhardt and A. L. Bergeror, who lost $15. They said later their service revolvers were packed away in their bags.

The bandits entered the lounge car of the southbound train as it left the San Francisco station and with drawn guns announced a holdup was in progress. They elected J. W. Horsman, San Francisco, to pass the hat among the 30 passengers. He walked down the aisle and wallets and jewelry were tossed into his hat as the bandits followed his progress with their pistols. Less than five minutes after the holdup started the bandits leaped from the train.

Democrats of Iowa To Meet Tomorrow

Question of Whether Delegates to Chicago Go Instructed Pends.

Davenport, Iowa, March 27 (A.P.).—Whether Iowa Democrats will send an instructed delegation to their national convention appears the major question confronting the State convention here Tuesday.

Among the early arrivals here today for conferences preliminary to the convention were supporters of Govs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and W. H. Murray of Oklahoma, both candidates for the party's presidential nomination.

Although members of the State central committee had expressed the belief Iowa Democrats favored the New Yorker, it is not expected they, as a committee, would lead a movement to instruct the delegation for him. Roosevelt leaders claim some 700 of the 1,897 State delegates would support the New Yorker. James A. Farley, of New York, national contact man for Roosevelt, is due to arrive tomorrow.

MARKET DIVE OF TWO BILLION IS COST OF CHAOS IN HOUSE

hundreds of millions in direct losses to farmers in all sections of the country.

Foreign exchange also was adversely affected by the House fiasco, with every country's money moving against the United States dollar for the final half of last week. British sterling gained 1½ cents for the week, and other currencies advanced from 6 to 8 points.

Worst Break Since Autumn.

"An onslaught of foreign selling, based on the failure of Congress to agree upon tax legislation for balancing the budget, precipitated yesterday the worst break in the dollar since last autumn," the New York Times said of Saturday's foreign exchange market.

Even the French franc, which had been the weakest of the major European currencies since the passage of the Glass-Steagall bill last month, gained 1½ points Saturday, to close only 1 point below the gold export level. Thus, the new economic disaster which is upon the country, soon may witness a "esumption of the outward gold movement which so disorganized credit last fall as to inspire the hoarding epidemic from which the Nation began to recover slowly only six weeks ago.

"The fall of the dollar wiped out all of the improvement made by the United States exchange since the Glass-Steagall bill was enacted at the close of February and left the exchange position almost precisely where it was when that legislation was brought forward, except that both sterling and the mark are now far above the points at which they then were," the Times' report added.

Placing the blame for the week's distressing business reverse squarely at the door of the House, the B. C. Forbes review from New York said in part, "Leadership in Congress, heretofore inspiring, has collapsed ignominously. The effect upon men of affairs is disconcerting. The triumph of irresponsibility over responsibility in the House has plunged national finances into an acutely disturbing state. The ultimate outcome can not yet be gauged."

Sincere Desire Doubted.

Ralph West Robey, in the New York Evening Post for Saturday, said, "Events of the last few days, however, have raised the doubt in many minds whether there is any reason at present for believing that Congress has a sincere desire to balance the budget."

In its weekly survey of brokerage comment, the New York Herald-Tribune yesterday said that "Wall street is greatly disappointed over the defeat of the sales tax in the House of Representatives and is perturbed over the delay in discovering some method of balancing the budget * * * Until this major problem is settled sentiment in the financial district holds to the bearish side."

Morrison and Townsend, in their week-end customer's letter, said:

"Defeat of the proposed sales tax is a body blow to the stock market and to business. No other measure has yet been proposed which comes any way near balancing the Government budget, and meanwhile the Treasury deficit grows larger and larger. The stock market may be expected to reflect the national opinion of this state of affairs, and unless powerful banking support is afforded there is apt to be a bad break."

Secondary to Method.

D. M. Collins & Co. suggested in their letter that the defeat of the tax was secndary to the shock of the legislative method exposed.

"The defeat of the sales tax was anticipated, but the manner in which this provision of the revenue bill was killed," this review said, "has caused grave apprehension both here and abroad. It represents a complete collapse of the coalition leadership which has heretofore kept the House within reasonable bounds and reflects a lack of recognition on the part of many representatives of the urgent need of balancing Federal income and outgo with the least possible delay."

H. Hentz & Co. summarized the situation in this long way:

"The defeat of the sales tax is a serious blow to business and the financial markets. The vital question of balancing the budget is left high and dry and, we believe, will react very unfavorably on the market."

Sounding about the same note, W. E. Hutton & Co. said:

"The main question before the country is the balancing of the budget, and the progress made by Congress on this all-important subject will guide values to a great extent during the coming week."

Tax-Exempt Bonds Cited.

Noting that investment funds already are being diverted from the normal channels of commerce into tax-exempt securities by the threat of unsound tax legislation, M. J. Meehan & Co. observed:

"If any attempt is made to balance the budget by higher surtaxes large funds will be driven from stocks and investment bonds to tax-exempt municipal and State bonds. Many bond houses already have noticed the trend in this direction."

Although the dominant motif of the financial reviews does not fully echo the warning of Representative Crisp (Democrat), of Georgia, in the House Saturday, that the majority party has destroyed itself politically, the absence of this sentiment is generally attributed by most observers here to the fact that the brokerage comment is confined exclusively to the economic, rather than to the political, aspects of the situation.

Warning From Leaders.

The country received ample warning from the Democratic leaders of the House early in March, that the era of nonpartisan cooperation for economic reconstruction was at end. When President Hoover sent up his special message urging prompt action on consolidation of bureaus in the interest of drastic economies, Speaker Garner responded to the suggestion publicly in these words:

"We thought he would make some constructive suggestions, but hell's bells, he only wants to create a lot of new jobs."

But no one could have guessed at that time how disastrous would be the consequences of the Democratic rejection of the program of nonpartisan cooperation for the national welfare in the unparalleled emergency.

Seabury Asks Cut In Mayor's Power

Would Abolish His Right to Name Appointees to Magistrates' Court.

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—Elimination of politics from the magistrates' court by taking appointments out of the hands of the mayor, was recommended by Samuel Seabury today. In a final report to the appellate division on the results of his investigation into the magistrates' court, Seabury blamed political corruption for what he called the "hideous caricature which parades as justice" in the "poor man's" tribunal.

In all, Seabury made four recommendations:

A constitutional amendment transferring the power of appointing magistrates from the mayor to the appellate division, pending that, he suggested enactment of a law prohibiting the mayor from appointing magistrates without submitting their names to the appellate division for approval.

Consolidation of the magistrates' courts as such with the court of special sessions and the children's court.

Designation of a group of public defenders to protect the poor and ignorant from "ambulance chasers" and extortionists.

Reduction of the number of court clerks and attendants to one-half their present number, with a consequent saving of $160,000 a year.

Harlan Mine Men Lose Deputy Jobs

Sheriff, "Double-Crossed" in Election, Will Cancel 126 Badges.

Harlan, Ky., March 27 (A.P.).—Reiterating his previous charge he was "double crossed" by coal operators, Sheriff J. H. Blair, of Harlan County, tonight said he will cancel deputy sheriff commissions held by 126 mine guards in the Harlan County coal fields. The sheriff said he will call in the badges of the deputies tomorrow.

Yesterday, after being defeated for the chairmanship of the county Republican central committee by George S. Ward, the operators' compromise candidate, Blair said he "would dismiss the deputies on duty at the various mines. The sheriff refused to withdraw from the race in favor of Ward when Ward was advanced by Circuit Judge D. C. Jones and the coal operators as a compromise candidate in the political fight.

Decommissioning of the deputized mines will leave 30 mines without official protection.

Brooklyn Paper's Plane Crashes; Pilot Is Unhurt

Bayport, Long Island, March 27 (U.P.).—An airplane said to be owned by the Brooklyn Eagle crashed near Merrick road, at Bayport, today, but without serious injury to the pilot.

The plane's operator, whose name was given as Stephen Ranck, evidently had intended to land on the small field here, but upon changing his decision failed to clear certain obstructions and went into a nose dive. He suffered slight injuries to one leg, and was taken from Bayport immediately in another plane.

New Mexico G.O.P. Elevates Cutting

Foe to Renomination of Hoover New National Committeeman.

Sante Fe, N. Mex., March 27 (A.P.). Senator Bronson Cutting, avowedly opposed to the renomination of President Hoover, is the new Republican national committeeman from New Mexico.

He was elected unanimously late last night at the State Republican convention after telling the delegates he hoped the Republican national convention will nominate for President a man who will take into consideration the interests of New Mexico and the Nation.

Senator Cutting said: "While I do not favor the renomination of President Hoover, as against some other administration which would be more effective in this part of the world, I shall continue to support the interests of the Republican party so long as I can conscientiously do so." A resolution to instruct the New Mexico delegation for Hoover was defeated by the resolutions committee of the convention by a vote of 24 to 3.

Kampfe, who came to New York from his native Germany as a boy, organized the Star Safety Razor Co. with his brother and started manufacturing the product.

Physician Warns House Membership

Urges Rest on Saturdays to Offset Strenuous Session Work.

(Associated Press.)

The spectacle of many exhausted and ill members of the hard-working House still carrying on has caused Dr. George W. Calver, attending Capitol physician, to issue a solemn warning to slow down to avoid danger.

Already in this Congress sixteen representatives and four senators have died, while several have collapsed from overwork and nervous exhaustion. In addition more than half the membership of both Senate and House have been under medical treatment since the long session began in December. As many as twenty have been confined to their beds at one time.

Dr. Calver told Majority Leader Rainey in a letter that work of House members this session had been unparalleled because of long and intense sessions and its committee work. He urged that the House not meet on Saturdays to enable the members to regain strength. Rainey hopes to make this possible in the future.

Grand Jury Will Probe Arkansas Coed's Death

El Dorado, Ark., March 27 (A.P.).—A special session of the Union County grand jury was called today to meet Wednesday for an investigation of the death of Miss Ruth Youngblood, 20, senior at Magnolia A. and M. College, whom a tramp has confessed he attacked and hurled in the path of a train here Friday night.

Although a formal charge of murder has been lodged against Irvin Eddington, 38, Coroner T. E. Barton still held to a suicide theory.

Eddington has told several conflicting stories and at times has denied any connection with the girl's death. Barton said physicians had examined the body and reported there was no evidence of an attack.

Mayor of Minneapolis Bars 'Crazy Quilt' Show

Minneapolis, Minn., March 27 (A.P.).—Barred from appearing at a local theater by order of Mayor William Anderson, the revue "Crazy Quilt," tonight moved to St. Paul, where it will be presented the rest of the week. The show had been scheduled to open here tonight and continue through Wednesday.

Missouri to Boom Reed for President

Democrats to Convene in St. Louis Today, With 3,000 Present.

St. Louis, March 27 (A.P.).—Missouri Democrats, who have fought many a bitter battle over former Senator James A. Reed, will formally launch him as a presidential candidate at the Democratic State convention here tomorrow.

While Democrats listed for years as "anti-Reed" have agreed to the indorsement of the former senator for the presidential nomination, there appeared tonight to be at least a possibility of a fight over the form of instruction to the delegates to the national convention in Chicago. Reed's managers favor a resolution instructing the delegates to vote for Reed "until personally released" by him. This has met with some objection, especially from Democrats who would like to switch to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, when and if it appears Reed has no chance for the nomination.

Nearly 3,000 delegates, the largest number ever to attend a State political convention in Missouri, will attend tomorrow's meeting and many of them were on the scene tonight. Some of them brought reports that Roosevelt sentiment had reached the "grass roots" of Missouri.

POPULARITY OF U. S. IS WANING IN EUROPE

Some in Britain Say America Will Be Forced to Drop Gold Standard.

London, March 27 (U.P.).—The European public and press manifested a little sympathy and a greater degree of secret satisfaction over the week-end in reviewing the American Government's difficulties in balancing the United States budget.

Many British and other publicists claimed the United States is not alive to the dangers of its unbalanced budget and pictured all manner of dire developments.

These predictions included the possibility of a "flight from the dollar," the forced abandonment of the gold standard and inflation of currency, all of which have been discounted in the past in the United States.

PPoPopularity on Wane.

Some European forecasters even went to the extent of describing the danger of complete impoverishment of the once mighty "financial colossus" across the Atlantic ocean.

In this connection, it should be remembered that the popularity of the United States in Europe has fluctuated rapidly of late. After the "Uncle Shylock" period, the American Government rose rapidly to its highest peak of popularity in recent years when President Hoover announced the war debts holiday.

Thereafter, the economic situation was not miraculously changed and the popularity of the United States waned rapidly. Since the sacrifices of America failed to rehabilitate a stricken Europe, there have been intermittent periods in which financial sources have reported "antidollar" campaigns, each more vehement than the preceding.

Fall of Dollar Seen.

Now again, financial circles claim that Europeans are selling out their dollar holdings and buying pounds sterling and Canadian dollars, thus accounting for what London described as "the fall of the dollar," rather than the "rise of the pound."

Another phase of the European attitude is to link American budgetary difficulties with the so-called "era of lawlessness" in the United States, which is epitomized in the Lindbergh baby kidnaping, and the attempts to enlist the underworld in efforts to recover the infant.

Britishers in particular have been patting themselves on the back for their drastic handling of their budgetary crisis last September, as a result of which the final budget figures for the fiscal year—to be announced Thursday—undoubtedly will reveal a surplus.

Income Tax Boost Is Urged in Report

Substitute Is Suggested by Joint Committee on Unemployment.

Heavier taxation of incomes of $5,000 to $10,000 and rapidly increasing surtaxes on incomes above the last sum, coupled with a tax on corporation surpluses, were suggested as possible substitutes for the defeated sales tax by the joint committee on unemployment in a report made public by its offices here yesterday.

It was declared in the statement, prepared by the joint committee, under chairmanship of Prof. John Dewey, that "No Federal budget can be fairly called 'balanced,' which does not include the Federal Government's share of the cost of caring for victims of unemployment, and adequate Federal credit for a program of public buildings, highways and municipal housing and community projects."

At least $500,000,000 additional revenue is needed to balance the budget as it is now planned for 1933, the report says, while $750,000,000 to $800,000,000 will be needed for the Government to meet its real obligations for relief, in addition to the bond issues for the public works, and credit for municipal housing, &c., the committee declares.

of the shooting late today and came to police headquarters here when he learned that he was being sought for questioning. He and Detective William Peters left immediately for Frederick tonight and a conference was being held at the undertaking establishment of M. R. Etchison, where the bodies are being held. Besides the Hagerstown detective, Sheriff C. W. Crum and Magistrate Bennett were in the conference.

Magistrate Bennett in a statement tonight said that despite the fact that the note, the conents of which he would not reveal, indicated the two had entered a death pact, he was not satisfied until he learned whether the note was in Doughty's handwriting and how the couple had reached the spot where their bodies were found.

Indications of Struggle.

Sheriff Crum said that there were indications of a struggle near where the bodies were found.

Mrs. Batt left her home here about five weeks ago, and, according to neighbors, went with Doughty. She is understood to have met Doughty while he was a prisoner in the Hagerstown Jail, where she had gone to visit some friends.

Doughty had operated the Idle Hour, a restaurant at Williamsport. About a year ago it was raided by Federal agents. During the raid, there was a fight and Doughty was arrested with several others. He was jailed here.

Doughty was single. Mrs. Batt and her husband had no children.

Suicide of Actress' Husband Blamed On Secret Spared Orphans by 'Grave'

Man Lya de Putti Fled for Films Told Tots She Was Dead.

He Is Believed to Have Ended Life After Star Expired.

Budapest, March 27 (A.P.).—Near the empty "grave" of Lya de Putti, screen actress, who died in New York some months ago, is another, in which lies the body of her husband, Zoltan de Szepessy, believed to have killed himself in a despondent mood after long grieving over her death.

The grave is empty because it was already being kept green and decked with flowers while Lya de Putti was playing opposite Emil Jannings in Germany and, later, continuing her screen career in Hollywood. A tombstone bears the inscription:

Here Lies
Mme. Zoltan de Szepessy
Born Lia Putty
Who Died at the Age of 22.

When this inscription was carved the 22-year-old brunet who later was to become known to the film world as Lya de Putti was headed away from home, husband and children.

Zoltan de Szepessy was left behind on the ancestral estate where he and his dark-eyed bride, whom he married when she was 17, had lived five happy years. At least they had been happy for him.

So, instead of telling his two little daughters their mother had fled, he told them she had died, and prepared a grave which he told them was hers.

Each morning for years the daughters, Iloma and Judit, visited the grave and prayed for the soul of their mother.

Meanwhile she was in Hollywood, or New York, or Berlin, or London. One morning not long ago they prayed, as usual, at their mother's grave. This time there was no make-believe except in the emptiness of the grave. For the newspapers everywhere were headlining: "Lya de Putti Dead."

Friends of Szepessy say he grew sadder and moodier after this news from overseas.

Grief over the death of Lya de Putti (left), Hungarian screen actress, in New York, has been followed by the suicide of her husband, Zoltan de Szepessy, shown above in the historic costume of his country. Their children had been reared to believe her dead, after she had left home for a film career.

In the hotel room where he was found one morning with a bullet in his heart and a revolver in his hand was a note saying financial difficulties were too much for him.

Later, however, those who looked into his affairs said that, while his estate was heavily mortgaged, his difficulties were not at all overwhelming.

So the opinion persists that he brooded long over Lya de Putti, once his bride, later a screen star, and that finally he put an end to brooding by suicide.

The daughters who survive him are now 16 and 17 years old.

Their only mementoes of their mother date before the time her screen career began.

The gifts she always sent them from Hollywood or elsewhere at Christmas time were as regularly returned unopened, Szepessy sticking resolutely to the fiction that his daughters' mother had "died, aged 22."

Davenport Lauds Rulers of Russia

They Are Ruthless but Incorruptible, He Tells Forum.

"Incorruptible men of genuine ability—ruthless but incorruptible—govern Soviet Russia," said Representative Frederick M. Davenport (Republican), New York, last night in an address before the Washington Open Forum.

The New York representative visited Russia several months ago and described at length economic, political and religious conditions there. He said that "enthusiasm for youth" and assurance of economic security are being substituted for religion in Russia.

Speaking of the Russian leaders, Representative Davenport said "they are honestly trying to take away from their people the terrible specter of poverty and to give them economic security. We must do the same in this country—although I do not believe in the application of the same system here." The address was given in the Sears Roebuck Art Galleries, 1106 Connecticut avenue, and was largely attended.

Hammer Assault on 2 Policemen Is Charged

After an alleged hammer assault on two policemen, Henry Cannon, colored, 42 years old, of 2123½ Ward place northwest, was charged with two cases of assault. The alleged attack took place in the house where Cannon rooms in Ward place.

Patrolman J. H. Gwinn and E. E. Waters, of the Third Precinct, answered a complaint of Anne Crump, colored, that Cannon was disorderly at the Ward place address. When they attempted to arrest him he allegedly attacked them with a hammer. He was subdued and, after treatment at Emergency Hospital, was held at the Third Precinct Station.

Curved Space of Universe May Exist in Two Forms

Mathematicians Explain Significance of Recent Discoveries Announced by Drs. Einstein and De Sitter on Scientific Mysteries.

(Associated Press.)

Two kinds of "curved space" may exist in the universe, say mathematicians, commenting on new discoveries by Dr. Albert Einstein and Dr. Willem de Sitter.

The two kinds of space are the garden variety, euclidean, that is, space having length, breadth and thickness, which the ordinary man knows, and the "space-time" of the mathematicians, a conception in which time is added as a fourth dimension.

The mathematicians explain that these new discoveries do not scrap the famous Einstein "curved space." That curvature existed in "space-time."

The new idea splits three-dimensional space off from the bigger element, "space-time," and discusses whether there is also curvature in this commonplace space.

Einstein and De Sitter state that "at the present time it is not possible to represent the facts (of the known universe) without assuming a curvature of three-dimensional space." But this curvature can be "positive" or "negative."

Space that has a "positive" curvature is finite, but boundless, say the mathematicians. It can be compared to the surface of a sphere which has a finite area, but at the same time is boundless, for it is not fenced in by anything. Space that has a negative curvature is both infinite and boundless.

In speaking of the curvature of space, scientists usually use the term "space-time," because, as they assert, space and time are inseparable. Time is sometimes referred to as the "fourth dimension" of space.

The idea of space-time is illustrated by the problem of finding the location of a train traveling along a track. The location of the train depends both on the distance it has traveled and the time it took to cover that distance.

"The statement of Einstein and De Sitter does not alter the fact," says a mathematician of the United States Bureau of Standards, "that every small portion of space-time is curved, and that the space around the sun has a positive curvature, as evidenced by eclipse observations in which it was found that light from distant stars seemed to bend around the sun.

"The statement does imply that the local positive curvature of space time in the neighborhood of dense masses (such as planets) may be balanced by a negative curvature out in the voids of space between the stars, so that on the average space will seem to be free from curvature.

"However, more accurate measurement of the distances of stars and of their masses may prove that this balance is not exact, but may leave a residual average positive curvature, in which case a light ray, traveling through space, eventually will come back on itself and 'bump itself in the tail.'

"On the other hand it may result in an average resultant negative curvature, in which light rays will not return on themselves."

Space with only the three dimensions of height, length and breadth, is the same around one point as another, the mathematician went on to explain, and a line in any direction in this kind of space has the same properties.

This is not true in "Einstein space," however. In that kind of space a line in one direction may go on forever, while a line going in another direction will land back where it started.

De Sitter has developed still another idea of space-time, in which time goes on forever, but space is closed on itself.

HOUSE IS NEAR SHOWDOWN ON BILLION-DOLLAR TAX BILL

tion of gas and electricity, and against the proposed automobile sales tax, which is to be based on f. o. b. prices. Representatives of the automobile industry vigorously protested against this when the committee was holding hearings preparatory to drafting the tax bill. Even if an effort to strike the automobile tax out is not successful percentage may be cut down.

Democratic leaders, still smarting under the exulting rush of Republicans Saturday to tack extraordinarily high tariff amendments to the tax bill, were preparing to demand that Republican leaders hold their members with a stronger hand. But they couldn't make their demand with good grace because of the wild revolt on their own side of the aisle.

Garner Urged to Battle.

Representative Crisp, who told the House Saturday that the patience he had shown in debate ceased to be a virtue in the face of the rebellion, remarked yesterday that it seemed as if the Republicans were willing to play politics with the tax bill, and if they continued to do so they would have to take the responsibility for failure to enact a budget-balancing bill. He described the shower of tariff amendments as embargo amendments which were much more dangerous than an unbalanced budget because such embargoes led to war.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell (Republican), of New York, Republican leader, declared that a majority of his party were willing to cooperate with the Democrats in passing a budget-balancing measure as a nonpartisan bill. But the Democratic rebellion against the sales tax, he said, had put many Republicans who supported it, in an embarrassing position. The Democrats, he added, ought to line up their own majority.

Democratic leaders are trying to do that very thing. They have again besought Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, to plunge into the fray and whip his party into line behind the revised committee bill. Representatives Crisp, Ragon, Henry T. Rainey and others have urged this, but Mr. Garner has not said that he would do so at this time.

Speaker's Reason for Delay.

The Speaker has been represented as believing that the opportune moment has not arrived for him to step into the fight. It was pointed out that no one would have been able to stop the House in the heighth of its revolt and if he had taken the floor in an effort to do so more would have been lost in the long run than would have been gained.

In that connection it might be pointed out that some of those who were active in the revolt haven't any especially friendly feeling for Mr. Garner because they were disappointed in the organization of the House. Representative Henry T. Rankin, of Mississippi, one of the leaders in the rebellion, waged an active campaign to be named floor leader and believes he could have won had not Mr. Garner, following a program to show the Nation that the Southern Democrats did not intend to grab off every job in sight, supported Mr. Rainey, of Illinois.

The Speaker is said to believe that the revolt will have run its course in the next few days and that once its force begins to wane will be the time for him to jump into the fight and whip through the House a tax bill which will produce adequate revenue to balance the budget.

Throughout the fight there hasn't been any material strength developed against a budget balancing policy, leaders of both Democrats and Republicans and those opposing the sales tax repeatedly declaring that to be so necessary that they would fight to do so.

Catholics Prepare April Radio Hours

Noted Speakers to Appear on Sunday Programs During Month.

April is expected to be the foremost month of the 1931-1932 season of the Washington Catholic radio hour, due to the prominence of the speakers and the importance of their subjects.

The Washington Catholic radio hour, under the direction of the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, is broadcast every Sunday afternoon from the Church of the Immaculate Conception through Station WOL from 5 to 6 o'clock.

On next Sunday the Right Rev. Mgr. James H. Ryan, S. T. D., rector of Catholic University, will be guest preacher, the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., rector of Georgetown University, will speak on the pioneer priests of Maryland on April 10. On Sunday, April 17, Dr. George Johnson, member of Catholic University faculty, will preach. John McCormack Sings Tribute to Dead Olcott

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—Tribute in song was paid tonight to the memory of Chauncey Olcott, "A Dear Friend," by John McCormack as he sang his 168th New York concert to an enthusiastic audience in Carnegie Hall.

The famous tenor sang "Thou'rt Passing Hence, My Brother," by Arthur Sullivan, to honor the late actor who was one of his closest friends during the last twenty years.

ANESTHETIC HAVING LONGER LIFE FOUND

Stronger Than Novacaine or Cocaine for Local Use; Forms No Habit.

New Orleans, March 27 (A.P.).—A new "lingering" anesthetic, which continues to kill pain after an operation, but has no habit-forming power, was reported to the American Chemical Society tonight.

A powerful salt from castor oil which promises a new method of immunizing from diphtheria and tetanus also was reported.

The society begins tomorrow a four-day meeting, with more than 1,000 scientists expected from all over the country. Several hundred reports will be made on recent advances in chemistry, ranging from medicine and biology to gasoline and sugar.

The new anesthetic is local, and is claimed to outdo cocaine and novocaine. It is hydrochloride of piperidinopropanediol diphenylurethane. For short it is called diothane. It was reported in a paper issued by the society from Dr. T. H. Rider and E. W. Scott, of the William S. Merrill Co., Cincinnati.

This drug was found by one of those experiments which seem to split hairs between tweedledum and tweedledee. It was discovered right in the middle of a lot of almost exactly similar anesthetics which are not particularly effective. A few slight changes in positions of atoms account for its potency.

"This compound," said Dr. Rider, "is the only one at present available which is not only stronger than either cocaine or novocaine, but can be used satisfactorily in any surgical operation that can be done under local anesthetic.

"At the same time it is not habit-forming and is less toxic than either cocaine or novocaine.

"Clinical studies have been made with diothane which have shown its use in actual practice leads to more favorable results than the use of previously known anesthetics.

"Among the outstanding effects is the slowness with which the anesthesia disappears. Because of this the patient is more comfortable after operation than is usually the case."

NEW DIXIE STORMS KILL 12 AND HURT 50

gomery, and heavy property damage resulted at Lock Eighteen in the same county, site of large power plants.

Out of the Lock Eighteen vicinity tonight came a host of week-end campers and fishing parties, who told grim tales of terror among villagers still quaking from last week's blast, and heavy property damages.

Ambulances Meet Carriers.

Meanwhile at Montgomery, where the relief work in the new disaster in Alabama centered, ambulances manned by physicians and nurses met each incoming train and bus.

Montgomery and Birmingham, Alabama's principal cities, were unable to speak, each with the other, because of the tangle of disrupted communication lines between.

The tornado seemed to drop a certain death-dealing quality as it crossed the State line into Georgia. From that point, no further deaths were reported, though the toll of injured mounted higher by the hour and property damage was extensive.

On the other side of the line, La Fayette and Dadeville, Ala., reported 20 and 8 injured, respectively, but no deaths. They are not far from Slyacauga, Ala., where the storm a week ago took many lives.

In Georgia the cyclone struck first at Corinth, a small town of 100 citizens just across the State line. Here H. F. Jackson, father of seven children, and his daughter, Louise, 13, were believed fatally injured in the collapse of their home. Hamp Fomby, farmer nearby, was injured seriously.

Woman Collapses.

It was at Corinth that an unidentified woman visitor from Lagrange, who had barely stepped from the Jackson home before it was blown away by the wind, collapsed in hysteria over the terrifying aspect.

Northwest of Corinth, a family reunion was in progress at the home of Jim Kilgore. Altogether 16 persons, including Kilgore's children and grandchildren, rose from the table and scattered about the house.

Then the storm struck. Every member of the party was injured when the house was blown away. All the buildings on the farm were demolished. Fire which started immediately in the wreckage, destroyed all the farm implements, live stock and stored assets that might have been untouched by the blow of the twister. Mr. and Mrs. Kilgore were reported in serious condition in a hospital at Newnan, Ga., tonight.

Homes Demolished.

The storm moved northward to the small mill village of East Newnan, one mile from Newnan, where six houses were demolished and 15 others unroofed and left in varied stages of disrepair. Casualties at East Newnan had not been reported.

Near here the $30,000 summer plantation home of James Arnold, of Atlanta, and many tenant houses were destroyed.

No instance of destruction or even damage to a church on this Easter Sunday was reported. Many Negro churches were known to have been holding services during the hours of the storm.

The tornado turned northwest at this point and struck next at Buchanan, Ga., where three persons were injured seriously. Henry Cook and a Mrs. Lewis were reported in dying condition. Some twenty homes were destroyed at Buchanan.

The storm was next reported at Cleveland, Tenn., but it was believed that several north Georgia communities had felt its force in the interim.

Man, 63, in Hospital After Auto Accident

Eugene Jones, 63, of Suitland, Md., was in an undetermined condition at Emergency Hospital last night as the result of injuries received when struck by an automobile as he walked across New York avenue northwest, near Eleventh street.

The injured man was taken to the hospital in a passing car. He was said to have a possible fracture of the right leg, two fractured ribs and lacerations about the face. Julian Evart, 34, of 1900 H street northwest, driver of the car that hit Jones, was not arrested.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CURES HELD PROVED

Briton, in Lecture Here, Says It Is Revival of Original Christianity.

A lecture on "Christian Science: A Religion of Healing," was delivered yesterday afternoon in Constitution Hall by A. Harvey-Bathurst, C. S. B., of London, England, a member of the board of lectureship of the mother church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. He was introduced by Dr. E. C. Johnston. This lecture was under the auspices of First, Second, Third and Fourth Churches of Christ, Scientist, of this city.

The lecturer said, in part:

"It is not necessary for me to tell you that Christian Science heals. That fact is now recognized throughout the world, for men, women and children in every civilized country are being healed through the knowledge of the truth taught and practiced by the founder of Christianity, and again revealed to this age by Mary Baker Eddy. While the revelation of Christian Science is certainly proof of the remarkable development in the realm of religion, Christian Science is not new, for it is primitive Christianity again revealed to mankind in a way which all can understand and practice scientifically.

"Why should it be considered a thing incredible with you that God should raise the dead? Christian Science today is perpetually voicing that same thought and is again asking mankind why it should be doubted that the healing of sin, sickness and death should still be possible through the recognition and the demonstration of the ever-present God and His irresistible power."

Editor Describes Destructive Funnel

Only Rapid Driving Saved Alabaman From Death in Dixie Tornado.

Montgomery, Ala., March 27 (A.P.). Great, black, cloud-shaped, like a funnel fringed with boiling white streamers, was the description given here of the tornado that struck near Thorsby late today by Bill Smith, editor of the Chilton County (Ala.) News.

Smith came to Montgomery to give the Associated Press information of the twister, which killed two persons at Pleasant Grove. He said he missed being in the storm's path only by driving rapidly for several minutes.

"We saw it coming for three or four miles," he said, "and recognized it for a tornado from descriptions and pictures. The wind became almost gale force, and in the southwest this black cloud, shaped like a gigantic funnel, was moving down on us. Debris was constantly being whipped out from the tail of it. The funnel was fringed with boiling streamers. Hundreds of motorists were along the highway, which is the Birmingham-Montgomery road, looking at the ruins of last week's storm and confusion reigned among them."

G.O.P. Ticket Bolt Threatened by Nye

North Dakota Senator Hits Hoover Farm Policy as Failure to Aid.

(Associated Press.)

A threat to bolt the Republican ticket in the coming presidential election came last night from one of the Senate's Western independents, Nye, of North Dakota.

Discussing his campaign plans in an interview, Senator Nye said he expected to criticize the Hoover administration policy toward agriculture and indicated that unless there was some change in its attitude meanwhile he would not support the President for election.

"With conditions remaining as they are now and the administration failing to respond to the needs of agriculture," Senator Nye said, "I certainly will not place myself in the position of supporting the Hoover administration."

Asked concerning reports that he would campaign for reelection on "an anti-Hoover platform," Senator Nye said that he did not intend to make "anti-Hooverism" the issue of his campaign.

THE DEMOCRATIC FIASCO.

The breakdown of Democratic leadership in the House needs no advertising. The country knows it only too well. The spectacle of this collapse at the first test, after Democratic leaders had boasted of what they would do if given the opportunity, has made the country laugh in derision and covered the "leaders" with chagrin. Now comes Jouett Shouse, one of the Democratic party's chief liabilities, to emphasize the breakdown in the House and to make his party still more ridiculous by blaming President Hoover for its collapse.

"If President Hoover had only spoken two weeks ago," says Mr. Shouse, in effect, "the Democrats in the House might not have made this terrible blunder. He is to blame for our making fools of ourselves."

Mr. Shouse's brilliant plan is borrowed from the cuttlefish. When in a tight place, throw out a cloud of ill-smelling ink and scuttle away. His idea is that an attack upon the President at this time will divert attention from the bankruptcy of Democratic leadership in the House. So he resumes his delightful task of "smearing Hoover." He blames the President for the world depression, accuses him of just having awakened to the necessity of balancing the budget, charges him with responsibility for the deficit, &c., and then gives away his whole case by admitting that the Democrats of the House have wrecked the tax bill.

The tax bill is a Democratic measure, prepared by the party that is supposed to control the House and which is held responsible for that control by the public. The Treasury's plan for taxation was rejected by the Democrats who framed the tax bill. Mr. Hoover did not complain. He stood ready to support a tax bill framed by the Democratic House, provided it would balance the budget. He gave full credit at all times to Democrats for their cooperation in putting through antidepression legislation. His proposals were formulated with the assistance of Democrats, to whom he acknowledged his obligations, and when the Democrats in Congress supported his program he took no partisan credit to himself for having made the proposals, but went to work on national reconstruction.

The breakdown of the Democrats in the House, resulting in the wreck of the tax bill and imperiling the national credit, afforded an opportunity to the President to indulge in partisan criticism. He did not resort to partisanship. His last utterance is one of faith in the two parties in Congress in the performance of their duty in balancing the budget. What he desires is national stability and recuperation. He asks for what he is entitled to receive from all decent Americans—their cooperation for the country's welfare. What he receives from Jouett Shouse, Mr. Raskob's spokesman of the Democratic party, is misrepresentation, detraction, and vulgar abuse.

Is it the purpose of the Democratic party management, represented by Mr. Shouse, to make it impossible for the two parties to cooperate in behalf of the public welfare? Is it more important to embarrass the President than it is to restore good times? The Democrats in Congress did not think so when they voted for the Hoover reconstruction program. They repudiated Mr. Shouse and his scheme for prolonging the depression, and joined the President and the Republican party in pushing through remedial legislation.

If the spokesman of the Democratic party wishes the country to believe that he is honest when he states his opinion that the budget must be balanced, why does he not place the blame where it belongs? Why does he not concur with Mr. Crisp, the Democratic leader who is honest enough to rebuke his party colleagues for their folly? Why does not Mr. Shouse remonstrate with Speaker Garner for falling down on his job?

The Democratic party, in control of the House, has failed in its first attempt to legislate. It can retrieve itself yet, if it will. President Hoover hopes and seems to expect that it will develop its share of statesmanship. He is an optimist.

DUTIES DISGUISED AS TAXES.

A confused and flustered House of Representatives has turned from its main business of raising revenue to the delightful pastime of levying new tariffs. On Friday the House voted about two to one to put a tariff embargo on petroleum and its products. On Saturday it interpolated a duty on coal into the tax bill. Apparently it is only a matter of time before the Democratic House will place its stamp of approval on a copper tariff. Let any industry that wants an embargo against foreign competitors step up to the counter—that is, if it has any votes to trade.

When the Senate reconvenes on Monday the Democratic leaders will continue their denunciation of the tariff act. They have already advanced claims that exorbitant tariff rates have ruined American foreign trade and plunged the whole world into depression. But neither Senator Harrison's satire nor Senator Hull's diatribe reached the south end of the Capitol. While these stalwarts were invoking the wrath of the gods upon the Smoot-Hawley act, their colleagues in the House were quietly plotting the enactment of the most indefensible duty that has ever been upheld by a House vote.

Democratic leaders in the Senate planned a subtle maneuver. It was their intention to slip through Congress a measure destroying the flexible provision of the tariff law and entangling the President in the mesh of an international economic conference. They judiciously avoided mentioning tariff rates. When cornered on that subject, they backed away with the declaration that any changes they might propose would be vetoed by the President. In this way they hoped to maintain the hollow fallacy that the tariff brought about the depression, without making any move to correct the policy which they denounced.

But the House Democrats have upset the apple cart. They are voting wildly for every tariff measure that is presented to them under the guise of raising revenue. The tax on petroleum imports will raise no revenue. It may raise the price of gasoline to American consumers and cut off the American export market for that product, but as a revenue producer it is worthless.

HOARDING BANKERS.

The controversy between the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Interstate Commerce Commission over a loan to the Missouri Pacific Railroad involves a question of far-reaching importance. Are banks to be permitted to unload their responsibilities upon the Government?

The Missouri Pacific owed New York bankers $11,700,000. The bankers called for payment, and railroad officials asked the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for aid. On the ground that the banks should themselves extend the loan, the Interstate Commerce Commission refused to approve the application for Government funds. Commissioner Eastman's opinion is strong and convincing. It would be to the interest of the bankers themselves, he says, to save the railroad from receivership. Hence, there is no need for using Government funds to "bail out" these banks.

Banks have been extended more aid by the Government than any other class of business enterprise. The National Credit Corporation, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the credit extension act are sources of direct benefit for the banks. The theory behind all of these measures is that financial institutions should be stabilized so that they can extend aid to industry and commerce. But if those institutions are to refuse to perform their functions the aid extended to them will be wasted.

Cowardice and hoarding on the part of bankers will drive the country deeper into depression. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation can not lend money to all the business enterprises in the country. The corporation was created only to supplement existing banking facilities. Failure of the bankers to cooperate will bring down upon their own heads the danger of bank runs and panic.

In the Missouri Pacific case the Reconstruction Corporation compromised by advancing half the money needed to repay the New York loan on condition that the bankers extend the other half of the indebtedness. It should not have been necessary to use any of the reconstruction fund for that purpose. If bankers had the courage and public spirit to use the resources that have been made available to them by Congress, the emergency credit fund could be reserved entirely for constructive purposes for which bank credit is not available.

ENGLAND IS HOPEFUL.

Cheerful England presents something of an anomaly, these days, quite outshining sunny France with new-found optimism. The world at large is no more perplexed to determine just what has caused the great change that has come over Englishmen than the English themselves. There is no doubt, however, that an atmosphere of hope and confidence prevails that was entirely lacking at the close of last year. It is not that the British think they are entirely out of the woods; they know how critical the situation still is in central Europe and in Germany.

Confidence in England's returning financial stability was apparently felt and manifested on the continent even before it was noticed in London. When, following the suspension of gold redemption, with consequent depreciation, there was no wild flight from the pound, no orgy of inflation, no heavy increase in prices, as had occurred in other countries. The Europeans and European nations that had precipitately withdrawn their credits from London felt that there must be something inherently strong and sound behind British finance after all, and investment funds began to flow back again.

This turn in the tide became so strong that the Bank of England has had to resort to heavy selling to keep the pound from mounting too rapidly. England undoubtedly will stabilize her pound again upon a gold basis, but she is not yet ready to do so. Economic conditions are far from being settled as yet and until the effects of a cheaper currency and the new protective tariff policy are determined there is no rational basis of calculation on which to peg a new pound value.

England's import bill remains tremendous, and the imposition of additional tariffs and quota regulations among consumers of British goods is causing much readjustment. Not the least significant of the changes that recently have transpired is a definite improvement in the relations between the Bank of England and the Bank of France. It has resulted not only in a more candid interchange of views on immediate financial matters, but it is believed that it will be advantageous in the adjustment of differences on reparation questions and the relations of the two nations toward Germany.

TABLOID WISDOM.

There is a common belief that folk proverbs arise out of psychological verities in human character, and every one can recall some occasion when the apt quotation of one of these old saws has worked havoc. Rare, indeed, is the individual who has not known the pain of being demolished by an epigram or a witticism. But many of these tabloid examples of popular wisdom rest on highly mercurial foundations, and of this number is the one which declares that "Nobody loves a fat man."

As children we have among our heroes Santa Claus and King Cole, both prodigiously portly and exceedingly jolly. Later, we add to these Falstaff, Sancho Panza and Mr. Samuel Pickwick, with the senior Mr. Weller at the elbow of the last. Surely, the expansive dimensions of these five have been equaled only by the abundance of their charity and our affection.

In life but little more real than that of these creations of literary genius there have been Charlemagne, Henry VIII, Martin Luther, Petrus Stuyvesant and William Penn, all of whom were portly and respected. Edward VII, Grover Cleveland and William Howard Taft stirred the hearts of multitudes, and they were big men in a double significance of the phrase. The late Senator Ollie James was approximately as broad as he was long, but that fact did not deter a legion of friends from loving him. John Bunny, Tom Wise and George Fawcett have had numerous followings, and Gilbert Chesterton and Hilaire Belloc, both of weighty proportions, have enthusiastic readers. Samuel Johnson is probably the best liked figure in the history of English letters, and he was a veritable pudding of a man.

Probably girth has nothing whatever to do with a person's value in the estimation of his fellows. In any case, there are two sides to most of the more familiar axioms of the people. Perhaps rolling stones do gather moss; perhaps all work and no play does not make Jack a dull boy; perhaps there is some sort of honor among thieves. It is worth remembering that if the early bird catches the worm it is the early worm that gets caught. It may be that even the popular notion that one man's opinion is as good as another's—the fundamental tenet of democracy—is somewhat unscientific.

Rudy Vallee says that President Hoover asked him to croon the blues away. If the attitude of radio fans toward crooners is considered, that sounds like an invitation to stay off the air.

Great Britain's decision not to tolerate repudiation of the Irish oath of allegiance makes the Emerald Isle a runner-up on Manchuria for first place in the day's news.

Much talk about which keynoter can bring home the bacon at the Democratic convention. Well, there's one man who can give it a Crisp turn, if you like it that way.

EASTER SYMBOLS

From the New York Times.

The clergyman who would have Easter week symbols banished forgets that the Christian church "planted the seeds of the new faith on the old stock of paganism." It consecrated whatever it touched and made secular things in everyday life holy vessels of its spirit. So the evergreen tree was introduced into the ritual of Christianity. The radiance of the "brief tapers" at Yuletide suggests, as one has said, "the long light of that spiritual dawn where man began his adoration of the trees." The star in its symbolism had a Chaldean precedent, and the tinsel and toys but record the substitution of the "protective charity of mankind" turned against an earlier inhumanity.

Whatever the origin of the symbols which identify this season to children, they have long since lost whatever "pagan" suggestion they may have had in their employment as heralds of a new hope and a transfigured universe. Infancy restored in the fresh view of becoming again as a child gives even to adult life something of "the same hazy but healthy awe" as Chesterton says in his "St. Francis of Assisi," which makes the story of Brer Fox and Brer Rabbit "refer respectfully to Mr. Man." One would like to see St. Francis and Joel Chandler Harris, understanding and speaking the language of beasts and birds, walking arm in arm through the streets lined with the Easter symbolism of reviving life.

They who minister to the sanctities and the happinesses of an existence that has had in it for months so much of drabness and despair are not "commercializing" Holy Week or "paganizing" our children. Rather are they helping to quicken the hope which springs eternal and ever seeks to dramatize man's divinity in the midst of his mortality. The story of the wooden doll in the Nativity Play, that came to life in the arms of the saint who embraced it, is the romance of this mimic pageantry.

It Takes Balanced Men to Balance the Budget.

POST HASTE.

The House should not give up its search; there are probably several other articles on which import taxes could be levied that would be 100 per cent nonproductive.

This is the day when there is more interest in the egg-rollers at the White House than in the log-rollers on the Hill.

Naturally, it wouldn't be nice to make any comparisons between insurgent efficiency in Congress and radical plans to stop the fighting in China by attacking the Japanese Embassy in Washington.

Shades of the Sinn Feiners marched in Dublin yesterday, too. They pronounced it Shinn Fein, putting in an h where there wasn't any, because if it had been there the English would have dropped it.

The last few days disclose that the Democratic national committee, which had become expert in the use of poison gas and stink bombs, is not very good at defensive trench warfare.

Russia is making extensive preparations for defense on the Manchurian border. It will be interesting to see whether the Soviet uses the old or the Japanese definition of defense.

You would think that the embarrassments of an unbalanced party budget would have made the Democrats more careful in the Government's case.

A tax on after-dinner speeches is proposed, but the difficulty is that the listeners would usually demand that it be divided among them.

Those who know Gov. Murray say he has a wonderful fund of knowledge and experience. We have an overabundance of wheat, cotton and oil in that country, too, but we don't handle it very well.

It makes a nice race, the antihoarding campaign putting $1,000,000 back to work for every thousand jobs the legion fills.

If Col. Roosevelt learns how the Philippines managed that surplus he may be useful yet at home.

One editor says the only thing a banker will lend you now is his ear, but another finds him pretty free, too, with his noes.

A good sporting event manager would have taken care of that Democratic deficit with an entrance fee for the grand prix.

The cost of Federal, State, county and municipal government amounts to $40,000,000 a day, and one out of every nine is an official, but the eight are waking up as to who are the plain fish.

What are we going to do about the racketeers except talk?

JUST FOLKS

THE LAUGHING HYENA.

I heard the caged hyena laugh. It chilled the blood of me.
To get from such a craven beast so wild a shriek of glee.

"What is it that you ridicule?" I asked him there and then,
And fancied that I heard him say:
"The boastful race of men.

"I know I am a sullen thing; to viciousness a slave,
Spurred on by hunger there are times
I'll rob a human grave.

"The books of men have writ me down as cowardly and base
Because unto the light of day I seldom show my face.

"But still, hyena though I am, to that I'm reconciled!
'Tis only man who ever thinks to steal a brother's child."

It Is Easy to Make All Men the Same Height if You Use a Knife.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

SHAW says the leaders of other nations are pygmies compared with Stalin.

The truth is that Stalin's "greatness" consists in brutality. He gets results by murdering the opposition.

Take the case of the rich farmers.

The Communist party, which rules Russia with the help of the army and the secret police, comprises only one and one-half per cent of the population. It is a party of city mechanics.

Soon after the revolution was established, its success was threatened by lack of food. The farmers refused to cooperate and raised only enough food for themselves.

Stalin's solution of the problem was to "collectivize" the farms—that is, to persuade the farmers in a given region to pool their land and stock, share the labor under direction of a Communist manager, and then divide the profits equally after the harvest. As an inducement to turn Communist, the farmers were offered tractors to do the work.

As always happens, the poor farmers hailed the scheme with joy and the rich ones turned it down cold. The man who owned ten acres and two pigs knew he would profit by the new arrangement, and the man who had 200 acres, 10 horses and 40 cows knew he would lose.

The plan failed because the well-to-do refused to surrender their advantage.

But Stalin doesn't accept defeat. On December 27, 1929, he issued his infamous order to "liquidate" the rich farmers. To liquidate, in Russia, means to dispose of.

Poor farmers began to assassinate their more prosperous neighbors. Those marked for slaughter fought back. And every farmer who owned pigs and cows began to butcher and eat them rather than have them confiscated.

The struggle lasted two months. When it ended, hundreds of thousands of prosperous farmers were dead, 2,500,000 had been deported to serve at hard labor, and the nation had lost half of its pigs, a third of its sheep and a fourth of its cattle—which accounts for the present meat shortage.

But Stalin had won. Over 60 per cent of all farm land is "collectivized"—which means that the farmers now work for a boss.

Perhaps Stalin is a giant, but he isn't unique. America's racketeers grow great by "liquidating" the opposition in much the same way.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Other Business Pending.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The move to bring the wet-dry fight out into the open and drive the straddlers down from the fence has much to commend it. But it should not be allowed to delay necessary legislation. Thus far there has been splendid work by both sides in putting through the emergency measures. One major job remains—passage of the tax bill and balancing of the budget. Prohibition test votes should not be allowed to delay it. After the tax bill is disposed of nobody will seriously object to any number of test votes.

Back to 1896.

New York Herald Tribune.

There is no issue before the American people today that transcends this one of fiscal integrity. The situation is reminiscent of 1896, when the Democratic party bolted into the wilderness after false gods. Does it wish to repeat that performance or does any one of its leaders who might check the tendency care for the responsibility of even negatively abetting it?

Daniels' Judgment.

Philadelphia Inquirer.

Josephus Daniels, the very peculiar former Secretary of the Navy in the Wilson Administration, says the fact that 6,000,000 men are unemployed indicates the administration has been "weighed in the balance and found wanting." Which inspires the Kansas City Times to remark sarcastically, "Of course the Democratic party, if entrusted with power, would be ready to provide 6,000,000 jobs!"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Federalist Discusses the Immorality of Imposing Unequal Taxes—Honesty Pays, Even in Politics.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with the wanton deletion of the manufacturers' sales tax I beg leave to indulge in a brief homily on political honesty. I think it worthwhile on account of the frequency with which the question of honesty in politics is involved in the making of laws.

In my view there is obvious dishonesty on the part of those who, on the assumption that it is burdensome to the poor, oppose a tax on the necessities of life—clothing, food, medicine, farm machinery—that is, unless their stand may be accounted for by lack of common sense.

The implication of the antisales-tax propaganda that a tax designed to increase the amount of employment is a burden on the unemployed is amazingly absurd. Assuming that the employed are paid according to the American scale of wages, it is absurd to call such a tax a burden on anyone in the sense that it is distressful.

If, in spite of trade competition, the tax were passed on the ultimate consumer, that of "the poor man" of America on his yearly clothing expense would be only a trifle. On the cost of a modest meal of two or three slices of bread, a portion of meat, vegetables, a cut of pie, and cup of coffee, the antisales tax economists may boast that they have saved him from a burden of possibly one cent. No doubt the farmer will be pleased to wait, while a new tax scheme is jerry-rigged, in patriotic contemplation of his untaxed plow.

Perhaps a few of the politicians who in "soaking the rich," have consigned their constituents to the tax-shirking class may profit thereby at the polls. But the political party recognized as "it" in the recent mercenary bid for votes will find itself in a hole, burdened by the thankless task of restoring confidence to the country at large by means of nuisance and class taxation, the political as well as the fiscal expediency of which is questionable.

Thomas Jefferson in the purchase of Louisiana was confronted by the temptation to be politically dishonest. Well-meaning advisers suggested specious arguments to show that the Constitution gave him authority. But rather than stultify himself as a strict constructionist of the Constitution, he brushed the pretense aside and made the purchase on the ground that with reference to the future growth and safety of the republic it was justifiable in order to meet an absolute necessity. He was honest, and his honesty paid in an eventual increase of popularity.

In his farewell address Washington said: "I hold the maxium no less applicable to public than to private affairs, that honesty is always the best policy."

When politicians assume to promote the public welfare by proclaiming that the shortcomings of the rich are inherent and special, as well as when they sugarcoat the pernicious idea that the mob can do no wrong. I recall the homely saying of William Penn: "To do evil that good may come of it is for bunglers in politics as well as morals."

FEDERALIST.

Reader Pays Respects to Columbia Psychologist's Theory of Business Success.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The article written by John J. Daly in your issue of March 22, quoting Prof. J. L. Hollingsworth, head of the Department of Psychology, Columbia University, was of absorbing interest to me. It illustrates clearly to what abysmal depths of ignorance and stupidity these so-called psychologists descend. This professor goes into print to show that old maxim of "Early to bed and early to rise, makes a man wealthy and wise," is worthless.

Success today means late, very late, hours. He says "that early hours are not conducive to big business deals. At the cocktail hour senses become dull; a man then is in much better mood to talk high finance, especially after he is a bit drowsy." Then, he says, "the wide-awake salesman nails him." The salesman goes in the late hours of the night "to the cabarets and the giddy girl shows, the rendezvous of the tired business man."

No Munchausen furnishes such wild tales as this Munchausian professor of psychology. It is so absurdly ridiculous, so devoid of the common sense that it loses its force and is of as little value to students as a last year's bird's nest; it simply lays bare to the public to what extremes of nonsense these men will go to draw a living from the proceeds of the vast donations poured into the treasury of a great university.

The professor says a man to succeed must be dopey, wait for the cocktail hour and take himself to girl shows; he discards the observation of the great scientist and philosopher, Benjamin Franklin, and reverses the common methods which through all ages have held good in every land.

The professor should give a catalogue of his giddy girl shows and the cabarets which are the tired business man's rendezvous" in New York "where these great financial transactions take place." He should also give a list of the wide-awake salesmen who find these dopey business men an easy mark and tell us how the salesmen keep wide awake while the prospects get dopey. Columbia is appealing to its alumni owing to the drop in its revenues. Let them cut out this silly department of psychology which is engaged in slandering the business community. The States are paring down their university appropriations. Let them cut out the expense of a lot of dead timber and dispense with these psychology professors, many of whom are cranks of the first class.

20,000 at Services In Winston-Salem

Largest Crowd in History Present at Moravian Burial Ground.

Winston Salem, N. C., March 27 (A.P.).—Bands, breaking the silence of the hours before dawn with chorals, proclaimed the resurrection of Christ and the Moravian Church's faith in his promise of everlasting life in Old Salem today. Twenty thousand assembled.

Bishop J. Kenneth Pfohl appeared in the tiny portico of the old, ivy-covered church as the first rays of the sunrise struck the trees above the congregation.

"The Lord is risen," the bishop called in a loud, clear voice.

"The Lord is risen indeed," answered the congregation.

With the congregation following him, Bishop Pfohl marched then to "God's Acre," the Moravian burial ground, and the litany service was completed.

There were 300 musicians in the band today and the crowd was the largest to attend the sunrise service, but the service itself was unchanged from the first held here in 1772, by Moravians who came to this country from Hernhut, Germany.

Atlantic City Parade Draws 300,000 Persons

Atlantic City, March 27 (A.P.).—An estimated 300,000 persons flocked to the boardwalk's Easter parade today in spite of a cloudy sky and intermittent rain.

Bright colors predominated among the clothes worn with the women substituting bright scarfs for collars and the men sporting vests lighter or darker than their suits. The sun shone from shortly after noon until 5 o'clock, when showers thinned the crowds.

Coast Easter Rite Draws Thousands

40,000 Present at Sunrise Services at Bowl in Hollywood.

Los Angeles, March 27 (A.P.).—At the dawn of a perfect spring morning thousands of southern California residents today answered the call for Easter worship under the open skies.

The twenty-fourth annual pilgrimage drew an estimated 10,000 to revered Mount Rubidoux, between snowcapped Mount Antonio to the north and Mount San Gorgonio to the east. A throng believed to have numbered 40,000 attended sunrise services in the Hollywood Bowl, while an estimated 20,000 joined in rites at Forest Lawn Memorial Park, in Los Angeles. Many outdoor services were held by individual churches.

Pilgrims tramped to the Serra Memorial Cross, on Mount Rubidoux, throughout the night to hear a chorus of trumpets and vocalists and to join in responsive reading from the Scriptures.

Mr. Zero's Cohorts Parade 5th Avenue

Bowery Habitues in Silk Hats Contrasted With Fashionables.

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—Urbain Ledoux, who calls himself "Mr. Zero" and befriends the poor, led a band of down-and-outs up Fifth avenue today to contrast with the brilliant Easter parade.

Some of the marchers wore high silk hats, dilapidated but rakish. Others wore frayed derbies and all wore gray sweater-coats to ward off the keen spring wind. In front of St. Patrick's Cathedral they were photographed and newsreeled just like the fashionables.

Afterward, Ledoux served them meat, vegetables, cake, coffee and near beer in a Bowery restaurant whence they came. For breakfast they had eaten oatmeal and colored Easter eggs.

Cardinal Says U. S. Will Lead Recovery

Radio Talk From Rome Is Feature of Easter Observance.

Rome, March 27 (A.P.).—America was told tonight by Cardinal Cerretti, protector of several religious organizations there, that the United States is "called by Providence" to play the chief part in a return to world prosperity.

Fear must be banished and hope must prevail, the cardinal said in an Easter message to the United States, broadcast by radio in English from the basilica of Santa Maria Maggiore, one of Rome's oldest and most beautiful churches. White and gold supplanted the black of Lent today as this mother city of the Catholic Church translated into colorful ritual the drama of Christ's resurrection.

Pope Pius XI said his Easter mass in the Sistine Chapel in the presence of his relatives, many prelates and former King Manuel of Portugal. Tens of thousands attended the ceremonies in St. Peter's this morning. Among them were nearly the whole American colony, Catholics or not, for it is an old custom here to visit St. Peter's on Easter Sunday morning.

2 Girls Comprise Baltimore Parade

They Brave Rain to Show Off Their Easter Finery.

Baltimore, March 27 (A.P.).—Only two girls ventured out into the rain today to participate in Baltimore's Easter parade, according to policemen stationed along North Charles street, where the city's society, in their finery usually march on Easter.

The girls, one dressed in a spring coat of red and the other in a powder blue suit, were at the starting point at 3 o'clock. They hurried up the street as the 200 policemen, with raincoats over their new dress uniforms, directed the heavy motor traffic.

Approximately 5,000 persons attended the sunrise services at Druid Hill Park, where a pageant, illustrating the visit of Mary Magdalene, Peter and John, to the empty tomb of Jesus, was given. Only a few umbrellas were raised during the service, in spite of the slight drizzling rain. The offering was given for the aid of unemployed in Baltimore.

CIVIC CLUB LEADERS TO CONVENE TODAY

Fourth Annual Meeting of Executives to Be Held at Mayflower.

The fourth annual meeting of the Association of Civic Service Club Executives, representing thousands of civic leaders throughout the country, will be held at the Mayflower Hotel today.

Invocation will be pronounced by Dr. Charles E. Roth promptly at 10 o'cock this morning, and after the informal introduction of members and guests, the meeting will proceed to reports of the various committees.

The association will recess shortly before noon to attend the reception by the President at the Executive Offices. At the close of the afternoon meeting the members will be conducted on a sight-seeing trip through the city. A banquet tonight will conclude the session.

Dr. Everett M. Ellison, one of the national directors of the association, and Robert L. McKeever and Col. John Thomas Taylor are in charge of convention arrangements.

Manhattan Easter Parade Undaunted by Cloudy Sky

Expensive Motor Cars Are Left at Home as Society Folk Join Thousands of Promenaders on Park and Fifth Avenues.

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—Gardenias sold for 25 cents, orchids were rare, but the Easter parade today was as generously topped with sleek silk hats and bonnets as ever.

Overhead skies carrying a threat of rain and below 50 temperatures did not daunt the throng of fashionables strutting in spring finery along Park and Fifth avenues.

Long before the 11 o'clock services, Easter morning worshipers stood in long lines before the portals of St. Bartholomew's in Park avenue and St. Thomas' and St. Patrick's in Fifth.

Hundreds were unable to crowd into the edifices.

Expensive motor cars were left at home as society folk joined the thousands of promenaders. Flower peddlers did a sell-out business. Society writers and photographers scribbled descriptions and "snapped" the notables.

Several thousand persons emerged in the chill of dawn to attend sunrise services on the campus of Columbia University. In the course of a prayer the Rev. Herbert E. Evans, of Columbia, asked forgiveness "for our wearing of pretty clothes and pretty things, and the pride and joy we take in earthly things."

Worshipers at St. Patrick's received the papal benediction from Cardinal Hayes.

While blue and beige are the most popular colors of the season, black figured most in the Easter parade. White was used considerably for contrast. Costumes of brown, red or green also were noted, and there were many bright hats of yellow, red or brilliant green.

The silhouette was generally tailored with suits more in favor than coats. Most costumes were trimmed with collars of fur, fox predominating.

Hats were generally narrow brimmed and shallow crowned. The brims turned up in the back. Little trimming was seen, though flat flower effects were employed in some instances on the dressier hats. Sailors were noted and a large number of turbans matching in color and fabric the costume were popular. A new feature were the little flared veils that just shaded the eyes.

EASTER RITES WELL ATTENDED DESPITE INCLEMENT WEATHER

when she will entertain 300 children of Government officials at a party inside the White House, prior to the annnual egg rolling festival. Plans are going forward for the egg rolling despite the soaked ground and predictions of the Weather Man for more rain.

Several hundred attended the sunrise service at Walter Reed Hospital, where the colors of a tableau, depicting the resurrection of Christ, gleamed through the falling rain and hymns of joy from a large chorus dispersed all thoughts of the depressing atmosphere. Col. Julian E. Yates, chief of chaplains of the U. S. Army, preached the sermon.

Services at Washington Cathedral were attended by more than 5,000 pilgrims and worshipers. Men and women of national prominence mingled at the services and in the crypts with hundreds of school students from various sections of the country, who had come to the National Capital for their Easter holidays.

Many at Wilson's Tomb.

Many of the visitors waited for hours to file by the tomb of President Wilson in Bethlehem Chapel, where a cluster of Easter lilies had been placed beneath the carved wooden canopy of the sacrophagus, bearing the text, "I am the Resurrection and the Life, Saith the Lord."

The Very Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl, dean of Washington, who preached at the 11 o'clock celebration of Holy Communion, took as the theme of his sermon the first discourse of Christ on His resurrection in which He told His disciples of His fulfillment of the prophet's words that he would die and rise again from the dead.

Bishop Freeman was the celebrant at this communion service. Simultaneous overflow services were held in the crypt chapels of the Resurrection and of St. Joseph of Arimathea.

Urges Religious Awakening.

Preaching at the 4 o'clock evensong service in Bethlehem Chapel, Bishop Freeman observed that the promise of Christ of "a new life," given through His resurrection, held a great significance for the troubled world of today. "If the world in its present slough of despond," he said, "turns to steadfast belief in the teachings of God and Christ with a new spiritual uplift, this slough through which we are now passing will prove the greatest of blessings to the world when better times return."

Among the worshipers at the morning service were Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, accompanied by her sister, Miss Bolling, and attending the 9:30 a. m. celebration of Holy Communion: Herbert L. Satterlee, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy in President Roosevelt's Cabinet, and Mrs. Satterlee, of New York; Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice chairman of the Republican national committee; Miss Bessie Kibbey, of Washington, who helped the late Bishop Satterlee purchase the land for the Cathedral site; Corcoran Thom, treasurer of the Cathedral Chapter, and Mrs. James E. Freeman, wife of the bishop, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Raymond L. Wolven, and her son, William V. Freeman.

Gen. Pershing Present.

Gen. John J. Pershing, chairman of the national committee for Washington Cathedral, was among the worshipers at the evensong service. He was accompanied by his son, Warren, and his sister, Miss May Pershing, of Lincoln, Nebr.

Among the hundreds of pilgrims escorted through the Cathedral by Canon John W. Gummere and the staff of lay pilgrims aids was a group from the Bradford (Pa.) High School, who gave a stone for the Cathedral fabric. This school gave a stone to the Cathedral last year.

Washington's Easter parade this year was one of automobiles and a bobbing sea of umbrellas. Gay hats and dresses, especially purchased for the day, were seen only in churches and in homes, rather than under sparkling sunshine as in many past years.

Churches were well filled, but it was apparent that many who would have attended the services remained at home listening to services over the radio. In the afternoon many of the 50,000 visitors reported to be in the city, resolved not to be disappointed, braved the intermittent showers to visit the Lincoln Memorial, the Monument and other points of interest. Traffic on Mount Vernon boulevard was "just average," park police reported.

Zoo Popular Place.

The Zoo proved popular, several thousand visitors filing through the snake house and packing the other animal houses. Today, however, is the big one of the year at the Zoo when hundreds of children, supplementing those at the White House, romp on the undulating slopes for an Easter egg rolling. Easter Monday last year, also rainy and cold, attracted 30,000 children to the White House grounds, and the year before, a day of sunshine, 48,000 appeared.

Theaters were packed throughout yesterday afternoon and last night and all hotel rooms were taken. Many of the visitors are planning to remain in the Capital for the better part of this week with the hope that early spring sunshine will break through the slated sky. The weather man predicts cessation of rain and fair skies by tomorrow.

What Today Means

"ARIES,"

IF March 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:10 a. m. to 9:45 a. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8:15 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p. m. and from 9:40 p. m. to 11 p. m.

Astrological influences on March 28 are of a neutral nature, and no events, good or bad, are shown to modify the usual current of your life. An attitude of indifference to life in general will be taken, and things which might prove of interest or benefit will pass by unnoticed. An approaching storm within the family circle may be felt during the evening hours.

The child born on this March 28 will delight in active sports, will be fond of pets and will have a bright and cheerful disposition. It will take its part in the world in an unselfish way and will have a daring, driving spirit. It will not "hide its light under a bushel," and will like to be both seen and heard.

Born on March 28, you have been endowed by nature with more than a full measure of intelligence, perseverance and attractability. You are competent without being fussily efficient. You seem to do most everything with a large degree of ease, and this is due to your ability of keeping your mind focused on the thing in hand more than to any innate skill. You will cling to your interests all through life, and will never allow your mind to become dormant or to lose any of its elasticity. You are not always thinking of self, and if modesty and too much unselfishness are faults, you possess them.

You take a delightful interest in other people in a kindly, helpful way. You are not of a suspicious nature and are not pryingly inquisitive. You will never have to be taught the give-and-take of loyal companionship. You are always ready to assume too large a share of the burdens going around. You are fond of reading and discussion, and intelligent companionship is essential to your happiness. You are not a great success at small talk and hate to listen to prattle.

Both men and women born on a March 28 will have an essential longing for family life, and will always try to create for themselves some semblance of a home.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

Excessive Oiliness of the Skin Easier to Check Than Blackheads or Acne

EXCESSIVE oiliness of the skin is much easier to check than blackheads and acne which often result from overactivity of the oil glands. The oily surface attracts dust and grime and soon falls prey to blackheads, eruptions and enlarged pores. Persistent care is necessary and the woman troubled with oily skin should set aside a few minutes every single day for the correction of this condition. An oily condition of the skin is easily recognized. It is overmoist, usually shiny and in extreme cases unwholesome looking. Powder soon mixes with the oil and forms a sticky, pasty mass, will not cling and does not last long.

Elsie Pierce.

Simple Diet Important.

Too many sweets, fatty foods, starches in the diet often force an excess amount of oil through the glands. More fruits and vegetables should be included in the diet, and less pastries and desserts.

Daily elimination is also important. If the bowels are clogged with waste, the entire system can be poisoned. The warm cleansing bath at night and cold shower in the morning will help keep the skin clean and the circulation stimulated.

Treament.

Now we come to the local treatment. Cleansing is the first step and the most important. A mild bland soap, warm water, and either a soft complexion brush or wash cloth. Work up a good lather. Now rinse thoroughly using warm water. Tincture of green soap is very good for the oily skin, or a mild toilet soap. A cleansing cream may be used occasionally or the cleansing lotions which are growing more and more popular for this type of skin.

The next step is to tone the skin, stimulate the oil glands to proper functioning. For this brisk patting with a good skin tonic is recommended. Don't merely sponge the skin but slap with cotton moistened with the tonic. If the pores have become slightly enlarged this tonic will tend to refine the texture.

If a cleansing cream is used for cleansing be sure to follow with this tonic treatment.

The treatment outlined is all that the oily skin needs. It is not necessary nor advisable to burden it with more crgam. But be sure to give the delicate tissues around the eyes their nightly creaming, as this area is seldom oily; it is usually inclined to be dry and a little lubrication will keep the skin soft and wrinkle-free.

Health rules, diet and exercise are very important—and if you wish to have any bulletins on these three subjects, send self-addressed, stamped envelope for them.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

THE SUNLESS GARDEN.

SUNLESS gardens frequently mean no gardens, which is a pity, for with a little forethought devoted to their planning, small gardens shaded by tall buildings can be made real havens of rest and beauty places where we are wont to linger.

As I have said so often in this column, flowering plants must have sun—not necessarily sun during the entire day, but during at least a part of the day.

The following plants are all flowering and—with the exception of the spring-flowering bulbs—while not gorgeous, they are beautiful and worth while in every way.

Let me first suggest myrtle. This is the low-growing little plant with small starlike flowers, known in some localities as the periwinkle. This always does well when once established. It is splendid for planting under trees where grass refuses to live. Being hardy, it will survive the most severe winter weather.

Forget-me-nots also do well in partial shade. They must, however, have sun for a couple of hours each day. Forget-me-nots can be set out at any time, and they will quickly take hold and continue to flower until frost. When the flowers begin to fade or open smaller than they did when you planted them, cut them back and encourage them to send out a new set of branches tipped with large, perfectly formed flowers. Also keep the dead blossoms removed, for it is only by so treating them that you can be sure of more and more flowers. Forget-me-nots require a great deal of moisture.

Tuberous-rooted begonias get along very well in partial shade; in fact, they crave such an environment. This variety of begonia, however, needs a rich soil and should never be kept with "wet feet"—meaning that they should be planted in well-drained loam. Do not forget that none of the begonia family is hardy, and that the tuberous-rooted varieties must have their bulbs lifted in the fall, to be kept in a dark, dry warm place until spring.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

Semiformal afternoon ensemble for spring, in two-piece effect, and two shades of blue. The material is lightweight wool, and the skirt is stitched to follow the lines of the bodice. (Courtesy Dupouy Magnin, Paris.)

NEW YORK, March 27.—How about starting out this bright Monday morning after Easter, with an exact description of what a chic and elegant Parisienne would wear, this very morning? In town, that is, meaning Paris of course. Also at Cannes, meaning the Riviera. And watch closely now, and see how truly clever the color combinations are * * * and how unobvious, if I may use the word.

Paris—Morning, strolling in the Bois, which is what all elegant Parisiennes do on spring mornings! A "costume" of brown woolen material, hat of green grosgrain with ribbon of black and red. Belt and bag matching and in green crocodile. And she carries a cigarette case that matches the bag, separately! Shoes with walking heels are of brown kid, stitched with green. And gloves of beige doeskin, brown buttoned and stitched.

Now, at Cannes, on the boardwalk of a morning; wearing a yellow woolen tailleur. Beret of woven brown straw with a red and yellow "fantaisie." Tailleur belted with a woven belt of fawn and white thongs, the fawn stitched in black, and bag matching this belt. Shoes combine white doeskin with faun colored kid, gloves white, and massive silver bracelets.

* * * *

And well, since we have the room, shall we follow Miladi Chic through to the afternoon?

Paris—Blue crepe de chine gown. Hat in paper panama blue and grege, with red feather. Belt on frock is blue leather, stitched in a red and grege design. Shoes and bag in blue crocodile. And white suede gloves with large, soft cuffs. Light weight woolen coat in darker blue, with blue fox fur collar.

Cannes (afternoon)—Red crepe dress, black braided and shiny straw hat with fruit trimming of various shades of red. Black lizard bag, round in shape, black crepe shoes with silver buckle, matching silver buckle on belt. Gloves demilong, large loose cuffs, and of fawn colored suede.

More of this anon.

One of the new, so lightweight and dull-surfaced woolens made the Dupouy Magnin afternoon ensemble I sketch today. In two pieces and two shades of blue, ultramarine, and navy. And the skirt stitched all over to follow the lines of the bodice trimming. This is a very good example of the informal afternoon ensembles of the season, which are more elaborate than morning wear, yet less elaborate than 5 o'clock afternoon wear—which, in turn, is less elaborate than "bar wear!" I'll just have to tell you about this tomorrow, so watch for it—it's too amusing!

A special sort of an underskirt with a fitted or guimpe top which makes of it a complete costume slip for the very new frocks that show bodice tightness between the bust and belt line. That's what this week's illustrated leaflet is on * * * how to make this underskirt.

Really it's designed for the six-in-one dress I designed for you some weeks ago, but would suit any dress. 'N if you want to make the underskirt without the bodice guimpe top, it is just the right model for long evening gowns, my deah—gored, simple to make, taking the least possible amount of material. Better send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post quickly!

* * * *

Paris calls it the "Bob" hat—and the version I sketched in the circle, of green grosgrain ribbon and rough, light green straw, is a perfect example. Note the rolled brim—very popular for spring.

Au revoir!

After-Easter Menu, Tempting and Inexpensive.

HAM from Sunday's repast probably rests on the larder shelf today, but since this meat formed our piece de resistance so recently as yesterday let's skip a day and go on to Tuesday in planning a first reconstructed dish for the ham. And let us make it a tasty dish, a hot one, and one a little different. Oh, yes, I know it's easy to "slice the ham and cream a few potatoes," but ham timbales would taste so good and are so very little more effort.

TUESDAY'S DINNER.

Ham Timbales
Noodle Ring in Spinach Center
One-Egg Muffins
Fresh Fruit Salad with
Honey Salad Dressing
Saltines
Tea or Coffee

Ham Timbales.

1 cupful cooked ham, chopped
1 cupful bread crumbs, stale
1 cupful milk
3 tablespoons butter
2 egg whites
½ teaspoonful salt
Dash of pepper

Cook the milk and crumbs until of the consistency of a smooth paste. Then add ham, butter, salt and pepper. Next fold in the egg whites which have been beaten until stiff. Fill well-greased mold or individual molds two-thirds full with the mixture. Set in a pan of hot water, cover with a greased paper and bake in a moderate oven for about 20 minutes or until firm. Turn on a hot serving dish and garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Noodle Ring With Spinach Center.

Boil a package of noodles in salted water until tender and drain in a colander. Pour cold water through the noodles and set aside to drain thoroughly. Mix two tablespoonfuls of butter with the noodles and place in a butter ring mold which has been well sprinkled with fine bread crumbs. Cover with grated cheese and a cupful of thin white sauce mixed together and place in the oven preferably in a pan of water as a custard, and bake for an hour. Unmold on a heated round platter and in the center place two cupfuls of hot cooked spinach seasoned to taste with salt and pepper. Serve at once.

One-Egg Muffins.

2 cups flour
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 cup milk
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg

Mix and sift the dry ingredients, then add the milk gradually, the egg, well beaten, and the melted butter. Bake in buttered gem pans 25 minutes.

Fresh Fruit Salad With Honey Salad Dressing.

1 grapefruit
½ cup white grapes
2 oranges
1 cup fresh pineapple
½ cup berries
12 marshmallows
Lettuce

Peel and remove outside skin and seeds from grapefruit and oranges. Wash and remove seeds from grapes. Peel and dice pineapple. Wash and hull strawberries. Cut marshmallows in quarters. Wash, drain and crisp the lettuce leaves. Mix all the fruits, tossing in large bowl lightly so as not to break the fruit. Add marshmallows and mix. Pile on lettuce leaves. Serve with honey dressing.

Honey Salad Dressing.

3 egg yolks, beaten
½ cup strained honey
½ cup lemon juice
1 grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon sugar
½ pint heavy cream, whipped

Mix eggs, honey, sugar, lemon juice and rind. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened. When cold, add two tablespoons of this mixture to the whipped cream.

THE WEIGHT GUIDE.

For individual assistance write to Nancy Carey, sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope and give age, weight, height and habits of life.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey—Some time ago I wrote for your reducing menus. At that time I weighed 183 pounds and now I weigh 118—a loss of 65 pounds. It is easy to say, but not so easy to accomplish. However, it was well worth the effort. I am 5 feet 2½ inches tall and 29 years old. Unless I am very careful, I gain easily, and for that reason would like to have the recipes for stretched butter and whipped cream which you once mentioned in your column. They would help so very much. Thanking you, I am,

MRS. L. T.

Congratulations are very much in order, Mrs. L. T., for not only is 65 pounds no small loss, but it requires a great deal more will-power and determination than most of us possess. You must, and, indeed, should, feel quite proud of yourself. For your age and height you should weigh about 122 pounds. Don't try to reduce further: it is unnecessary and not to be advised. Concentrate all your efforts on maintaining your present weight. This means that there will be a perfect balance between your food intake and your supply of energy. There will be no loss of weight and no gain, for all the food eaten will be used. It is necessary, too, while you watch your calories, to keep from gaining weight, to see that you are securing an ample supply of the foods which will preserve your health—the vital, vitamin-rich foods so very, very necessary.

You should have about 1,850 calories daily to keep your present weight and should plan your menus accordingly. We have a sample maintenance diet, which we shall be very glad to send you. Once you have started, you will find it quite simple to arrange your own meals along similar lines. Very likely you will have to make changes to meet your own requirements, but just be sure to watch your scales.

We shall be glad, of course, to send you the recipes for stretched butter, whipped cream, &c., which our readers have found so helpful. All that we ask is a self-addressed, stamped envelope together with your request.

The Proof of the Padding is in the eating, they say. And when you have tried our new recipes for simple, inexpensive desserts there will be "eating" and "proof" aplenty. They are all so delicious and so easy and economical to prepare that inexperienced cooks will treasure them and those more skilled in the art of cooking delight in their varied suggestions.

Send for it today. All that is necessary is a self-addressed, stamped envelope and your request.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

THE EFFECT OF DRAFTS.

FOR a long time the draft cranks had hard sledding. They could not prove their points, and they were ridiculed, called neurotics and pronounced a nuisance generally. In recent years more delicate instruments for measuring surface temperatures have been made available. Many experimenters have used these refined instruments on various parts of the human body. All the reports agree that the draft cranks were right in their essential points. With this proof to back them up they are now in the saddle, and they can chase their erstwhile ridiculers all over the lot. Maybe they are forgiving cusses and will turn the other cheek.

A recent contribution, supporting others which have gone before on all major points, comes from Dr. C. E. A. Winslow, of Yale, and his associates. These observers worked with about 80 students. They found that the temperature of different parts of the body varied greatly. In the most extreme case the skin of the feet was 12 degrees Fahrenheit colder than the skin elsewhere.

Changing the temperature of the atmosphere 10 degrees caused a variation of about 5 degrees in the temperature of the skin in certain areas. Within limits there was a change of 1 degree in skin temperature for each 2 degrees of change in the temperature of the air. They found abundant evidence that cold hands and cold feet were actualities and not figments of the imagination.

The areas tested were the skin of the trunk, thighs, feet, hands, face and the mucous membranes of the nose and mouth. Of these, the mucous membrane of the mouth was the mostly nearly stable. There was all kinds of evidence that exposing the skin of the face, and even that of the feet and hands, would alter the temperature of the mucous membrane lining the nose.

After exposure of the hands to cold, and the preliminary drop in the temperature of the skin thereof, there was likely to be a rather prompt and adequate reaction. This warming up, following chilling, was slower in coming and less complete in the skin of the feet. In other words, cold feet tend to stay cold longer and require more warming than is the case with hands.

Exposure of one part of the body to heat or to cold is liable to change the temperature of distant parts. Many of these changes register in the nose. But in this experience exposure to cold did not induce attacks of coryza. The subjects of this experiment were entitled to catch a fresh cold every day—to have at least one fresh attack of coryza in every 24 hours—if we are right in thinking that getting wet or being chilled causes this disorder. On the other hand, in this prolonged experiment on many men, only one contracted coryza.

GET MEDICAL ATTENTION.

Mrs. G. writes: I am 30 years old, the mother of three children, and in very good health. About two weeks ago I started waking up nights with one hand, arm, and elbow "asleep." Rubbing and exercising seemed of no avail, but when I got up and moved around they would become normal. However, during the last week this numbness never leaves my fingers and during the night they are not only numb but there is pain in each joint in the fingers, wrist, and elbow. I am still able to do my work, but am conscious of my hand every minute and it is very annoying.

REPLY.

You have neuritis in the nerves of your arm. Pressure was a factor and may still be. It calls for medical attention.

THE BACK SLAPPER.

H. A. D. writes: Please write an article on the good hearted guy who is always slapping you on the back. I have been dismantled on three different occasions the last year by such antics from the village cut-ups. The last slap I was laid up for three days. Is there any good reason for this barbaric practice among humans?

REPLY.

I don't know what to write. Those whacks on the back sound big and hard, but they are mostly sound. There is no basis for the legend that the art of the chiropractor is a derivative of back slapping. The force of this boisterous greeting is never great enough to knock the backbone out of joint, or in. It may jar your upper plate out. No one slapped George Washington on the back because of the danger of knocking his plates for a goal.

But that is not exactly to the point. Your objection is that it is not the drawing room method. No one greets a grand duke that way.

A TRICK AND A HALF.

DISASTER is certain at Contract if Opening bids are not sound. One's first duty, therefore, is to pass if one's honor strength is not up to standard. Otherwise a house may be built on sand, foredoomed to spectacular collapse.

But one's second duty—not inferior in importance to the first—is to show one's partner if a hand, not strong enough to bid on originally, has anything in it at all. The making of game may turn upon this intimation. For a game bid, combined hands (unless distribution is especially favorable) need 5½ to 6 honor-tricks. Now quite often 4 to 4½ honor-tricks are in one hand (insufficient for an initial Forcing bid) and 1 to 1½ honor-tricks in the other, but unless the weaker hand cooperates in the bidding, the fact that sufficient combined strength is available will never come to light.

It was to meet this familiar situation that the negative response of one notrump was devised. This is one of the key ideas of the Forcing System. It is based on the principle that, where once a strong hand has been shown by partner, possible support, though as little as a trick and a half, must be made known. On a trick and a half (in honor strength) a Takeout into one notrump can, at worst, do no harm. The strong minimum prescribed for an Opening suit bid insured this, and it may enable a second suit to be shown and the bidding continued, with the result that game is eventually reached.

Here is a simple case in point from the first Anglo-American test match:

East-West vulnerable.

	♠ 9 7 ♡ J 8 4 3 ◇ K 4 2 ♣ A J 6 5
♠ 10 2 ♡ A 9 5 ◇ 10 8 6 3 ♣ K 9 4 2	N W E S	♠ K Q 4 3 ♡ Q ◇ Q J 9 7 5 ♣ Q 7 3
	♠ A J 8 6 5 ♡ K 10 7 6 3 ◇ A ♣ 10 8

At the table where England sat North and South, the bidding of this hand was as follows:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

South thus played the hand in one spade, North, with his weak spades and indifferent hand, not thinking support worth while, and North-South, making 9 tricks, scored 130 points.

At our North-South table, however, the negative Takeout was used with great effect. Here the bidding went:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
1NT	Pass	2♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Let me explain the significance of the North-South bids.

North: Pass. "I have less strength than 2½ honor-tricks. I can not, therefore, open the bidding."

South: One spade. "I have at least 2½ honor-tricks—rather more, as I am bidding third in hand—and a promising spade suit. If spades are trump, I have at least 4 playing-tricks."

North: One notrump. "I can not support you in spades, but it is worth my keeping the bidding alive, since we may find something else. You can count on me for about 1½ honor-tricks."

South: Two hearts. "Very well, then, let us have a shot at hearts. Here, too, I have a biddable suit. You may have distributional values which, with your 1½ honor-tricks, will give us a chance of game here."

North: Four hearts. "Yes, I think I have. My hearts are fairly strong and, since we are not vulnerable, it will pay us to take our chance."

Result: Ten tricks in hearts, and 420 points, a gain, at the Duplicate game, of 290 points, through the showing of a trick and a half.

It will be noticed that, in the case of this hand, the combined honor strength of North and South is a bare 4½ tricks, but exceptionally favorable distributional values compensate for this.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Jump Takeout With Three Notrump.

This implies about the same honor strength as is required for a Forcing Takeout—that is, 3 to 3½ honor-tricks. The difference is that the three notrump response denies a biddable suit. Where there is a five-card biddable suit, though only a minor, this should always be preferred.

Example:

Opening bid is one heart.

½	♠ K 2	½
1½	♡ A Q 3 2	2½
½	◇ Q J 7 6	1
½	♣ Q J 2	½
3 honor-tricks		4½ honor-tricks at hearts

Response is three notrump.

1½	♠ A Q 4
0	♡ 7 6
1	◇ A 10 3 2
-½	♣ K 5 4 3
3 honor-tricks

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES McDONALD

BOORS FOR HUSBANDS.

DEAR Frances McDonald: Perhaps you may think my tale of woe very trivial, but to me it is all-important, and I hope you can give me some advice in regard to my difficulty.

I have been married five years and it has been one humiliation and embarrassment after another. You see, my husband has no regard for the decencies and courtesies due a wife or any woman for that matter. If we enter a restaurant he will not remove his hat unless it is absolutely necessary. He will sit at a table with his hat on, even though there may be a hook just above the table. Then he will start reading a paper at the table, and there I sit ready to explode, but what can I do in a public place? When I remonstrate with him afterward, he says stay home if you don't like my ways. When we are in a crowd, it is always one of the other gentlemen who sees to my wants. My husband never will open a door for me, but always goes first and lets the door slam on me without holding it open.

When we were engaged his lack of manners was very different, and I taught him many things which he always promised to do and did when we were engaged. But now that we are married his manners are so gross that I can't stand him. He is educated, makes a fine living, but he just won't act like a gentleman should. At home it is the same thing. He throws match sticks on the floor, telling me I should take care of such things. If we cross a street, he is always ahead of me, never assisting me across or watching that I reach the other side safely. I always wanted a man with gentlemanly manners. I always looked for that in a man first, but I see what a disappointment I got. Would you stay home rather than be seen in public with such a man? Sometimes I feel as though I never want to go out with him again, but then I am all alone here and it gets lonesome in the house all day and I feel as though I must go out. But when I go through that humiliation, I think it is better to stay home.

Is there any way to cure him from acting that way in public? Sometimes I feel like knocking the hat right off his head in public. What would you do? Leave him or what?

I hope you won't think my letter boring and will excuse its length.

BITTER.

Your letter is neither boring nor unusual. You are one of the many young women who have accepted a man on his own terms rather than risk a life devoid of his society. He rates you accordingly and insults you at will. It is hard to account for the fact that you have ever accompanied him a second time to a restaurant if, as you say, he eats with his hat on. It seems strange that he should be permitted to do so. But certainly if you endured the embarrassment of such conspicuous and erratic behavior and then went out with him again there is no reason why he should take very seriously your weak objections.

One of the reasons for the mounting divorce rate is the eagerness with which young women of good family and decent connections grasp any matrimonial offer without consideration of the man's background and birth. Any port in a storm seems to be their slogan. It is next to impossible to change the manners of an adult human being. Manners are a part of an individual, inculcated from infancy—or lacking. You can never make a gentleman of the individual you describe. Your course is to decide what you want to do. In offering the excuse that you accompany him and suffer these indignities rather than remain at home you prove that you have not yet really decided whether you approve or disapprove the man's insulting behavior. You are like the man who wrote me that his wife had disappeared, leaving no trace and taking his child with her, but he was writing not about that catastrophe, but to know whether the landlord could hold him to his lease. Decide the relative importance of the issues. Then act.

It may help you some to accept the fact that few women would live with such a man. But you must decide for yourself.

ANSWERS TO THE QUESTION HEARD FROM EVERY TONGUE.

(The query being, usually in doleful tones, "What do you suppose caused it all?")

1. The people of the country not only believed unqualifiedly in Santa Claus, but thought there were two of him.

2. Everybody accepted the statement "America is a going concern" without noticing where it is going or allowing for the occasional detour, grade crossing, sharp turn and dead-end street.

3. We were so exhilarated that, facing backward on a ride down the toboggan, we thought we were going uphill.

4. We had become so softened up by easy living that we mistook any challenge for a little hard work as just another suggestion that we take a little light exercise 10 minutes each day.

5. Too many people who should have been attending to business were out in the woods looking for lost golf balls.

6. People were so accustomed to easy money that they felt a little annoyed when the daily weather report didn't read: "Today—Fair and continued bullish; tomorrow much warmer with frequent splitups in all portions."

7. Too many of us had ceased to live by the rules of reason, the Bible and the laws of common sense and were living by the rules of the Amalgamated Association of Perpetual Picnic and Continuous Clambake Promoters.

8. We had an idea that joy-riding was the handmaiden of business efficiency and the big sister to financial independence.

9. Too many people thought the definition of thrift was: Something a man exercises when he buys a $35,000 house for $800 cash.

10. An oracle was generally believed to be a barber with visions of grandeur; a prophet was always somebody who had a friend who knew somebody who knew something important, if true.

11. We mistook the roar of the approaching cyclone for another group of basso friends trying to whisper momentous inside information on another impending stock dividend.

12. We went paddling on the edge of Niagara Falls on the bedtime story of the man next door that it was good, clean fun and very healthful.

13. We believed prosperity was run on the nonstop principle and that if the battery went dead it could be revived by pressing a White House button.

14. Only about 20 per cent of us knew when the parade was over; we thought the spectacle of the boys running rapidly in all directions was just a part of a pageant with a pretty name like "The Festival of the Soft Money and the Shower of Jewels."

15. We had become so accustomed to caviar, filet of humming birds' wings and three table wines with every meal, we completely forgot the safe old American axiom that it is always a good idea to have something in the ice box from which to make old-fashioned hash.

If this pain would leave my back!

Excessive Oiliness of the Skin Easier to Check Than Blackheads or Acne

EXCESSIVE oiliness of the skin is much easier to check than blackheads and acne which often result from overactivity of the oil glands. The oily surface attracts dust and grime and soon falls prey to blackheads, eruptions and enlarged pores. Persistent care is necessary and the woman troubled with oily skin should set aside a few minutes every single day for the correction of this condition. An oily condition of the skin is easily recognized. It is overmoist, usually shiny and in extreme cases unwholesome looking. Powder soon mixes with the oil and forms a sticky, pasty mass, will not cling and does not last long.

Elsie Pierce.

Simple Diet Important.

Too many sweets, fatty foods, starches in the diet often force an excess amount of oil through the glands. More fruits and vegetables should be included in the diet, and less pastries and desserts.

Daily elimination is also important. If the bowels are clogged with waste, the entire system can be poisoned. The warm cleansing bath at night and cold shower in the morning will help keep the skin clean and the circulation stimulated.

Treament.

Now we come to the local treatment. Cleansing is the first step and the most important. A mild bland soap, warm water, and either a soft complexion brush or wash cloth. Work up a good lather. Now rinse thoroughly using warm water. Tincture of green soap is very good for the oily skin, or a mild toilet soap. A cleansing cream may be used occasionally or the cleansing lotions which are growing more and more popular for this type of skin.

The next step is to tone the skin, stimulate the oil glands to proper functioning. For this brisk patting with a good skin tonic is recommended. Don't merely sponge the skin but slap with cotton moistened with the tonic. If the pores have become slightly enlarged this tonic will tend to refine the texture.

If a cleansing cream is used for cleansing be sure to follow with this tonic treatment.

The treatment outlined is all that the oily skin needs. It is not necessary nor advisable to burden it with more crgam. But be sure to give the delicate tissues around the eyes their nightly creaming, as this area is seldom oily; it is usually inclined to be dry and a little lubrication will keep the skin soft and wrinkle-free.

Health rules, diet and exercise are very important—and if you wish to have any bulletins on these three subjects, send self-addressed, stamped envelope for them.

Interpreting the Mode

Semiformal afternoon ensemble for spring, in two-piece effect, and two shades of blue. The material is lightweight wool, and the skirt is stitched to follow the lines of the bodice. (Courtesy Dupouy Magnin, Paris.)

NEW YORK, March 27.—How about starting out this bright Monday morning after Easter, with an exact description of what a chic and elegant Parisienne would wear, this very morning? In town, that is, meaning Paris of course. Also at Cannes, meaning the Riviera. And watch closely now, and see how truly clever the color combinations are * * * and how unobvious, if I may use the word.

Paris—Morning, strolling in the Bois, which is what all elegant Parisiennes do on spring mornings! A "costume" of brown woolen material, hat of green grosgrain with ribbon of black and red. Belt and bag matching and in green crocodile. And she carries a cigarette case that matches the bag, separately! Shoes with walking heels are of brown kid, stitched with green. And gloves of beige doeskin, brown buttoned and stitched.

Now, at Cannes, on the boardwalk of a morning; wearing a yellow woolen tailleur. Beret of woven brown straw with a red and yellow "fantaisie." Tailleur belted with a woven belt of fawn and white thongs, the fawn stitched in black, and bag matching this belt. Shoes combine white doeskin with faun colored kid, gloves white, and massive silver bracelets.

* * * *

And well, since we have the room, shall we follow Miladi Chic through to the afternoon?

Paris—Blue crepe de chine gown. Hat in paper panama blue and grege, with red feather. Belt on frock is blue leather, stitched in a red and grege design. Shoes and bag in blue crocodile. And white suede gloves with large, soft cuffs. Light weight woolen coat in darker blue, with blue fox fur collar.

Cannes (afternoon)—Red crepe dress, black braided and shiny straw hat with fruit trimming of various shades of red. Black lizard bag, round in shape, black crepe shoes with silver buckle, matching silver buckle on belt. Gloves demilong, large loose cuffs, and of fawn colored suede.

More of this anon.

* * * *

One of the new, so lightweight and dull-surfaced woolens made the Dupouy Magnin afternoon ensemble I sketch today. In two pieces and two shades of blue, ultramarine, and navy. And the skirt stitched all over to follow the lines of the bodice trimming. This is a very good example of the informal afternoon ensembles of the season, which are more elaborate than morning wear, yet less elaborate than 5 o'clock afternoon wear—which, in turn, is less elaborate than "bar wear!" I'll just have to tell you about this tomorrow, so watch for it—it's too amusing!

A special sort of an underskirt with a fitted or guimpe top which makes of it a complete costume slip for the very new frocks that show bodice tightness between the bust and belt line. That's what this week's illustrated leaflet is on * * * how to make this underskirt.

Really it's designed for the six-in-one dress I designed for you some weeks ago, but would suit any dress. 'N if you want to make the underskirt without the bodice guimpe top, it is just the right model for long evening gowns, my deah—gored, simple to make, taking the least possible amount of material. Better send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post quickly!

* * * *

Paris calls it the "Bob" hat—and the version I sketched in the circle, of green grosgrain ribbon and rough, light green straw, is a perfect example. Note the rolled brim—very popular for spring.

Au revoir!

The Homemaker

After-Easter Menu, Tempting and Inexpensive.

HAM from Sunday's repast probably rests on the larder shelf today, but since this meat formed our piece de resistance so recently as yesterday let's skip a day and go on to Tuesday in planning a first reconstructed dish for the ham. And let us make it a tasty dish, a hot one, and one a little different. Oh, yes, I know it's easy to "slice the ham and cream a few potatoes," but ham timbales would taste so good and are so very little more effort.

TUESDAY'S DINNER.

Ham Timbales
Noodle Ring in Spinach Center
One-Egg Muffins
Fresh Fruit Salad with
Honey Salad Dressing
Saltines
Tea or Coffee

Ham Timbales.

1 cupful cooked ham, chopped
1 cupful bread crumbs, stale
1 cupful milk
3 tablespoons butter
2 egg whites
½ teaspoonfu salt
Dash of pepper

Cook the milk and crumbs until of the consistency of a smooth paste. Then add ham, butter, salt and pepper. Next fold in the egg whites which have been beaten until stiff. Fill well-greased mold or individual molds two-thirds full with the mixture. Set in a pan of hot water, cover with a greased paper and bake in a moderate oven for about 20 minutes or until firm. Turn on a hot serving dish and garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Noodle Ring With Spinach Center.

Boil a package of noodles in salted water until tender and drain in a colander. Pour cold water through the noodles and set aside to drain thoroughly. Mix two tablespoonfuls of butter with the noodles and place in a butter ring mold which has been well sprinkled with fine bread crumbs. Cover with grated cheese and a cupful of thin white sauce mixed together and place in the oven preferably in a pan of water as a custard, and bake for an hour. Unmold on a heated round platter and in the center place two cupfuls of hot cooked spinach seasoned to taste with salt and pepper. Serve at once.

One-Egg Muffins.

2 cups flour
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 cup milk
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg

Mix and sift the dry ingredients, then add the milk gradually, the egg, well beaten, and the melted butter. Bake in buttered gem pans 25 minutes.

Fresh Fruit Salad With Honey Salad Dressing.

1 grapefruit
½ cup white grapes
2 oranges
1 cup fresh pineapple
½ cup berries
Lettuce

Peel and remove outside skin and seeds from grapefruit and oranges. Wash and remove seeds from grapes. Peel and dice pineapple. Wash and hull strawberries. Cut marshmallows in quarters. Wash, drain and crisp the lettuce leaves. Mix all the fruits, tossing in large bowl lightly so as not to break the fruit. Add marshmallows and mix. Pile on lettuce leaves. Serve with honey dressing.

Honey Salad Dressing.

3 egg yolks, beaten
½ cup strained honey
½ cup lemon juice
1 grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon sugar
½ pint heavy cream, whipped

Mix eggs, honey, sugar, lemon juice and rind. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened. When cold, add two tablespoons of this mixture to the whipped cream.

THE WEIGHT GUIDE.

For individual assistance write to Nancy Carey, sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope and give age, weight, height and habits of life.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey—Some time ago I wrote for your reducing menus. At that time I weighed 183 pounds and now I weigh 118—a loss of 65 pounds. It is easy to say, but not so easy to accomplish. However, it was well worth the effort. I am 5 feet 2½ inches tall and 29 years old. Unless I am very careful, I gain easily, and for that reason would like to have the recipes for stretched butter and whipped cream which you once mentioned in your column. They would help so very much. Thanking you, I am,

MRS. L. T.

Congratulations are very much in order, Mrs. L. T., for not only is 65 pounds no small loss, but it requires a great deal more will-power and determination than most of us possess. You must, and, indeed, should, feel quite proud of yourself. For your age and height you should weigh about 122 pounds. Don't try to reduce further; it is unnecessary and not to be advised. Concentrate all your efforts on maintaining your present weight. This means that there will be a perfect balance between your food intake and your supply of energy. There will be no loss of weight and no gain, for all the food eaten will be used. It is necessary, too, while you watch your calories, to keep from gaining weight, to see that you are securing an ample supply of the foods which will preserve your health—the vital, vitamin-rich foods so very, very necessary.

You should have about 1,850 calories daily to keep your present weight and should plan your menus accordingly. We have a sample maintenance diet, which we shall be very glad to send you. Once you have started, you will find it quite simple to arrange your own meals along similar lines. Very likely you will have to make changes to meet your own requirements, but just be sure to watch your scales.

We shall be glad, of course, to send you the recipes for stretched butter, whipped cream, &c., which our readers have found so helpful. All that we ask is a self-addressed, stamped envelope together with your request.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

THE EFFECT OF DRAFTS.

FOR a long time the draft cranks had hard sledding. They could not prove their points, and they were ridiculed, called neurotics and pronounced a nuisance generally. In recent years more delicate instruments for measuring surface temperatures have been made available. Many experimenters have used these refined instruments on various parts of the human body. All the reports agree that the draft cranks were right in their essential points. With this proof to back them up they are now in the saddle, and they can chase their erstwhile ridiculers all over the lot. Maybe they are forgiving cusses and will turn the other cheek.

A recent contribution, supporting others which have gone before on all major points, comes from Dr. C. E. A. Winslow, of Yale, and his associates. These observers worked with about 80 students. They found that the temperature of different parts of the body varied greatly. In the most extreme case the skin of the feet was 12 degrees Fahrenheit colder than the skin elsewhere.

Changing the temperature of the atmosphere 10 degrees caused a variation of about 5 degrees in the temperature of the skin in certain areas. Within limits there was a change of 1 degree in skin temperature for each 2 degrees of change in the temperature of the air. They found abundant evidence that cold hands and cold feet were actualities and not figments of the imagination.

The areas tested were the skin of the trunk, thighs, feet, hands, face and the mucous membranes of the nose and mouth. Of these, the mucous membrane of the mouth was the mostly nearly stable. There was all kinds of evidence that exposing the skin of the face, and even that of the feet and hands, would alter the temperature of the mucous membrane lining the nose.

After exposure of the hands to cold, and the preliminary drop in the temperature of the skin thereof, there was likely to be a rather prompt and adequate reaction. This warming up, following chilling, was slower in coming and less complete in the skin of the feet. In other words, cold feet tend to stay cold longer and require more warming than is the case with hands.

Exposure of one part of the body to heat or to cold is liable to change the temperature of distant parts. Many of these changes register in the nose. But in this experience exposure to cold did not induce attacks of coryza. The subjects of this experiment were entitled to catch a free cold every day—to have at least one fresh attack of coryza in every 24 hours—if we are right in thinking that getting wet or being chilled causes this disorder. On the other hand, in this prolonged experiment on many men, only one contracted coryza.

GET MEDICAL ATTENTION.

Mrs. G. writes: I am 30 years old, the mother of three children, and in very good health. About two weeks ago I started waking up nights with one hand, arm, and elbow "asleep." Rubbing and exercising seemed of no avail, but when I got up and moved around they would become normal. However, during the last week the numbness never leaves my fingers and during the night they are not only numb but there is pain in each joint in the fingers, wrist, and elbow. I am still able to do my work, but am conscious of my hand every minute and it is very annoying.

REPLY.

You have neuritis in the nerves of your arm. Pressure was a factor and may still be. It calls for medical attention.

THE BACK SLAPPER.

H. A. D. writes: Please write an article on the good hearted guy who is always slapping you on the back. I have been dismantled on three different occasions the last year by such antics from the village cut-ups. The last slap I was laid up for three days. Is there any good reason for this barbaric practice among humans?

REPLY.

I don't know what to write. Those whacks on the back sound big and hard, but they are mostly sound. There is no basis for the legend that the art of the chiropractor is a derivative of back slapping. The force of this boisterous greeting is never great enough to knock the backbone out of joint, or in. It may jar your upper plate out. No one slapped George Washington on the back because of the danger of knocking his plates for a goal.

But that is not exactly to the point. Your objection is that it is not the drawing room method. No one greets a grand duke that way.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

THE SUNLESS GARDEN.

SUNLESS gardens frequently mean no gardens, which is a pity, for with a little forethought devoted to their planning, small gardens shaded by tall buildings can be made real havens of rest and beauty places where we are wont to linger.

As I have said so often in this column, flowering plants must have sun—not necessarily sun during the entire day, but during at least a part of the day.

The following plants are all flowering and—with the exception of the spring-flowering bulbs—while not gorgeous, they are beautiful and worth while in every way.

Let me first suggest myrtle. This is the low-growing little plant with small starlike flowers, known in some localities as the periwinkle. This always does well when once established. It is splendid for planting under trees where grass refuses to live. Being hardy, it will survive the most severe winter weather.

Forget-me-nots also do well in partial shade. They must, however, have sun for a couple of hours each day. Forget-me-nots can be set out at any time, and they will quickly take hold and continue to flower until frost. When the flowers begin to fade or open smaller than they did when you planted them, cut them back and encourage them to send out a new set of branches tipped with large, perfectly formed flowers. Also keep the dead blossoms removed, for it is only by so treating them that you can be sure of more and more flowers. Forget-me-nots require a great deal of moisture.

Tuberous-rooted begonias get along very well in partial shade; in fact, they crave such an environment. This variety of begonia, however, needs a rich soil and should never be kept with "wet feet"—meaning that they should be planted in well-drained loam. Do not forget that none of the begonia family is hardy, and that the tuberous-rooted varieties must have their bulbs lifted in the fall, to be kept in a dark, dry warm place until spring.

A TRICK AND A HALF.

DISASTER is certain at Contract if Opening bids are not sound. One's first duty, therefore, is to pass if one's honor strength is not up to standard. Otherwise a house may be built on sand, foredoomed to spectacular collapse.

But one's second duty—not inferior in importance to the first—is to show one's partner if a hand, not strong enough to bid on originally, has anything in it at all. The making of game may turn upon this intimation. For a game bid, combined hands (unless distribution is especially favorable) need 5½ to 6 honor-tricks. Now quite often 4 to 4½ honor-tricks are in one hand (insufficient for an initial Forcing bid) and 1 to 1½ honor-tricks in the other, but unless the weaker hand cooperates in the bidding, the fact that sufficient combined strength is available will never come to light.

It was to meet this familiar situation that the negative response of one notrump was devised. This is one of the key ideas of the Forcing System. It is based on the principle that, where once a strong hand has been shown by partner, possible support, though as little as a trick and a half, must be made known. On a trick and a half (in honor strength) a Takeout into one notrump can, at worst, do no harm. The strong minimum prescribed for an Opening suit bid insured this, and it may enable a second suit to be shown and the bidding continued, with the result that game is eventually reached.

Here is a simple case in point from the first Anglo-American test match:

East-West vulnerable.

	♠ 9 7 ♡ J 8 4 3 ◇ K 4 2 ♣ A J 6 5
♠ 10 2 ♡ A 9 5 ◇ 10 8 6 3 ♣ K 9 4 2	N W E S	♠ K Q 4 3 ♡ Q ◇ Q J 9 7 5 ♣ Q 7 3
	♠ A J 8 6 5 ♡ K 10 7 6 3 ◇ A ♣ 10 8

At the table where England sat North and South, the bidding of this hand was as follows:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

South thus played the hand in one spade. North, with his weak spades and indifferent hand, not thinking support worth while, and North-South, making 9 tricks, scored 130 points.

At our North-South table, however, the negative Takeout was used with great effect. Here the bidding went:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1♠	Pass
1NT	Pass	2♡	Pass
4♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Let me explain the significance of the North-South bids.

North: Pass. "I have less strength than 2½ honor-tricks. I can not, therefore, open the bidding."

South: One spade. "I have at least 2½ honor-tricks—rather more, as I am bidding third in hand—and a promising spade suit. If spades are trump, I have at least 4 playing-tricks."

North: One notrump. "I can not support you in spades, but it is worth my keeping the bidding alive, since we may find something else. You can count on me for about 1½ honor-tricks."

South: Two hearts. "Very well, then, let us have a shot at hearts. Here, too, I have a biddable suit. You may have distributional values which, with your 1½ honor-tricks, will give us a chance of game here."

North: Four hearts. "Yes, I think I have. My hearts are fairly strong and, since we are not vulnerable, it will pay us to take our chance."

Result: Ten tricks in hearts, and 420 points, a gain, at the Duplicate game, of 290 points, through the showing of a trick and a half.

It will be noticed that, in the case of this hand, the combined honor strength of North and South is a bare 4½ tricks, but exceptionally favorable distributional values compensate for this.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Jump Takeout With Three Notrump.

This implies about the same honor strength as is required for a Forcing Takeout—that is, 3 to 3½ honor-tricks. The difference is that the three notrump response denies a biddable suit. Where there is a five-card biddable suit, though only a minor, this should always be preferred.

Example:

Opening bid is one heart.

½	♠ K 2	½
1½	♡ A Q 3 2	2½
½	◇ Q J 7 6	1
½	♣ Q J 2	½

3 honor-tricks — 4½ honor-tricks at hearts

Response is three notrump.

1½	♠ A Q 4
0	♡ 7 6
1	◇ A 10 3 2
-½	♣ K 5 4 3

3 honor-tricks

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES McDONALD

BOOKS FOR HUSBANDS.

DEAR Frances McDonald: Perhaps you may think my tale of woe very trivial, but to me it is all-important, and I hope you can give me some advice in regard to my difficulty.

I have been married five years and it has been one humiliation and embarrassment after another. You see, my husband has no regard for the decencies and courtesies due a wife or any woman for that matter. If we enter a restaurant he will not remove his hat unless it is absolutely necessary. He will sit at a table with his hat on, even though there may be a hook just above the table. Then he will start reading a paper at the table, and there I sit ready to explode, but what can I do in a public place? When I remonstrate with him afterward, he says stay home if you don't like my ways. When we are in a crowd, it is always one of the other gentlemen who sees to my wants. My husband never will open a door for me, but always goes first and lets the door slam on me without holding it open.

When we were engaged his lack of manners was very different, and I taught him many things which he always promised to do and did when we were engaged. But now that we are married his manners are so gross that I can't stand him. He is educated, makes a fine living, but he just won't act like a gentleman should. At home it is the same thing. He throws match sticks on the floor, telling me I should take care of such things. If we cross a street, he is always ahead of me, never assisting me across or watching that I reach the other side safely. I always wanted a man with gentlemanly manners. I always looked for that in a man first, but I see what a disappointment I got. Would you stay home rather than be seen in public with such a man? Sometimes I feel as though I never want to go out with him again, but then I am all alone here and it gets lonesome in the house all day and I feel as though I must go out. But when I go through that humiliation, I think it is better to stay home.

Is there any way to cure him from acting that way in public? Sometimes I feel like knocking the hat right off his head in public. What would you do? Leave him or what?

I hope you won't think my letter boring and will excuse its length.

BITTER.

Your letter is neither boring nor unusual. You are one of the many young women who have accepted a man on his own terms rather than risk a life devoid of his society. He rates you accordingly and insults you at will. It is hard to account for the fact that you have ever accompanied him a second time to a restaurant if, as you say, he eats with his hat on. It seems strange that he should be permitted to do so. But certainly if you endured the embarrassment of such conspicuous and erratic behavior and then went out with him again there is no reason why he should take very seriously your weak objections.

One of the reasons for the mounting divorce rate is the eagerness with which young women of good family and decent connections grasp any matrimonial offer without consideration of the man's background and birth. Any port in a storm seems to be their slogan. It is next to impossible to change the manners of an adult human being. Manners are a part of an individual, inculcated from infancy—or lacking. You can never make a gentleman of the individual you describe. Your course is to decide what you want to do. In offering the excuse that you accompany him and suffer these indignities rather than remain at home you prove that you have not yet really decided whether you approve or disapprove the man's insulting behavior. You are like the man who wrote me that his wife had disappeared, leaving no trace and taking his child with her, but he was writing not about that catastrophe, but to know whether the landlord could hold him to his lease. Decide the relative importance of the issues. Then act.

It may help you some to accept the fact that few women would live with such a man. But you must decide for yourself.

Temple Corner Stone Laid by Odd Fellows

The corner stone of the new temple of the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows of the District of Columbia at Ninth and T streets northwest, was laid yesterday afternoon, with James W. Robinson, District grand master, officiating.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ANSWERS TO THE QUESTION HEARD FROM EVERY TONGUE.

(The query being, usually in doleful tones, "What do you suppose caused it all?")

1. The people of the country not only believed unqualifiedly in Santa Claus, but thought there were two of him.

2. Everybody accepted the statement "America is a going concern" without noticing where it is going or allowing for the occasional detour, grade crossing, sharp turn and dead-end street.

3. We were so exhilarated that, facing backward on a ride down the toboggan, we thought we were going uphill.

4. We had become so softened up by easy living that we mistook any challenge for a little hard work as just another suggestion that we take a little light exercise 10 minutes each day.

5. Too many people who should have been attending to business were out in the woods looking for lost golf balls.

6. People were so accustomed to easy money that they felt a little annoyed when the daily weather report didn't read: "Today—Fair and continued bullish; tomorrow much warmer with frequent splitups in all portions."

7. Too many of us had ceased to live by the rules of reason, the Bible and the laws of common sense and were living by the rules of the Amalgamated Association of Perpetual Picnic and Continuous Clambake Promoters.

8. We had an idea that joy-riding was the handmaiden of business efficiency and the big sister to financial independence.

9. Too many people thought the definition of thrift was: Something a man exercises when he buys a $35,000 house for $800 cash.

10. An oracle was generally believed to be a barber with visions of grandeur; a prophet was always somebody who had a friend who knew somebody who knew something important, if true.

11. We mistook the roar of the approaching cyclone for another group of basso friends trying to whisper momentous inside information on another impending stock dividend.

12. We went paddling on the edge of Niagara Falls on the bedtime story of the man next door that it was good, clean fun and very healthful.

13. We believed prosperity was run on the nonstop principle and that if the battery went dead it could be revived by pressing a White House button.

14. Only about 20 per cent of us knew when the parade was over; we thought the spectacle of the boys running rapidly in all directions was just a part of a pageant with a pretty name like "The Festival of the Soft Money and the Shower of Jewels."

15. We had become so accustomed to caviar, filet of humming birds' wings and three table wines with every meal, we completely forgot the safe old American axiom that it is always a good idea to have something in the ice box from which to make old-fashioned hash.

* * * *

YOU KNOW HOW IT IS.

I would buy a lovely spring frock
And a hat with roses gay;
I would buy me silken stockings
And be on my merry way;
I'd go whooping through the city
And through suburbs make a track;
I would even do a handspring—
If this pain would leave my back!

The country's foremost financier was calm and cool during his radio talk, according to all accounts, but anybody who has ever faced a mike will lay a small bet that for once in his life he was all aflutter inside and that his first question to members of the household was "Well, was I any good?"

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

NOW that the news columns of the daily press have advanced more or less substantiated theories that baby Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., kidnaped from the home of his parents four weeks ago tomorrow night, is being held aboard a yacht, it is interesting to revert to the divination of an eminent psychic and astrologist revealed during her presence in Washington to attend the recent banquet of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America in the Mayflower Hotel.

I refer, of course, to Zulieka, "America's wonder girl with the television mind, who will advise you on business and domestic affairs, health, finances, love, marriage, occupation, removals, lost or stolen property, MISSING RELATIVES, or anything you want to know."

This extravagant billing, naturally, partakes of the familiar ballyhoo of the circus lot and the vaudeville theater, but, after all, Zulieka occupies the office of vice president of the American Society of Astrologists—if that is the precise name of the organization—under the presidency of Caroline Adams, and makes none of the picturesque boasts of the ordinary charlatan. She professes merely to the possession of a peculiar and indefinable sense of vision and a comprehensive knowledge of the science of planetary influence and the significance of certain stellar configurations.

When her view of the Lindbergh case was bluntly requested during her recent visit, Zulieka expressed the conviction that baby Lindbergh at that time was being held safe and sound "over a large body of water," where there was no apparent threat to his health or physical well-being, but where, in case of emergency, all traces of the abduction could be speedily destroyed.

I am setting this down here now, not as a devotee of any species of occultism, but merely as one who finds the coincidence of striking interest.

If you are interested in who is the most applauded figure on the local screens this week, it is Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut.

Senator Bingham is making an eloquent and cogent defense of his bill legalizing the brewing and taxation of 4 per cent beer, through the medium of the Paramount Sound News, on view at Loew's Columbia and Warner's Metropolitan Theaters.

Hooray! And a couple of prosits!

Although the Easter week-end has been a keen disappointment to a majority of the downtown first-run picture houses, many are planning to attempt to recoup the slimmest box-office grosses in years, at this season, by presenting five de luxe performances today. Complete information, as usual, will be found in the "Film Time Tables" on this page.

The sudden falling off in Easter business is attributed to the inclemency of the weather, the failure of the cherry blossoms to bloom as originally scheduled and the precautionary providence inspired by Congress' threat to make bad times worse, instead of better, by their superb bungling of the vital task of balancing the budget—a matter which Dr. Sirovich, no doubt, lays at the door of the dramatic critics!

With the revival of "The Chocolate Soldier," in all its melodic richness, holding the boards at the National, it is of interest to note that the screen, come Saturday, will make it possible to estimate with what musicianly skill Oscar Straus has been able to keep abreast of the musical trends of the past quarter century.

It was Straus, you will recall, who created the delightful score of the opera bouffe based on a free adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's tale of "Arms and the Man." It was Straus also who contributed the musical setting for Ernst Lubitsch's "One Hour With You," starring Maurice Chevalier, opening next Saturday at the Earle—one of the most delightful bits of fol-de-rol of the season.

Harry Kalchin, who books the vaudeville portions of the programs presented at the RKO-Keith Theater in this city, was in town Saturday, deep in a series of momentous conferences with Manager Hardie Meakin, on the caliber and conduct of the future stage shows.

As a result of this important conclave, many surprises are surreptitiously hinted at by Mr. Meakin and his cohorts on Fifteenth street—among them famous "names" in the operatic, musical comedy, motion pictures and orchestral branches of the amusement world.

From what was whispered to me, "but not for publication as yet," I may say that some of the artists proselyted from grand opera will be no less than sensational.

Among the bands, Paul Whiteman and Ben Bernie are probably the ones you will anticipate most eagerly.

And of the picture stars, Mary Brian's local appearance has been postponed from April 2 to the week of April 30, leaving Jean Harlow in complete command of the field at the Palace, beginning April 1.

The venerable troupers comprising the personnel of Fanchon & Marco's "Stars of Yesterday" idea, current at the Fox, will pay honor to Billy Kenney, Washington's old-time minstrel star, on his sixty-sixth birthday anniversary tomorrow, when the entire company will host Mr. Kenney at a dinner at the National Press Club, immediately following the last stage performance.

Among the well-known guests to be present will be the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives; E. J. Henning, formerly of the Department of Labor, and a number of representatives in Congress.

Incidentally, the combined ages of the members of the "Stars of Yesterday" unit add up to the impressive total of 1,064 years, as follows:

Dan Barrett, 80; Hank Brown, 78; Tom Ward, 75; Fred Ford, 58; Joe Alexander, 60; Cho-Cho, 72; Evelyn Alexander, 52; Charles Rice, 61; Fred Cady, 60; Tom Kelly, 63; George Harrison, 76; Dora Lipman, 50; Helen Ware, 39; May Hoey, 58; Bart Jordon, 69; Corinne, 59, and Eva Tanguay, 54.

If that doesn't add up correctly you will have to blame Harry Crull's adding machine—Lou Brown by name, I believe—not mine. I can't add years any better than I can dollars, or sheep jumping over a fence, or how many people ask for passes!

No, not much of a day for an Easter parade, but it certainly was swell for sleeping!

TABLET IS UNVEILED TO FORMER RECTOR

Dr. Berryman Green Is in Charge of Services at Alexandria Church.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The Rev. Dr. Berryman Green, dean emeritus of the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia, conducted the Easter services yesterday morning in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, when a tablet in memory of a former rector, the Rev. Dr. Peter Parker Phillips, was unveiled and dedicated. The tablet is placed in the south wall of the church, near the baptismal font.

A brass reading lamp for the pulpit was also dedicated in memory of the late Mrs. William C. Snow, the lamp being placed on the desk by the Mite Society, of which Mrs. Snow was an active member. Special Easter music was given by the vested choir under direction of Sherman Bruce Fowler, organist and director.

The annual Easter Sunday school celebration was held at 4:30 in the afternoon, with Mr. Castellanus, a students of the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia, in charge, owing to the illness of the rector, the Rev. Percy Foster Hall.

This service celebrated the seventy-sixth anniversary of the Easter observance of the Sunday school, and the record of that first service in St. Paul's Church was duplicated for the service yesterday. Superintendent James S. Smythe was in charge of the celebration, and presented to William Travers an award for twenty years of continuous attendance at Sunday school. The few times Mr. Travers has been out of the city he has attended a Sunday school, bringing to his superintendent a letter from the official of the visited school to keep his record intact. Awards were given to 40 pupils for attendance last year.

In historic Christ Episcopal Church yesterday a special feature of the Easter morning service was the beautiful decorations of Easter lilies, placed in each side window, across the chancel and banked in the chancel windows, by members of the church in memory of members of their families, and at the close of the service sent to the sick, the person to receive them designated by the doner.

At the Sunday school Easter celebration in the afternoon, the music was by the junior choir of 25 voices, children ranging in age from 6 to 14 years, all vested. These children are trained by Mrs. George E. Pickett and Miss Almedia Parks, the latter supplying as organist at all special Lenten services. All during Lent the junior choir sang at the early morning and the afternoon services. Gold attendance pins were given yesterday to a number of Sunday school pupils, among them Mrs. Louise Shuman Brown and Mrs. Dora Henry Wells, both of whom have received a pin each year for more than 20 years.

Mrs. Elizabeth Blackford Lloyd, wife of the Right Rev. Arthur Selden Lloyd, Suffragan Bishop of New York, died Saturday at her home in New York, and the body will arrive in Alexandria at 2:37 o'clock this afternoon, and be taken to Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, where funeral services will be held. The Rev. Dr. William Jackson Morton, rector of the church, will conduct the services and burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery. Besides her husband, Mrs. Lloyd is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Edmund Dandridge Pendleton, of Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Churchill Gibson, of Richmond; Mrs. Charles Symington and Mrs. Gavin Hadden, of New York.

Charles E. Mundy, 39 years old, died yesterday in a Washington hospital following an operation. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the First Baptist Church, conducted by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the church, and the Rev. Ryland T. Dodge, pastor of the Baptist Temple. Burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery. The deceased, whose home was at 1824 Duke street, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ellen Mundy, and four children. He was a member of Potomac Lodge, No. 38, I. O. O. F., and officers of this lodge will conduct services at the grave. For the last sixteen years he had been employed by Frank Michelbach Furniture Co.

Horace E. Deavers, 72 years old, died yesterday at his home at Franconia, Fairfax County, Va., and the funeral will be held at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Beulah Baptist Church, Franconia, with burial in Beulah Cemetery. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Alice E. Deavers, four daughters, Mrs. James Ogden, Mrs. Irvin Tyler, Mrs. Robert Huntington and Mrs. Robert Huntington, jr., the last two of Alexandria, and two sons, Alfred Deavers and Irvin Deavers.

Robert Edward Wingo, 63 years old, died yesterday evening at his home at Lincolnia. The body was taken to the Cunningham funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

By NELSON B. BELL

"THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER." A light opera in three acts, adapted from George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" by Bernauer and Jacobson, with music by Oscar Straus. English version by Stanislaus Stange. Musical director, Max Fichander. At the National Theater.

—THE CAST—

Nadina ..... Vivienne Segal
Aurelia ..... Sarah Edwards
Mascha ..... Marian Palmer
Bummerli ("The Chocolate Soldier") ..... Charles Purcell
Capt. Massakroff ..... Edmond Mulcahy
Col. Casimir Popoff ..... John Dunsmore
Maj. Alexis Sparidoff ..... Allan Rogers
A Dancer ..... Theo Von Hassel

Age can not wither nor custom stale the infinite variety of this perennially youthful score of Oscar Straus.

Its martial verve, its whimsically romantic passages and its booming humor are as alive and as vital today as when "The Chocolate Soldier" was in the heyday of its initial popularity almost 25 years ago, and its favorite airs had not been sung and resung by every vocal aspirant who ever made a record or blasted a broadcaster's microphone!

This was conclusively demonstrated last evening in the National Theater when an audience that made up in enthusiasm what it may have lacked in numerical strength received with every rousing manifestation of grateful appreciation a revival of the famous work that was distinguished only in the proficiency of its small cast of principals.

The symphonically expanded orchestra, magnificence of colorful stage pictures and swelling chorals of the original production have to great extent been eschewed in the present mounting of the work, but, for all that, such melodic gems as "My Hero," "Seek the Spy," "Never Was There Such a Lover," "The Chocolate Soldier" duet, "That Would Be Lovely" and "The Letter Song" have lost nothing of their potency as classics of opera bouffe, thanks to the individual capability of the talented and agreeable artists to whom they have been intrusted. And even with no especial stress laid upon the importance of the ensembles, the second-act finale remains one of the most stirring potpourris of skillfully reprised melodies offered in a generation.

Vivienne Segal, prima donna, sang the role of Nadina in fine voice last evening and found the vivacity of her performance, if anything, outdone by the spontaneous ebullience of Charles Purcell in the title part. I suspect it was the remnant of a cold that caused the deletion of the first-act "Sympathy" duet, with Miss Segal, and the third-act "Scene and Melodrama" from the list of numbers in which Bummerli normally should have been heard. "The Chocolate Soldier" duet, "That Would Be Lovely" and "The Letter Song," however, largely atoned for the omitted numbers by the excellence of their rendition.

As Alexis, the counterfeit hero, Allan Rogers, a favorite of Washington audiences, displayed the best male voice in the company and otherwise emphasized the wisdom of his selection for the role of one of the operetta's major figures. Edmond Mulcahy is a deep-throated and amusing Capt. Massakroff and John Dunsmure, last seen here as The Mikado with Mme. Schumann-Heink in Gilbert and Sullivan's imperishable extravaganza of that name, plays and sings Col. Casimir Popoff in no less broad and noisy a spirit of burlesque. Sarah Edwards, as wife of Col. Popoff and mother of Nadina, and Marian Palmer, as her cousin, Mascha, complete a roster that permits the "book" of the piece to lose nothing of its intended zest.

While the plot developments of this fabulous bit of foolery may be wholly transparent to modern audiences, and its comedy machinery may creak a little and show through all too plainly, there can be no discounting the irresistible appeal of that brilliant score and its indispensable relationship to the entire movement of a story that found Shaw in a mood less introspectively philosophical than acutely and engagingly satirical.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

AN EXTENSIVE survey of broadcast advertising coverage made by the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, shows that of 100 typical American homes, 51 have radio sets.

"Of the 51 with radio sets," the report goes on, "41 have some one at home on a typical evening.

"Of the 41 radio set owners who are at home, 24 have their sets turned on during the best hours of this typical evening.

"Of the 24 listeners, 13 make up the largest audience reached by any one station in each vicinity. Five are tuned in on the second-best station, and two on the third-best.

"Of the 24 listeners, eight are 'advertising conscious' to the extent of knowing what the program they hear is supposed to advertise. These eight must be divided among the stations heard, leaving possibly three or four out of 100 families as 'effective circulation' for a single program."

The publishers association canvassed 28,947 homes by telephone. Each of 230 newspapers, members of the organization, telephoned to at least 100 homes, selecting numbers at random from the telephone book.

A HOOSIER, Duke M. Patrick, seems to be the candidate most likely to land in the position of general counsel of the Federal Radio Commission to fill the vacancy created by the elevation of Thad H. Brown to a commissionership. Col. Brown is now general counsel.

Mr. Patrick was born in Morgan County, Ind., July 3, 1900, and has made an excellent record as assistant general counsel of the commission. He has been in general charge of the commission's court work.

Likewise mentioned for general counsel is Ben S. Fisher, who hails from the Far West, but is also a native Hoosier. Mr. Fisher is at present assistant general counsel.

Grace Moore, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be starred as guest artist, with the Revelers and a concert orchestra under the direction of David Mendoza, on Wednesday nights, replacing the late John Philip Sousa and his band. This is Miss Moore's first regular radio appearance schedule. She will sing "Depuis le Jour," from "Louise," "L'Amour Toujours L'Amour" and "Lover, Come Back to Me."

DANIEL J. CALLAHAN, supreme treasurer of the Knights of Columbus, will speak at a gala assembly of the District of Columbia Knights when they gather at the Shoreham Hotel tomorrow night to listen to the country-wide broadcast celebrating the golden anniversary of the founding of the Knights.

Special radio sets will be placed in the ballroom to provide the program to be given by Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, formerly Anna Case; Charles Hackett, of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, and Supreme Knight Martin H. Carmody, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

The program will be heard here over Station WRC at 11:30 p. m.

One of the 55 orchestras picked by the Music Corporation of America for the General Motors National Exhibits, which will be staged in as many cities throughout the Nation during the week of April 2 to 9, is Herb Gordon's. In making the selection, officials of Music Corporation took into consideration the popularity of the band as a radio attraction as well as their ability to play good dance music.

Posthumous presentation of the President's medal of the National Academy of Design to Samuel F. B. Morse, noted artist, as well as inventor of the telegraph, will be broadcast over WRC at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The ceremony will take place in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York, where there is an exhibition of Morse's paintings, loaned from famous collections throughout the world. The medal will be received by William Goodrich Morse, son of the artist.

A new "program building service" for radio stations, known as National Radio Artists, has been launched by Meyer Davis, orchestra and entertainment impresario. Approximately 50 entertainment units are controlled by the new organization, including the Harold Veo groups, Dave McWilliams' Orchestra, Marguerite Cromwell, soprano; Justin Lawrie, tenor; Ida Clarke, accordionist; the Van and Shook Piano Team, and the Washington String Quartette.

RECUPERATING from an illness, Bob Trout, WJSV announcer, is on a 200-acre farm in Germantown, Md., the guest of the Hughes family—friends of the air. Mrs. Hughes has been listening to Bob ever since he first went on the air, nearly a year ago, and when she missed him she wrote the station to inquire. When told he was ill, she immediately invited him to come to her home to regain his strength. Bob had never met the Hughes family, and they only knew him by his voice, but the invitation was accepted.

Col Stoopnagle and Budd, radio's gloom chasers, whose program over WMAL is eagerly awaited by a large number of radio fans, will appear in person at the Fox Theater for a week, beginning Friday, April 1. The colonel is F. Chase Taylor and Budd is Wilbur Budd Hulick. The latter is a graduate of Georgetown University, where he was well known as a member of the glee club and as a football player.

A GROUP of well known radio orchestra directors will interrupt Buddy Rogers' premiere as a conductor to wish him well in his new career tonight (WRC, 12:01 a. m.). Included are Rudy Vallee, Lew Conrad, Charlie Agnew, Paul Whiteman and Cab Calloway.

Hereafter Rogers' California Cavaliers will be heard from WRC every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday night.

THE electric impulses generated within the human body with every heart beat will be amplified and broadcast throughout the country in a special program staged by Orestes H. Caldwell, former Federal Radio Commissioner * * * Hamilton Harty's musical adaptation of Walt Whitman's poem, "The Mystic Trumpeter," will be presented by the National Oratorio Society (WRC, 9:30 p. m.) * * * Senator David A. Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, will discuss the Federal Government's budgetary problem, in a talk over WRC at 10 o'clock tonight * * * Six of America's outstanding Democrats, all of them mentioned as possible presidential candidates, will be heard in a single program on Wednesday night, April 13, from 10 o'clock until midnight. They are Franklin D. Roosevelt, Alfred E. Smith, Albert C. Ritchie, Harry F. Byrd, J. Hamilton Lewis and James A. Reed * * * The spring racing season, including the Kentucky Derby, will be discussed by Elizabeth Daingerfield, Kentucky horsewoman, on Wednesday night (WRC, 10 o'clock). * * *

THE police department of Alexandria came to the rescue of Irma and Izary in their radio skit over WJSV when a police whistle was needed. Not only was the whistle loaned, but a policeman, in uniform, to blow it.

MARBERRY IS IMPRESSIVE IN DEBUT AS NATS WIN

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Biloxi, Miss., March 27.

MR. CLARK GRIFFITH, boss man of the Washington Club, may still be hunting another pitcher, another catcher or another utility infielder, but his search for a second baseman ended last spring when Buddy Myer successfully fought off the challenge of Jackie Hayes during the training campaign.

The most improved ball-playing gentleman in the Washington group is this same Myer, who a year ago was given the second-base berth to have and to hold as long as he performed to expectations and during the passing of a year has obtained a strangle hold on the post by the very brilliance of his play.

The Ellisville, Miss., boy from a hundred miles upstate, is the pride of the natives who follow the team in practice and games here, and he has obliged them with sensational work afield, backed up by splendid power at bat, sharing with Sam Rice the honors during the five weeks the Nationals have been in training here.

Myer has the distinction of figuring as the prize nugget in a five-for-one player trade between the Nationals and the Boston Red Sox in 1929, when President Griffith turned over to the Boston Club Pitchers Horace Lisenbee and Milton Gaston, Outfielder Bigelow and Infielders Gillis and Reeves.

Bucky Harris had traded the Ellisville boy to the Red Sox two seasons before when no place was found for him in the Washington infield, with Harris himself performing at second base and the incomparable Bluege holding forth at third. But, with the passing of Harris to Detroit before the 1929 season opened, the Nationals were in dire need of an infielder's services and Griffith's five-for-one trade with the Red Sox was the result, and a fine commentary on Myer's worth in the estimation of the Nationals' owner.

That Myer has justified the trade was proven long ago by his play with the Nats, but of the five who were released by Griffith only two now remain in the big leagues, Lisenbee, still with the Red Sox and Gaston, traded during the winter to the Chicago White Sox. Bigelow is with Chattanooga and Gillis also is in the Southern Association, with Memphis. Reeves is with Portland, of the Pacific Coast League. Myer is a second baseman by adaptation rather than by trade, for he came to the Nats from New Orleans in 1925 as a shortstop and third baseman at the age of 20, finding his way into the world series of that year when Ossie Bluege was beaned at Pittsburgh, and performing in clever style despite his meager experience.

Myer's fielding at second base, however, did not suit Griffith and Johnson, but he was retained at the position during 1929 and 1930 for lack of a better man. He was awkward on double plays, especially on the pivot when he was the middle man, and at the start of the spring campaign in 1931, Johnson announced that the position was open to the result of the competition between Myer and Jackie Hayes.

Hayes, one of the smoothest fielders in the big league, was a real threat to Myer's security as a regular, but Buddy's stronger hitting finally prevailed and he did display, moreover, an improved brand of fielding. Myer won the battle long before the regular season opened and Hayes was never able to dislodge him, the result being Hayes' trade to the White Sox in the Reynolds deal.

So greatly had Myer's fielding improved during the year that it was little wonder to the public that when the year's averages were released, Myer was the Abou Ben Ahmed among the second basemen of the league in 1931, leading all the rest with an average of .984 and making only twelve errors in 137 games, which attest to his durability.

Myer has progressed to the point where he is now Griffith's ideal type of ballplayer, steady in the field with sensational possibilities, a strong hitter and fast on the bases.

He is Griffith's ideal type of lead-off man. A good batter, a good waiter, able to make use of his speed on the bases. He has earned the lead-off position with the Nats moreover, because of his frequent extra base hits in a spot where they are required, for the lead-off man necessarily follows the catchers and pitchers at bat, and long hits are usually needed to help these slow-est members of the team around the bases.

Weather Retards G. U.'s Baseballers

Squad, Thrown Back in Training, May Be Cut This Week.

Inclement weather again has cut into Georgetown University's baseball practice routine, and Coach Clayton Sheedy's squad of 40 hopefuls probably will be delayed a couple of days more, due to yesterday's rain. Sheedy had planned two-a-day practices for the Hilltoppers this week.

Coach Sheedy, because of the scant practice so far experienced, has not reduced his squad to the usual 18 or 20 for the season. The "cut" may occur late this week, providing the diamond on Reservoir road dries out sufficiently to permit workouts.

Georgetown's first game is scheduled April 8, with Lafayette on the Hilltop field. Sheedy, despite the handicaps already encountered, expects his team to be in satisfactory condition by that time.

At present he is employing a tentative infield line-up composed of Tommy Carolan, first base; Mickey Lione, second base; Bill Rapp, shortstop, and Dick King, third base. Capt. Johnny Evers, jr., is regarded virtually certain of playing in one of the outfield positions.

Court Treats Tonight in Post Play

Tech-D. & H. Clash in Unlimited Semifinal.

St. Stephen's Plays St. John's for 130-Pound Title.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

TWO nights remain of the sixth and most spectacular of the annual basket ball tournaments conducted under the joint auspices of the Amateur Athletic Union and The Washington Post. In those two nights, the first of which is tonight, four District basket ball champions will be crowned, viz, in weights ranging from the 130-pound youths to men and women of unlimited girth.

The battle lies between the very cream of the local basket ball crop. In the unlimited men's division three teams remain, Saks Clothiers, Delaware & Hudson and Tech's Maroon Scholastics, all high seeded, all determined to emerge victor. The issue in the 145 pound section lies between the Shade Shop and Olmsted Grill, both mature and accurate outfits, while in the 130-pound division the winner will come out of a meeting between St. John's and St. Stephen's.

Als-Rockvilles Seek Women's Title.

The Als Athletic Club sextet, former champions, meet Rockville for women's championship. This game opens tomorrow night's all-final card of games, followed by the championship-deciding conflicts in the 145 and unlimited divisions.

Tonight Tech sets out to continue its argument that high school basket ball, at its best, is better than outstandingly good independent ball. In Delaware & Hudson it meets a team that has made a habit of the upsetting business. With barely a supporter, D. & H. won the Community Center League crown by beating the Griffith Consumers, who had eliminated Saks.

The Tech-D. and H. game tonight is a semifinal affair, the winner forging into the finals alongside of Saks, already out in the last bracket by virtue of downing Central High Saturday night in a game that sent hundreds reeling out into the night air, all but intoxicated with the competition the game produced, an inexpensive drunk you will admit, since the customary 25-cent entry fee prevailed, and will prevail for the remainder of the tournament.

Tech Tossers Confident Of Victory.

Tech, cockily certain of victory, will let loose its whole coterie of scholastic stars tonight—Russell, Wheeler, Reichardt, Daly, Thomas, Willison, Reed and Olverson. D. and H. carries a decided weight advantage and boasts of a mighty threat in George Beach, center, a scintillating individual performer whose opportune shots have carried his team to heights this year.

St. John's Victors, with the 130-pound championship all but in their grasp, find Fred Scheele, star forward, still on the sick list with a painfully wrenched ankle. Scheele, against orders, played Saturday night and was the main difference between his team and the Northern Preps, who succumbed, 16 to 15.

St. Stephen's will be trying for their third upset in a row, having put out Eastern Reserves by 18 to 16, and Noel House, 34 to 17, in preceding rounds.

Bartush to Risk Mat Prestige In Westenberg Clash Tonight

Rivals in Cofeature on Program at Bolling Field.

Plestina-Benkert Will Grapple in Other Main Bout.

BILLY BARTUSH, Washington's own mat favorite, faces a man-sized assignment tonight, when the Bolling Field Athletic Association turns out its week wrestling presentation at Bolling Field Armory. In a coheadliner to the Marin Plestina-August Benkert finish go, popular Billy engages a Midwestern whirlwind in Marvin Westenberg.

Westenberg, one of the flashiest up-and-comers of Paul Bowser's clique, has met and defeated top-line opposition since venturing eastward. Consequently, wrestling addicts attending tonight's matches at 8:30 o'clock will be looking forward to some real class when this feature gets under way.

Westenberg, it is claimed, has the "stuff" necessary to do away with Bartush. Young, powerful and smart, he has proven his mettle throughout the country.

Benkert Real Match for Plestina.

In the other end of the double-header, Plestina, who tosses 'em six at a time, meets rousing opposition in Benkert, formerly a great card in the Curley circuit.

An added attraction pits Lee Wykoff, a gridironer during his spare moments, against rude Rudy Laditzi; Doctor Len Hall locks with Mike Miller and "Dutch" Green opens against Bob Grant.

A special bus, operating free of charge, transfers street car patrons from Howard road and Nichols avenue to the armory and return. Tickets are on sale at Goldie Ahearn's.

Orcutt-Hill Favorites In North-South Event

Pinehurst, N. C., March 27 (A.P.). Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, Western champion, and Maureen Orcutt, of Englewood, N. J., Canadian champion, were favorites tonight to pace the field tomorrow in tournament play for the women's North and South golf tornament.

Both have been playing near the top of their games and the tournament committee is expected to put them in opposite brackets so they possibly will meet in the finals. Match play starts Tuesday.

Approximately 70 golfers have filed entries, but several of the prominent stars who usually play in this event are missing.

Londos Meets Manich At Auditorium Thursday

Jim Londos, acknowledged leader of the Curley crusaders, and recognized in many quarters as the champion of all anatomy agonizers, returns to this city for the first time in many moons to wrestle with, and eventually throw, George Manich, one of the younger generation of mat artists. The bout headlines the most pretentious show ever staged by Joe Turner.

Manich has acquired an enviable reputation for his rough ring tactics. Rugged and aggressive, he does not hesitate to vent his ire on a trusting opponent. But Londos has had experiences with such fellows on previous occasions and should come off the field of battle with the olive wreath on his brow.

Leo Pinetzki, Fred Grobmeier, Tiger Nelson, and a few other well-known grapplers will be on hand to entertain the patrons. Ladies will not be admitted free, escort or no escort. In addition the free list will pay if it wants to see this card.

PORTNEY-JACOBS PRELIMINARY FIGHTS TOMORROW TO REVIVE INTERCITY FEUD

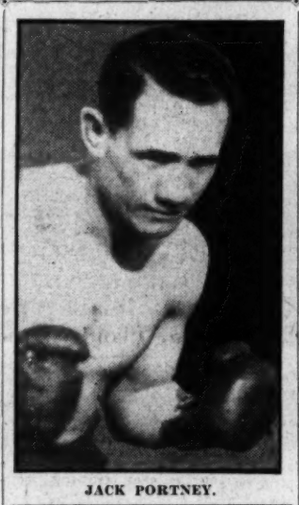
PRELIMINARIES arranged by the astute Day Nursery matchmaker for tomorrow night's benefit show in Portner Arena, Alexandria, should easily provide what, if anything, the Jack Portney-Stumpy Jacobs battle lacks in thrill-producing qualities.

Frankie Mann has vigorously fanned the spark of the old Washington-Baltimore athletic feud in lining up the supporting card for the eight-round feature. No less than four of the warm-up clashes bring together representatives of the rival cities to reopen the old war in rousing style.

Young Van to Get Real Test.

The matchmaker, has not, however, given the Capital gladiators the best of it in the matching, as he has found opponents for the local boys capable of extending each and every one the utmost. Indeed, in the cases of Young Van, middleweight, and Marino Marini, lightweight, Mann has secured foes certain to give them the hardest tests of their careers.

Van, who has three straight knockouts to his credit, and who hasn't had to travel further than two rounds in any of his appearances, is up against Jake Friedman, an Oriole City light heavyweight, who is conceded a decided advantage in experience. Friedman, winner of the South Atlantic 175-pound title in 1929, has been boxing two years more than Van, who one year ago was unable to reach the finals of the District amateur tournament. Van, however, has progressed rapidly in the past few months, and with the benefit of recent instruction from Harry "Kid" Groves, District welterweight champion, should give Friedman a real argument.



JACK PORTNEY.

Marini, a southpaw, will oppose George Esrick, a clever 135-pounder, who looked impressive in victories over Billy Essinger and Billy Hoe earlier in the year. Esrick, like Friedman, is more experienced than his Washington rival. Marini has split even in two bouts with Essinger but bowed to the two best fighters he ever engaged, Patsy Lewis and Jimmy Tramberis.

Lewis-Ray Bowen in Main Preliminary.

Lewis, another Baltimorean who bangs away mostly with his left hand, is down for six rounds against Ray Bowen, one of the well-known family of fighting Bowens of Washington, in the main preliminary. Bowen has not fought hereabouts since last November when he dropped a decision to K. O. Riley, while Lewis has been performing quite regularly in Alexandria, having won six out of seven bouts there since December.

The other intercity clash finds

Battalino-Canzoneri Battle For Lightweight Title Planned

Garden Hopes to Arrange Fight, Probably May 9.

"Bat" Signs and Promoters Confident of Champ's O. K.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, March 27 (U.P.).—Bat Battalino, former featherweight champion, has agreed to fight Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, 15 rounds for the title at Madison Square Garden in May, James J. Johnson, the Garden's fight manager, announced tonight. Johnston, said he would confer tomorrow with Sammy Goldman, Canzoneri's manager, and said he was certain Canzoneri would accept.

The match was decided upon today at a conference between William F. Carey, president of the Garden; Johnston, and Pete Reilly, manager of Battalino. The Sunday conference was held in an effort to out-jockey Nate Lewis, matchmaker for the Chicago Stadium, who is busily trying to make the same match.

While the exact date has not been decided, Johnston said it probably would be May 9.

Fear Petrolle Can Not Make Weight.

Although the beetle-browed Hartford Italian took a terrific beating from Billy Petrolle, smashing Fargo welterweight, in their twelve-rounder at the Garden Thursday night, Battalino has been selected to meet Canzoneri, because Sam McQuade, the Garden's matchmaker, doubts that Petrolle could make the 135-pound limit. Consequently Petrolle will be saved for a title bout with Jackie Fields, the welter champion.

Johnston believes Battalino's amazing display of ruggedness and courage in his bout with the Fargo Express has made him one of the world's outstanding box office attractions. The Bat lost to Petrolle on a technical knockout in the twelfth round after one of the bitterest and bloodiest bouts ever staged in the Garden.

Canzoneri has not fought since last November when he defeated Kid Chocolate, the Cuban phantom. Like the Petrolle-Battalino bout, the May title fight will bring two Italians into the ring; likewise two busy, smashing, rugged fighters who battle from gong to gong. Fight followers agree that it should prove an excellent attraction, and one that will pack the Garden, even at boosted prices.

5th Straight Taken From Orioles

Marberry Shows He Is Near Top Form in 8-to-1 Win.

Weaver and Ragland Also Effective; Bat Honors to Cronin.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH, Sports Editor of The Post.

GULFPORT, Miss., March 27.—The Nats today reversed their usual order procedure in their exhibition games this spring by plucking a lead off the opposition pitching and increasing their margin as the game progressed in contrast to their past habits of rallying in the late innings. They beat the Baltimore Orioles here this afternoon by a score of 8 to 1, their fifth consecutive triumph over the Baltimore club and their eighth victory in nine exhibition games.

But more important was the impressive debut of Fred Marberry on the mound for the Nats and the continued success of Montie Weaver, who also worked a three-inning shift today. Big Frank Ragland was the third Washington pitcher and he, too, turned in a brilliant three innings, but he yielded the Orioles their lone run of the day.

Richmond Is Victim Of Nats.

The Nats' victim today was big Beryl Richmond, the southpaw ace of the Orioles staff, who is envisioned by Baltimore supporters as another Lefty Grove, and they solved him for two runs in the opening inning which proved to be sufficient in the light of the clever twirling of the three Washington moundsmen.

Marberry was in possession of all his speed today and the four hits he allowed in his three-inning stretch were not of serious import, with the Orioles getting only one man as far as third base.

Buddy Myer opened today's game with a base hit to center field, a habit he has contracted to splendid degree this spring. Heinie Manush walked and Sammy West struck out, but Joe Cronin, the hitting hero of the day, responded with the first of his three consecutive doubles to left field, and Myer and Manush scored, to give the Nats the two-run lead the Orioles were never to retrieve.

With two out, McGowan and Arlett singled off Marberry in the first, but the speed ball king of the Nats' staff bore down upon Heinie Sand with

Triple Play Helps Nat Yannigans Win

Special to The Washington Post.

Biloxi, Miss., March 27.—Young Bud Thomas, Chicago sandlotter, pitched nine innings of steady baseball for the Washington Yannigans to beat the Biloxi Ball Club, Mississippi Coast League champions, 3 to 1.

Thomas walked but one man. Washington pulled a triple play in the sixth. With two on, Thomas stopped Williams' liner, tossed it to second, and Harris continued it to first for the triple killing. Washington scored in the third and fourth on doubles by Johnny Kerr, Ralph Boyle and Dave Harris.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

San Francisco, March 27 (A.P.).—The Chicago Cubs wound up their exhibition series with the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast League, by winning 8 to 7 today.

Bob Smith held the Seals to one run in the five innings he was on the mound, but the Coast Leaguers took advantage of the seven walks and two wild throws made by MacKenzie and got five runs in the two and a half innings the latter hurled. Manager Rogers Hornsby played three innings and got two hits, one a double. Score:

Manager Burt Shotton found nothing to worry about except a few minor injuries. On the other hand, he was able to point to his team's victories over the champion Cardinals and the Athletics and Yankees in the course of the most successful exhibition game schedule in years.

New Orleans, La., Marh 27 (A.P.). The Cleveland Indians today pounded three New Orleans Pelican pitchers for twelve hits and a 7-to-3 victory in an exhibition game here.

Kamm, Indian third baseman, led the Indian attack with three hits, one a home run, while Joe Vosmik, left fielder, hit a triple. Rose, Pelican right fielder, clouted two triples.

MARYLAND U. NINE IS OFF FOR DIXIE

Opens 1932 Season Against Duke Tomorrow.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND'S baseball team, that promises to be the best in years, will be put to a test in a Dixie trip for games with North Carolina tomorrow, Duke on Wednesday and Virginia on Thursday. All three of the Old Liners' rivals have strong nines.

Maryland's squad of 14 will leave tonight, but Ccach Shipley still is debating as to a couple of the men he will take along. His array, a mixture of seniors, juniors and sophomores, will be lined up as follows:

Willie Wolf or Bob Wilson, second base; Buckey Buscher, center field; Bozie Berger, third base; Shorty Chalmers, short stop; Hymie Gorman, right field; Spencer Chase, first base; Paul Cronin, Bob Maxwell or Willis Benner, left field; Ralph Sterling and Bill O'Hara, catchers; Bill McIlwee, Ray Davidson, Steve Physioc and Ralph Ruble, pitchers.

Wolf Better Fielder Than Wilson.

One of the left fielders and either Wolf or Wilson will be left at home. Wilson and Benner have been hitting well in the practice sessions, but Wolf is a better fielder and the other two outfielders are more experienced.

Of the 16 players mentioned there are five seniors, three juniors and eight sophomores, which bespeaks the fine talent Shipley got from last year's freshman squad.

Wilson, Berger, Chalmers, Cronin and Sterling are the seniors, McIlwee, Gorman, who played first last year, and Maxwell are the juniors, while Wolf, Buscher, Chase, Benner, O'Hara, Physioc, Davidson and Ruble are the sophomores.

Gorman can go back to first with Chase playing another infield position in a pinch and Davidson, a hard hitter, also is a good outfielder.

Yale Tops Entry List For Indoor Polo Title

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—Postponed a week, the national indoor polo championships get under way this week. Thirty-seven teams have been entered in the four handicap divisions and the open, intercollegiate and interscholastic championships.

Due to the new plan of running the open, which has drawn only four entries, in a round robin, there will be high-goal play on seven of the nine nights for which competition is scheduled. Beginning Saturday, the championships will continue until April 19. Other days for play are April 5, 7, 9, 13 and 16.

Yale heads the entry list with teams in the intercollegiate, open, class A and class D tournaments. The Elis' intercollegiate rivals will be Princeton, Pennsylvania Military College, Army and Harvard.

GETS PINEHURST ACE.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 27 (A.P.).—C. B. S. Marr, of Carnoustie, Scotland, scored an ace today on the fourteenth hole of the Pinehurst Club's No. 3 course. The hole is 148 yards.

Playing with him were A. S. Gilman, of Cleveland; A. M. Dickinson, of Waterbury, Conn., and J. A. Middleton, of Chicago.

Gonzaga High's Diamonders Start Strenuous Work Today

THERE will be no picnicking for the members of Gonzaga's baseball squad today; instead the boys will trek out to the Rosedale playground for a lengthy drill under the watchful eye of Coach Orrell Mitchell, starting at 10 a. m. The program calls for batting and fielding drills, and a brief lecture on the fundamentals of the game.

With the opening game with Business only nine days in the offing, Mitchell would like to be a magician for the nonce, with the power of pulling a couple of dependable twirlers out of the old brown derby. He has six lads on the squad who aspire to regular mound berths—James, Mills, Bell, Carr, Keegan and Farrell—but over the head of each hangs an ominous question mark. Francis Cleary, the husky right-hander who hurled the Purple to 20 victories or more last year, will certainly be missed by the team. Mitchell is confident that he can place a capable team on the field if he has a pair of trustworthy pitchers.

The wielding of the pruning knife during the past week left only 23 players on the squad, and it is likely that this number will be further reduced before the week is out. Six candidates for outfield positions remain. Mulcare, Toomey, Neelon, Dawson, Casey and Springer; a trio are still trying for the regular catching assignment, Donohue, Quigley and Burke; while eight lads are fighting for infield berths, Grace, Fitzpatrick, Harner, Dunan, Hall, Hurley, Mess and Krebs. Mitchell has a gigantic task before him in molding a winning team out of this group, but filling the other positions will be comparatively easy to finding the pitchers.

Notre Dame Athletes Carry on Despite Loss of Knute Rockne

By PAUL MICKELSON.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 27 (A.P.).—A year of brilliant achievement in all fields of athletics has been Notre Dame's reply to one of the most pertinent questions of the college sports world. When Knute Rockne fell to his death just a year ago next Thursday, even the stanchest alumni feared the sun had set at last on Notre Dame athletic glory.

"What can Notre Dame do without Rockne?" they joined everybody else in asking. "Will the better athletes continue to go there now that the old master and his great personality are gone?"

The answer doesn't seem to be anything else but favorable. In the first year after Rockne, Notre Dame has had a big year athletically, not a single athlete of consequence has left the campus and prospects never were better for powerful teams in every competitive sport for the next school year.

In football, the "Fighting Irish" sorely missed "Rock" during that mad final quarter in which Southern California's Trojans came back with two touchdowns and a place kick, but withal the record was far better than some enthusiastic alumni expected. Nothing much has been mentioned of a break in the "Irish" coaching ranks, but there was a big one from start to finish between Heartly "Hunk" Anderson and his junior assistant, Jack Chevigny, but that has been eliminated for next year with "Hunk" the head coach in form and fact and Chevigny out of the picture altogether.

RECORD FIELD OF 42 SEEKING DISTRICT A. A. U. RING TITLES

3 Champions Defending Crowns

Great Battles Due in Ring at Ritchie Coliseum.

Preliminaries Listed Wednesday; Finals on Saturday.

A RECORD-BREAKING field of entries will show at Ritchie Coliseum Wednesday and Saturday nights of this week when the District A. A. U. sponsors its third annual championship boxing tournament. Whereas only 27 were enrolled in 1931, a total of 42 had been passed on and approved yesterday. Several more are expected in the mail today.

Lending color to the approaching event will be the appearance of sensational newcomers who should add mightily to the general interest. This is particularly true in the lighter divisions, which boast by far the heaviest representation in history.

Only Four Are Defending Titles.

The fact that only three 1931 champions are to defend their crowns in their respective classes also should serve as an incentive to those entered. tered. Lou Gelvison, 112 pounds; Mike Tardugno, featherweight; Jocko Miller, 147 pounds, and "Mickey" O'Connor, 160 pounder, are the only kingpins who will be fighting in defense of their titles.

Leon Shub, 118-pound champion a year ago, will be shooting for the 135-pound peak, having graduated to a full-fledged lightweight since last appearing in the tourney.

Hottest competition undoubtedly will revolve around the 112 and 160 pound classes. In each instance, the winner will be forced to outscore a field of seven.

Mike Tardugno, 126-pound monarch, also may experience considerable difficulty in topping the field, especially so since his hard-punching brother, Joe, will be one of those seeking to dislodge him.

The American Legionnaires are contributing substantially in the matter of entrants, exactly ten showing in the eight classes, while Jim McNamara is furnishing the same number under the standard of Jewish Community Center.

Boys Club, Knights of Columbus, National Training School and Y. M. C. A. also are well represented.

The heavyweight class will be featured by the appearance of new faces, big Al Farrell, of the University of Maryland, and Reds Burke, Columbus University ace, standing out in a field of five.

All seats for the impending attraction are on sale at Spalding's and are available at $1. Early purchasers get their choice of seats.

Hyattsville High Nine Plans Outdoor Work

Hyattsville, Md., March 26.—Outdoor practice for the Hyattsville High School baseball squad is listed to start Tuesday when school is resumed following the holidays. With the opening game scheduled for April 13 with Charlotte Hall here, Coach Leland G. Worthington must hustle the squad. Unfavorable weather has delayed the start of practice.

Arnon Mehring, who has again been named manager of the Hyattsville team, rapidly is completing a schedule and aside from the Charlotte Hall game has booked six contests and has several more pending. It is planned to list in all only about a dozen games, in addition to the contests in the Prince Georges County high school championship series.

Weakling Colt Looms As Threat in Derby

Louisville, Ky., March 27 (A.P.).—Turf followers are a sentimental lot, so Sweeping Light is expected to have considerable backing if he starts in the Kentucky Derby.

Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt's leading eligible became a sturdy, winning 2-year-old last year after waging a hard fight against blood-poisoning.

When Alex Gordon, the Fair Stable trainer, began conditioning Sweeping Light last year it was found the colt had picked up a nail, and red lines were running through his leg, revealing infection spreading through the body.

He was nursed along, but no one thought he ever would develop into a race horse. However, he recovered sufficiently to be exercised, and was shipped to Saratoga.

In midsummer he won his first race, then ran a bang-up second to Tick On in the Hopeful Stakes. Later he won the Champagne Stakes, and at the end of the season his winnings were $12,625.

RAIN DEFEATS SOCCERISTS.

Rain prevented the playing of the two soccer matches scheduled for local fields yesterday. The Concord-British United tilt, which was to have been played on the Monument Grounds, and the Columbia Heights-Carlton Rangers battle, carded at Rosedale, were the games canceled. The teams may meet later in the season.

FUSSELL-YOUNG NINE OUT.

All candidates for the Fussell-Young nine, which will compete in the junior division of The Post's Capital City League, are requested to meet tomorrow night at 6 o'clock at the Noel House. Jim Mathews will manage the team this year. A brief drill will be held following the confab.

2 VA. BOXERS TO TRY FOR OLYMPICS

Goldstein and Gentry Enter Penn State Trials Apr. 8-9.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., March 27.—Fenton A. Gentry, of Chattanooga, Tenn., Virginia captain of boxing, and Robert Goldstein, of Washington, D. C., captain-elect of the 1933 ring team, have been entered in the national collegiate Olympic tryouts at Pennsylvania State College on April 8 and 9.

Both men are amateur boxers of exceptional ability. Gentry was light-heavyweight champion of the Southern Conference last season and was runner-up in the heavyweight division this year when he moved up into the unlimited class. He did not have a final try at the Dixie heavyweight title, for an injury forced him to forfeit to Doyless Hill, of Tulane. He is entered in the Olympics as a heavyweight.

Goldstein Unbeaten in College Rings.

Goldstein successfuly defended the featherweight championship of the Southern Conference last month. He has not been defeated in three seasons of college boxing. At Penn State he will compete in the lightweight class.

When he entered high school in Washington, Goldstein first took up boxing. He has competed in more than 100 bouts and has lost only two. In 1930 he was defeated by the New York Golden Gloves champion and he lost again last winter in the semi-finals of the National A. A. U. tournament.

Virginia athletic supporters are proud of these two athletes, because they are both honor students as well as fine boxers. Gentry is the holder of intermediate honors, the highest academic award that can come to an undergraduate. Goldstein is listed among the distinguished students in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Western High TeamTops School Rifle League

Western High School's marksmen are leading the interhigh rifle league today with two victories and no defeats, having defeated Tech's shooters, 1,358 to 1,271, and shoving the Manual Trainers into a last place tie with Eastern. Central holds second place.

Wallace, of Western, was the only individual of either team to score 100 hits in any of the three divisions of the match, marking up a perfect score in the prone position. Beckham, of Western, topped both teams with a total count of 276.

PIN RACE NEAR END.

Three matches that will go far toward determining the pennant in Section 2 of the Prince Georges County championship, which now lies among four teams, are scheduled at Hyattsville this week. Lustine-Nicholson, which is tied for second with Sligo, two games behind Sanitary District Survey, league leader, will meet Huddleston's tomorrow night on the Arcade alleys here. The other two encounters are scheduled Tuesday night when Survey meets the fourth-place Ross team and Sligo engages Sanitary District Construction.

ORIOLES BOW TO NATS, 8 TO 1

Marberry Impresses in 1932 Debut on the Mound.

all his native speed and struck him out to end the threat. He struck out Richmond to end an incipient rally in the second after Rogers had singled and in the third, when Heffner led off with a single, Joe Judge started a nobby double play, which he finished himself to deliver Marberry from danger.

One hit was the sum total of the Orioles' efforts off Weaver in his three innings. It was a triple to left by Packard in the fourth, with two out, but Weaver curved a third strike past Packard and Danning, who walked in the fifth, was the only other Oriole to reach base on the former Baltimore star.

Save for a pair of two-base hits by Cronin, in the third and fifth, Richmond encountered no more trouble from then until the sixth, when Arlett made a two-base error on Bluege's fly and the Nats scored twice more on singles by Heinie Manush and Sammy West.

The first batter to face Ragland in the seventh, Heinie Sand, tripled to left and scored on Rogers' long fly, but no other Oriole was able to hit safely off the Chattanooga recruit during his tenure on the mound.

In the meanwhile, the Nats had placed the game beyond recall, with a six-hit attack on Wally Tauscher, a former mate, in the eighth, which netted four runs. Howard Maple led off this rally with a single and singles by Myer, Manush, West, Reynolds and Judge followed.

Joe Judge, playing in the absence of Joey Kuhel, who is nursing an injured hand, fielded today with all his native brilliance. He was poison to big "Buzz" Arlett, gathering in his three hot grounders in sensational fashion. Judge made one hit in three times at bat and started one of his inimitable double plays from first to second to first.

Buddy Myer and Freddy Marberry collaborated in making the finest fielding play of the exhibition season in the third inning when Myer went back on the grass to trap McGowan's grounder and to perfectly time a rifle throw to Marberry, the pitcher catching the ball as he stepped on the bag full tilt.

Young Howard Maple caught the entire game today with Cliff Bolton nursing a "charley horse" in his leg, sustained yesterday. Maple performed in fine fashion behind the bat and started the Nats' big inning with a sharp single to right in the eighth.

After Sand had tripled off Ragland to open the eighth, Bluege held him on the base by playing Packard's grounder like a cat, withholding the throw to first until the last possible moment.

The Nats face only two more exhibition games before pulling up stakes here for the seven-day trip north. They meet the Baltimore Orioles at Gulfport again on Tuesday and face the Brooklyn Robins Friday in their farewell appearance here. Brooklyn will be the Nats' only big league opposition of the Southern campaign.

"IRISH" CARRY ON WITHOUT ROCKNE

Director of Athletics Jess Harper, a quiet but firm person who started Notre Dame on the upward path before Rockne came along, broke up the Anderson-Chevigny feud over coaching tactics and authority by naming "Hunk" absolute head coach, releasing Chevigny and surrounding Anderson with several of the stars from his 1931 machine, including Marchy Schwartz and Capt. Tommy Yarr.

So, with internal dissension eliminated from the coaching ranks and a fine crop of promising freshmen moving up to join a good crowd of left-over regulars, the football situation for 1932 looks fine.

Basketball enjoyed its greatest season at Notre Dame, although it was a spirited alumnus who stepped into the picture to settle a difficulty that meant the difference between a mediocre and brilliant record.

The team got off to a shaky start, winning two and then losing to Purdue and Indiana, with Ek Krause, a player with a great prep reputation, warming the substitute bench. The alumnus persuaded the coach to build his plays around Krause and give him a chance. The coach did and the team stepped out to win sixteen straight games and lay claim to the mythical national basket ball championship.

The track team, always one of "Rock's" hobbies, is in the midst of a fine season, with harmony all around and winning dual meets with teams that used to meet Notre Dame for a warm-up. The baseball team also points to a big season.

Behind the scenes of probably the most crucial year in Notre Dame athletics sits Harper, but so far he is doing a far better job than expected since he hurriedly left the tranquillity of ranch life in Kansas, only a few miles from where Rockne crashed a year ago, and took up the athletic reins again.

"He doesn't say much, but he is a better man for that tough job than anybody realizes," remarked one of Notre Dame's great athletes of the past. "What he says goes when he says it. He expects every coach to run his field with the same Rockne drive, and so far they have been doing just about that."

—St. Johns Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

ST. JOHNS PARK, Jacksonville, Fla., March 27.—St. Johns Park goes on a thin diet of $400 purses tomorrow for the final four days of the meeting, which winds up winter racing. Agua Caliente ended yesterday, and most of the horses at the Mexico track entrained for the East or Kentucky. St. John's has large fields, the change in prize money seeming not to have cooled the ardor of the horsemen, who would welcome the small purses for a getaway.

NONANA looks best in the fourth race. It has never been explained why she ran so poorly in her last race. This is a very ordinary field, and she should run away from it. FOREIGN PLAY, disregarding his last race, should be the contender. BILL SOUTHAM, winner of two Florida races, has the call for third money, and might finish closer.

FIRST RACE—ROMAC should win again. On Friday he graduated from the maiden class in a field as good as this. COL. CLOISTER is rated the contender on his second a short time ago to Strait Jacket. SOCIAL BEE should improve and may be dangerous among these 2-year-olds.

SECOND RACE—CHATTAHOOCHEE is overdue. Has been beaten as a favorite a time or two, and has only to run back to his race a week ago when he was second to Wave Top, or his previous race, when he finished a head behind Princeton, to win the second race with ease. PATRICK CALLAHAN is getting back in form and should hold the others safe. HAZEL GUMBERTS has the call on third money.

THIRD RACE—BOB BLACKBURN should have another chance, and he never will have a better one than in the third dash, in which STUPENDOUS is the ranking contender. BOB BLACKBURN has never quite run back to his race second to The Heathen and he does not have to do so to win this one. MISS RUNANTELL seems best of the others, but would go better on a slow track.

FIFTH RACE—SAND FIDDLER is selected on the belief that he will improve over the increased distance. At a mile a few days ago he was third to Tack, with TANTALIZING second. TANTALIZING had set the pace to the stretch. SAND FIDDLER came from far back and was catching the leaders at the end. TANTALIZING should hold the place and STELLA NOVA is expected to wake up and get third money. He is really the best horse in the race if in top form.

SIXTH RACE—HARUM SCARUM has a good chance in the sixth. He will have BLANKET BAY, a horse which has run some good races, as chief contender, but the latter disappointed in his last out. HARUM SCARUM is a higher class horse and has had more racing experience. PAL TO PAL is showing a return to form and should get in the money beyond a reasonable doubt.

SEVENTH RACE—BIRD OF PREY is best. Third to Bagiel in his last start, he should win over this field. DR. BILLY showed a flash of speed the other day in a neck finish with Big Bo and may be a troublesome contender. GENIAL HOST, on some races, has a good money chance in this.

THE POST'S CONSENSUS AT ST. JOHN'S

Wilbur Shaw Winner In Los Angeles Race

Los Angeles, Calif., March 27 (A.P.). Driving a fast but consistent race, Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis automobile racer, won the 62½-mile feature event at the Legion Ascot Speedway today.

His time was 48 minutes 15.10 seconds. Lester Spangler was second, Arvel Brunnier third, Stubby Stubblefield, fourth and Jimmy Sharp fifth. All but Shaw are from Los Angeles.

Yanks Pound Ball Hard In Exhibition Contests

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 27 (A.P.).—The wallop the New York Yankees have demonstrated in exhibition games in the "Grapefruit League" is sustaining critics who call the club the most powerful in baseball.

In their first eight games, the Ruppert Rifles banged out an average of 7 runs and 10 hits a contest.

During the 1931 season, Ruth, Gehrig and company slugged opposing pitching for an average of 10.7 hits and 6.8 runs a game.

Hyattsville Bowlers In Title Event Today

Hyattsville, Md., March 27.—Ten Prince Georges County Duckpin Association stalwarts will show their wares tomorrow afternoon and night in the national championships at Norfolk, appearing in singles and doubles in the afternoon and team competition at night.

All ten will take part in the singles. They are Bob Temple, Boots Halloran, Oscar Swain, Bert Sheehy, Oscar Hiser, High Waldrop, Mac McCall, Harry Wolfe, Perce Wolfe and Louis Pantos.

In the doubles the Prince Georgians will use Swain and Hiser, Sheehy and Halloran, McCall and Temple, Waldrop and Perce Wolf and Pantos and Harry Wolfe.

Teams will roll as the Hyattsville All-Stars and Dixie Pigs. Making up the former will be Temple, Halloran, Swain, Sheehy and Hiser, and on the latter will be Waldrop, McCall, Harry and Perce Wolfe and Pantos.

INTERCITY RIVALRY RENEWED IN BOUTS

Sammy Braunstein, welterweight, facing Clarence Sloat, one of the hardest-punching youngsters in Baltimore's large fistic army. Braunstein seeks to regain some lost prestige at Sloat's expense, having lost his last three starts.

The winner of the Portney-Jacobs duel probably will meet Louie Jallos of Cleveland, in two weeks. Portney concludes training this afternoon at the Jewish Community Center in a workout beginning at 2 o'clock.

Alexandria Planning Amateur Ring Bouts

Amateur boxing shows will be held in nearby Virginia, probably in Alexandria, beginning some time in April if plans of the Day Nursery Athletic Association materialize. In making this announcement last night, Jack Tulloch, chairman of the Nursery athletic committee, stated that two shows will be held each month should public interest warrant.

Amateur boxing was recently legalized by the Virginia Legislature, the bill signed by Gov. Garland Pollard permitting bouts of four three-minute rounds. The Day Nursery A. A. will seek incorporation under laws of the State and one or two clubs will be organized to sponsor boxing teams.

Tulloch expressed belief that the Nursery's new project will give stimulus to the simon-pure brand of fisticuffing in this vicinity and that intercity tournaments, which have proven so attractive in other sections of the country, will result.

ST. JOSEPH'S RAINED OUT.

The game scheduled between the St. Joseph's A. C. and the Everett-Waddy Co. nine, of Richmond, which was to have been played on the latter's diamond yesterday, was canceled because of inclement weather. The teams may schedule a game to be played at a later date.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

St. Louis Browns' 8-to-4 victory over the Buffalo Bisons, of the International League, in an exhibition game here today.

Ferrell's hits drove in five runs. The Browns were able to get only seven safe blows off Bergerson and Pfingstler, both right-handers. The Browns' fielding was featured by two double plays and no errors.

Carnegie, center fielder for the Bisons, made a couple of two-base hits to lead his team at bat.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 27 (A.P.). The Boston Braves closed their annual spring series with the New York Yankees with a 3 to 1 victory today, but the Yanks captured the "St. Pete championship," 6 games to 2.

Babe Ruth was kept out of the Yankee line-up by a stiff neck, which was so sore he could not swing a bat. Sam Byrd, who replaced him, made two of the Yanks' four hits off Socks Siebold and Tom Zachary. The Braves nicked Vernon Gomez and Dusty Rhodes for 10 hits, winning the game in the ninth by bunching 3 blows and a sacrifice for 2 runs.

In the big inning, three walks were combined with a triple by Roettger and a double by Durocher. Wally Gilbert, a former Dodger, and Chick Cuccinello, former Red, hit homers.

The Oaks almost pulled the game out of the fire in the ninth when two runs were scored and the tying counter was on base. Hal Schumacher allowed Fuzzy Hufft an outfield pop, however, and retired the side.

The minor leaguers fell on Bowman for four hits, a walk, a hit batsman and five runs in the second inning.

Tomorrow the Sox meet the Newark Internationals in the first of three games. The games are expected to give the Collins clan a good workout inasmuch as the Jerseyites have been cleaning up against major league talent this spring. "Bull" Durham and left-handed Bob Weiland will do the pitching for the Red Sox.

Eagles Defeat Hornets In Inaugural Game, 2-0

The Washington Eagles managed to pry the lid off the 1932 sandlot diamond campaign yesterday, even though they did have to travel deep into the backwoods of Virginia to a town oddly enough called Washington to accomplish the feat. Here they met and vanquished the Washington Hornets, 2 to 0, in a game of mid-season caliber.

Joe Fox, who pitched for the Eagles and held his opponents to two safeties, won the game for his team with a lusty home run in the ninth inning. The hit came with Wilson perched on second base. Fox mixed the usual proportion of early season wildness with his pitches, walking seven men, but he bore down when the occasion demanded.

G. W. Spring Football Drills End Thursday

While other colleges of the Capital area are awaiting the end of the Easter holidays to conduct practice at full speed, George Washington University plans to conclude its spring football drills on Thursday.

A squad of 45 players, including a dozen who did not participate in either varsity or freshmen football last fall, has been working out under Coach Jim Pixlee on favorable days during the past three weeks at the Tidal Basin. Pixlee's efforts have been concentrated on determining the qualities of the newcomers.

Catholic University will resume practices Thursday in Brookland Stadium. Maryland, American and Georgetown will start anew next week.

Former Trojan Gridders Anxious to Play Here

Don Williams, all-American quarter back at Southern California in 1929, arrived in Washington yesterday after a ten-day automobile-crossing of the continent, with hopes of securing a berth with the proposed local professional football team. With Williams on the journey was Garrett Arbelbide, who played end for the Trojans last year. Arbelbide continued to Philadelphia, but expects to return to the Capital if pro football takes a hold here.

Williams, who is but 5 feet 4 and weighs only 150 pounds, was one of the smallest men ever to gain all-America recognition. He called signals for Southern California during the seasons of 1927, 1928 and 1929. Ernie Pinckert, full back, and Tom Mallory, half back, of the 1931 Trojan eleven which conquered Notre Dame and Tulane to win the national championship, also are anxious to play professional football in Washington, said Williams.

BUSINESS WAITING TAX LEGISLATION

Larger Manufacturers Curb Sales; Smaller Lines Record Gains.

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—Business continued in the week just ended to mark time while some of the present uncertainties over Washington tax legislation, as well as other problems, were being cleared up.

The larger producers of basic goods were inclined to keep their sales efforts on a moderate basis until decisive progress might be in evidence in the matter of taxes, and the effect on the business price structure might be gauged. Some gains were reported in the lighter lines, but the heavier industries were still stagnant.

Leading business executives again centered a large part of their study on prospective stimulation of the automobile industry. It was reported that Ford production was gradually stepping up, but as yet no marked stimulus has yet been felt by related industries. There also was talk of a concerted springtime sales drive by the leading motor car producers as a means of starting buying initiative.

Some exponents of the belief that American industry can bestir itself from its present inertia without awaiting stimulus from abroad in the form of better foreign trade, have been urging automobile manufacturers to embark on a highly concentrated spring program designed to start the general business machine running at a higher pitch. The basis sales appeal for such a campaign, it was indicated in private trade reports, would center around the theory that prices on cars today represent the greatest values ever offered in the automotive field.

The oil industry furnished one of the brighter spots during the week and again raised hopes as to the possibility of swinging the long declining course of prices in the other direction. Important producers in the midcontinent field marked up quotations for crude oil 15 cents a barrel.

The price change which will go into effect on April 1 will restore the quotation to 92 cents, which virtually recovers the loss suffered by the quotation in the last year. On January 1, 1931, crude oil was posted at 95 cents from which levels it fell to the record low level for basic gravity at 33 cents. The latest advance is 15 cents from the 77-cent level where oil had been ruling for nearly five months without change.

With hopes based largely on the prospect of at least minor stimulation of buying from the automotive business, the steel industry went through another dull week without its price structure showing important change. Producers have succeeded thus far in maintaining a price at which the industry can earn a profit, although incoming business has been disappointingly low. The industry again was producing last week at 25 per cent of capacity, virtually unchanged from the preceding week.

Some slight pick-up in railroad orders is anticipated because of the fact that some railroads can scarcely hope to carry on much further without increasing their expenditures for maintenance purposes. The carriers reported a gain of 16,000 in carloadings, due to a sharp increase in coal loadings, in their weekly report. There were also some evidences to show that their position had been improved moderately as a result of the recent wage cut.

Copper prices suffered a slight setback in the export field, but, in this field, it was explained that more than a few weeks of time must be allowed for the industry to reap the benefits expected from its recently adopted program of production curtailment.

N.&W. Funded Debt Is Cut $10,594,000

Railway's Annual Report Also Shows Net Income Much Lower.

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—The Norfolk & Western Railway Co. today made public its pamphlet report for 1931 showing a reduction of $10,594,000 in its funded debt due to payment at maturity of $7,235,000 general mortgage 6 per cent bonds and $3,270,000 4½ per cent equipment certificates.

The report also showed net income after all charges of $20,239,644, as previously reported, equivalent to $14.39 a share on its common stock against $30,897,073 the year before or $21.97 a share.

Current assets amounted at the end of the year to $12,155,776 against current liabilities of $4,110,742. Corporate surplus stood at $203,792,166. Investment in property used in transportation service was $324,841,861.

Insull Utilities to Pay Usual Annual Dividends

Chicago, March 27 (A.P.).—Samuel Insull, utility magnate, said in a statement issued tonight that 1932 financing for three big operating companies which serve Chicago and vicinity would put no strain upon any of the companies. The corporations referred to were the Commonwealth Edison Co., the Peoples Gas Light & Coke Co. and the Public Service Co. of Northern Illinois.

"The accounts of these companies," the statement says, "for practically the first three months of the year show that with business as it is, and with no improvement for the remainder of the year, they will all in 1932, earn the dividends which they have been in the habit of paying, and a substantial surplus besides."

Green Cites Drop In Spring Job Gain

Seasonal Increase Slower Than Last Year, He Says; Relief Needs Grow.

(Associated Press.)

The usual spring gain in employment during March was said yesterday by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, to have failed of materialization so far.

Estimating there are 8,000,000 out of work, Green stated only about 300,000 had returned to work during March, compared to 500,000 who had found employment during the month last year. During March this year only about 175,000 had found employment on farms, he said, when usually 250,000 get such employment, while in industry only 125,000 had been given work, compared with an average return of 160,000.

"These figures show clearly that we may expect relief needs to continue higher than ever this spring," the statement declared, "not only because workers' resources are exhausted, but because the unemployed are not finding even the opportunities they found last year for seasonal work in industry and farming."

Harvester Concern To Credit Farmers

Official Convinced Growers Will Buy if Assured of Higher Prices.

Chicago, March 27 (A.P.).—The International Harvester Co., in an offer to purchasers of farm machinery made public today, expresses itself as willing to extend credit on the basis of 70 cents a bushel for wheat and 50 cents for corn at Chicago, and 8½ cents a pound for cotton at New Orleans.

No. 2 hard wheat, the grade mentioned by the company, has not been traded on the Chicago Exchange for several days. Allowing for the recent price reductions, however, it would be traded in the neighborhood of 52 cents. No. 2 yellow corn sold yesterday at 33¼ to 34½ cents.

George A. Raney, vice president in charge of sales, explained that the company is convinced the farmers' reluctance to buy farm machinery is due to present unsatisfactory prices and that if they were assured of higher prices they would buy.

Legislative Threat Held Trade Delay

Guaranty Trust Review Says Proposed Laws Deter Activity.

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—While some improvement is noted by the Guaranty Trust Co. in its monthly review of business and finance, it asserts that a deterring influence stands in the way of more rapid improvement in "proposed legislation at Washington."

The review says that "radical and unsound proposals in tax legislation and the threat of possible drastic revision of the Federal Reserve act affecting the banking situation, have presented somewhat alarming aspects, which have created widespread apprehension and hesitation.

While it is, of course, possible and perhaps probable that the eventual legislation enacted in these fields may not be as harmful as the original proposals in their present state, they carry a menace that can not be ignored.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—One of the factors having a great deal to do with Wall street's depressed spirits at the week-end was the heavy selling of American Telephone & Telegraph, which forced the price of this investment leader down to within a few points of its 1932 low. As is usual when the stock is under pressure, there was plenty of gossip regarding a possible cut in the $9 dividend rate. The next meeting of directors for dividend action will be held around May 15.

Youngstown reports say that the Republic Steel Corporation will resume operations at its Warren, Ohio, plant in the coming week, after a one-week shutdown. It is said that the Sharon Steel Hoop Co. and Truscon Steel Co. will continue operations at 35 per cent of respective capacities.

Protective committees representing holders of 6½ per cent bonds, the 7 per cent notes and the Class "A" stock of R. Hoe & Co., have called for deposit of the respective securities in connection with the default by the company in the April 1 interest on the bonds and notes.

BOND MARKET SAGS UNDER HEAVY SALES

Kreuger & Toll Affairs Add to Trading Worries and Tax Anxieties.

New York, March 27 (A.P.).—Uncertainty regarding national tax legislation, together with some disturbing spots on the foreign horizon, had a rather depressing effect on the bond market during the past week.

While dealers and investors were watching, somewhat apprehensively, the proceedings at Washington, the Friday holiday intervened and along came news from Stockholm that the investigating commission had recommended a protracted moratorium for Kreuger & Toll. Losses of from 7 to 9 points on these Kreuger issues, added to the already gloomy domestic atmosphere, brought further liquidation into various corporate categories that had previously maintained a comparatively steady undertone. The net average loss for 60 principal bonds for the week was 1 3-10 points.

The United States Government list, which had been running counter to the trend and had recorded a number of new highs for the year, also turned moderately soft on Thursday and Saturday.

Heaviness marked the movement of International Telephone issues, Postal Telegraphs, Western Unions, Utility Power & Lights and Shell Union Oils. The Shell Unions descended to new 1932 lows Saturday with losses of from 5¼ to 6½ points.

The foreign category was relatively steady, outside of the Kreuger liens, and bonds of Argentine and Germany, which fluctuated several points during the week on rumors of financial disturbances, but rallied later. Japanese loans firmed as did those of Chile, Australia, Brazil, Norway, Denmark and Sweden. French and Italian bonds improved.

The curb market has had a flabby appearance in recent sessions. Trading was generally characterized by dullness during last week, although volume picked up on Saturday's decline.

Announcement of higher oil prices, followed by a strengthening in gasoline quotations, inspired the petroleum issues to temporary firmness. Gulf Oil was particularly responsive, but interest in most of the others lagged as soon as the brief flurry of buying had spent itself.

Selling in the utilities, some brokers point out, reflects the unfavorable comparison which electric power output is making with a year ago and also the imminence of some loan maturities. Earnings statements in most cases are showing the effects of business depression.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

GRASS is and always has been more important to mankind than any other living thing. Not only does man eat more grass than anything else, but the animals that provide his meat are also dependent on grass.

One grass alone, rice, forms the principal diet of half the entire population of the world.

Bread is more widely used than any other food, and it is made from grass.

Sugar is used the world over, and most of the sugar used is obtained from sugar cane, a grass.

Grass is not merely a short, thin-bladed growth exceptionally suited for making a front lawn. All grasses are characterized by jointed shoots. The largest, bamboo, attains a height of 120 feet and is often 3 feet around. The grains of bamboo and its young shoots as well are highly valued as a food. It has many other uses; houses, bridges, boats and numerous other structures are made of bamboo.

Corn, oats, barley, rye, in fact, all grains are nothing more than grass seeds, and all true cereals belong to the grain family. Cereals are so called because Ceres, the Roman goddess of the harvest, presided especially over the growth of the grains.

Of the grasses that constitute hay fields and pastures alone there are over 100 species. Large standard dictionaries devote more than a whole page to the names of the many grasses.

Any reader wanting further poof of anything depicted here should address the author, care of The Washington Post, and inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.

EPSTEIN GIVES SELF UP TO POLICE HERE IN HI-JACK SLAYING

Suspect Is Booked Upon Murder Charge in Death of James Wilson.

SURRENDER ARRANGED BY CAPITAL ATTORNEY

Six Men Who Accuse Prisoner Held as Federal Witnesses in Case.

After informing police from his hideaway in Baltimore that he was ready to give himself up, Henry Epstein, 30, was brought to this city late yesterday afternoon and booked on a charge of murder in connection with the shooting early Saturday morning of James Wilson.

Gives Capital Address.

Through an attorney, Epstein, who gave his local address as 1480 Girard street northwest, told Detective Sergt. John Dalglish his whereabouts in Baltimore. The detective was informed that the usual procedure of having police of the Maryland city make the arrest would be unnecessary.

Dalglish and the attorney went to Baltimore and after talking for about an hour with Epstein, the trio returned here. Epstein was being held last night at the Fifth Precinct station.

Six Witnesses Accuse Him.

Six men held under bond as United States witnesses, have stated that Epstein shot Wilson. The shooting took place in Wilson's apartment at 225 Massachusetts avenue northeast after a quarrel between the two men supposedly beginning with charges by Epstein that Wilson hijacked him.

A series of recreational activities, including instruction, practice and participation in games and programs for groups of all ages is the purpose of this annual institute for colored workers in community organization.

The bodies of the couple were found Saturday after police broke down the locked doors of their home. Gas jets were open and unlighted. The couple was found to have been nearly destitute.

Attack on Woman Laid To Arrested Salesman

Fred Hacket, 26 years old, a salesman, who gave his address as 3208 R street northwest, was arrested last night after he is alleged to have struck Mrs. Hazel Phipps, while in her home at 613 Rock Creek Church road.

Neighbors called police and Hackett is alleged to have struck Patrolman E. W. Brown, who went to the woman's aid. Hackett was booked on two charges of assault, disorderly conduct and drunkenness.

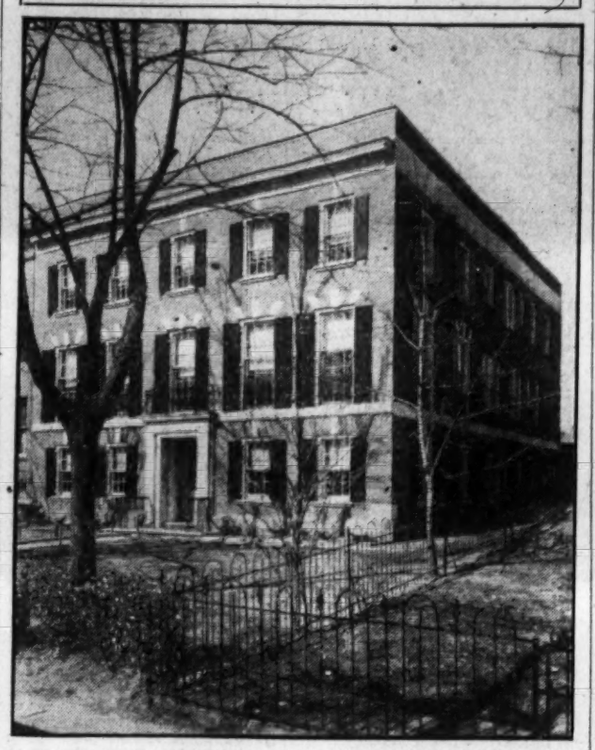
CHRIST CHILD SOCIETY HOME



A. S. Blum Photo.

New Christ Child Society Settlement House, 608 Massachusetts avenue northeast, which will be dedicated by Archbishop Michael J. Curley on Monday, April 4.

SETTLEMENT HOUSE WILL BE DEDICATED

Archbishop Curley to Open Christ Child Headquarters April. 4.

Washington's most modern settlement house, the Christ Child Society headquarters at 608 Massachusetts avenue, northeast, will be formally dedicated Monday afternoon, April 4, at 4 o'clock, by the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, according to announcement yesterday by officials of the society. The first unit of the new settlement, according to social work authorities, represents the most modern type of building for this kind of work.

The building is three-story brick and fireproof throughout. Donald Johnson was the architect, given the award "commended" by the advisory council of the board of architects. Bahen and Wright were the builders.

Following the purchase by the Government of the former headquarters, the old Admiral Robley D. Evans home on Indiana avenue, officials of the Christ Child Society had made a survey of the city for the purpose of locating in that section most strongly in need of a settlement house. After careful consideration, the present site was selected and the work on the first unit started. This unit is now complete, containing the various classrooms, clubrooms and other features for settlement work. Plans for later construction, at present held up by lack of funds, call for a modern gymnasium, to be erected on the same lot.

Monument to Founder.

The new settlement, officials of the Christ Child Society state, is really a monument to Miss Mary V. Merrick, to whose untiring efforts on behalf of children the creation of the society is due. Started about 30 years ago on a small scale, the society has steadily progressed, including a wider and wider scope, until today it provides all sorts of care and help for children, including a convalescent home at Rockville, Md.

All sorts of recreation, studies, Boy and Girl Scout work and other features, including a dental clinic, the first established in Washington, are included in the settlement. The Christ Child Society is a member of the Community Chest and works for children in connection with other Community Chest organizations.

Recently Elected Directors.

Following the dedication a week from tomorrow, there will be a reception and tea in honor of Archbishop Curley and afterward the guests will be conducted through the building by the staff of the society.

The members of the board of directors of the Christ Child Society, recently elected are Mrs. T. P. Ballenger, Mrs. Harold Boyd, Mrs. D. J. Callahan, Mrs. Thomas Carter, Mrs. Aubrey Clarke, Mme. Thomas H. Healy, Mrs. John Foote, Miss Gower, Miss Catherine Keane, Mrs. John J. Noonan, Mrs. Sarah Pepper, Miss Agnes Riley, Mrs. Charles Semmes, Mrs. Frederick Altemus, Miss Mary Barney, Mrs. Robert Cahill, Miss Louise Darr, Mrs. James A. Emery, Mrs. J. G. Man Struck By Automobile.

Carl O. Anderson, 38 years old, of 606 Sixth street northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital yesterday for bruises received when struck by an automobile at Ninth street and Mount Vernon place northwest. Henry D. Waters, 34 years old, of 1448 Girard street northwest, the driver, said Anderson stepped from behind a parked car.

BIBLE READING PAYS WOLTER $10 WEEKLY

Fasting, Agnostic Scholar Gets Sum From Seventh Day Adventists.

Dr. Frederick F. Wolter, German-born scholar and agnostic, who is in his twenty-eighth day of fasting as a protest against unemployment conditions, is being paid $10 a week by the Seventh Day Adventists to read the Bible five hours a day.

He accepted the offer as he needs the money to pay the rent for the small, neat room that he occupies at the Salvation Army Hotel at 119 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He is diligently studying the Bible and marking several passages that interest him, but insists that he does not believe them and never can, as his belief is that there is not another world after this one. According to the scholar, who speaks eight languages and has three college degrees, when the brain stops functioning, everything stops. There is no such thing as a soul, but perhaps when the Bible was written 2,000 years ago, there was a belief that every one had a soul. According to him, that is wrong.

Dr. Wolter once held a good position with the Library of Congress. He was discharged for some reason and has been trying ever since to get his position back, or another one that pays a decent living salary. He could get neither, so as a protest against the unfair working conditions here, according to him, he started his hunger strike.

Last night Dr. Wolter slowly descended the stairs at the hotel and sat in the lobby so that he could listen to the radio. "Soon it will be all over. I can not come down the stairs many more times, for in a few days I must stay in bed and await the end."

He estimates that he has lost a pound a day since he began his fast on February 28, and does not care how soon the end will come. He says that he is not afraid to die, that he has no feeling about it, as there is nothing to interest him—no job, no home and no family.

Face of Young Matron Lacerated in Auto Crash

Mrs. Eleanor McAllister, 24 years old, of 2124 I street northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital for severe lacerations of the face incurred while riding as a passenger in a car operated by her husband, Alton McAllister, 32 years old, who was in collision at the intersection of Seventeenth street and Constitution avenue northwest last night with a car operated by William W. Greelee, 35 years old, of 804 Twenty-third street northwest.

Mrs. McAllister was removed to Emergency Hospital in a passing car, and after receiving treatment was allowed to return home.

Auto Hits Parked Car; Driver Cut About Face

Jesse W. Cannon, of 1509 Sixteenth street northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital yesterday for injuries received when the automobile he was driving crashed into a parked car in front of 1026 Sixteenth street northwest.

The parked automobile is the property of Norman F. Bryce, of Tudor Hall, Tenth and Massachusetts avenue northwest. After treatment at Emergency Hospital for lacerations of the face, Cannon was booked at the Third Precinct station on a charge of reckless driving.

Police Courtesy for Visitors.

In order that members of the Police Department may aid in extending the hospitality of the city to visitors during the Easter holidays, Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, yesterday issued an order that every courtesy should be shown the thousands of visitors who are in the city.

REDS WHO STAGED EMBASSY PROTEST FACE COURT TODAY

Communists Objecting to Japanese Imperialism to Plead Not Guilty.

ONLY ONE OF PRISONERS HAS BEEN FREED IN BOND

Report of Radicals' Return to Official Nipponese Residence False.

The Communists who fought fiercely with police in front of the Japanese Embassy will parade into police court today under guard of their erstwhile adversaries to answer charges growing out of the riot that ended their demonstration.

There was evident last night a great abatement of the fighting inclinations of the demonstrators. In the Third Precinct Station, where most of the demonstrators are jailed, Capt. Edward J. Kelly reported that his prisoners were "very quiet," in contrast to their disorderliness of the day before.

All of the Communists, who were arrested Saturday during their protest of "Japanese Imperialism," will plead not guilty to the various charges involving assault, disorderly conduct and parading without a permit, it was announced by their attorney, Charles E. Ford.

Return Is Feared.

Fear that the Communists had returned to the embassy at 2514 Massachusetts avenue, arose early yesterday when police were called to the place. Men on guard at the embassy had observed on the hillside of Rock Creek Park, who were at first thought to be flares.

In anticipation of further disorders, a Rescue Squad ambulance was sent with policemen. The underbrush in Rock Creek Park, adjacent to the embassy, was thoroughly searched and it was discovered that the "flares" were burning underbrush.

Bernard Ades, a Baltimore attorney, affiliated with the International Labor Defense, will not take part in the court proceedings, although it is reliably reported that he was seeking to aid the defense. Ades acted as defense attorney for Yewell Lee, a colored laborer, who was recently convicted of murdering several white people in Maryland.

One Freed on Bond.

Only one of the demonstrators, Donald E. Plymton, of Baltimore, was released on bond. The others who will face court on various charges are: William Dorsey, colored, 22 years old, no address; Louis Williams, colored, 43 years old, 1337 Seventh street northwest; Walter G. Woods, colored, 30 years old, of South Washington, Va.; William Henry Baragoss, colored, 36 years old, of Baltimore.

Burdett McKinley Brown, colored, 25 years old, of Philadelphia; Walter L. Johnson, colored, 23 years old, of Philadelphia; Ivan Kostrow, 29 years old, of Baltimore; Ivan Ignatoff, 29 years old, of Baltimore; Pete G. Stergion, 29 years old, of Baltimore; Charles A. Edwards, of Baltimore; Albert Sylvester, 32 years old, of Baltimore; James L. Kennedy, Albert Suskin and Stephen J. Rathajczak, all of Philadelphia.

The women to face court are Joan Hardy, 21 years old, of Baltimore; Elva Grayson, 18 years old, of Baltimore; Rose Smith, 24 years old, of Philadelphia; Mary Grossman, 21 years old, and Ella Tyler, 55 years old, no address.

Man Held After Wife Is Stabbed.

Though her husband said he was only "playing," Ida Banes, colored, 49 years old, of 2001 Ninth street northwest, was treated last night at Freedmen's Hospital for wounds in the back caused by an ice pick. Her husband, Fred, is under arrest, pending the outcome of the woman's condition.

GAIN IN REVERENCE FOR EASTER CITED IN DR. SIZOO'S SERMON

Belief in Unconquerable Life Is Described as Cause of Change.

DAY IS BRINGING MANY BACK TO CHURCH, VIEW

Confidence in God's Power Urged by Presbyterian Minister.

"One of the amazing facts of Christian faith in the modern world is the ever-increasing reverence for Easter festival," said Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, speaking yesterday at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. "Unconquerable Life" was the subject of Dr. Sizoo's sermon.

"No day of the Christian calendar compels so largely the hope and the thought of men. Easter has captured the imagination of the world. Ever-increasing numbers are looking with ever-deepening reverence to this morning. Hearts that are coldly indifferent or utterly unconcerned about religion become strangely warm with the glow of the resurrection morning," Dr. Sizoo continued.

"Why is that so? How can you explain it, and what does it mean? Is it the story that entrances the imagination of men? The modern world is not in a mood for sentiment. It is a machine age. The only time when the world becomes sentimental is when a mountebank of the underworld pleads for the chance of bringing back a stolen child, or a criminal is refused a last appeal. The poets, artists and dreamers have a hard time of it in this age.

Hope of Next Life.

"Is it because at last the world has proof of life beyond death? Is it because Easter offers the assurances of immortality? The world has been looking for that assurance. Most people who live in the world think of life beginning at birth and ending at death. They are not greatly concerned with the future life, they are only concerned with getting by in this life.

"What, then is the cause of this ever-increasing reverence for the Easter festival?" Dr. Sizoo asked.

"It is because mankind believes that the world can not kill Jesus. A life of love cannot ultimately be kept in the grave. Easter is the silent eulogy upon the unconquerable life. Democracy may have its Calvary, but it will also have its resurrection.

"The Easter festival means more than the resurrection of Jesus. It means the ultimate triumph of His life. He was a victim who could not be victimized; He was a prisoner who could not be imprisoned; He has a power too irresistible to keep down Life needs that revival of hope.

Undefeatable Issues.

"We must remember again that the issues of God can not be ultimately defeated. Pilate never speaks the last word—only Jesus of Nazareth. The great moral ventures men make, the anguish they endure, the conflicts with sin, which they undergo, are never, never in vain," Dr. Sizoo said.

"Too often the philosophy of futility and cynicism reigns in the modern world. It maintains that man is the offspring of the beast; that duty is the imbecile child of prejudice; that conscience is the bait of a simpleton; that God is a myth and life is a joke.

"We who live in a defeated age, who live in a time when life is utterly hopeless—let us never forget that the surging passion of the modern age for Easter bears witness to the truth that the heart of this world is still sound and that we believe in the ultimate triumph of good," Dr. Sizoo ended.

'DIVINITY OF CHRIST' DR. SHELTON'S TOPIC

Mount Vernon Place Pastor Holds Resurrection Satisfies Hopes.

"The resurrection of Jesus proclaims his divinity," said Dr. William A. Shelton, preaching yesterday at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church on "When Winter Is Done."

"It is the test of our faith," Dr. Shelton continued. "It is the center of our theology. It fulfills our hopes and dreams and satisfies our reason. It is attested by the peculiar fashion of man's mind. It is the demand of human love which never yields even to death.

"Love spans the tides of life and is ever Lord of Death. Nature herself symbolizes the resurrection. Winter is the time of death and sleep. Spring brings a resurrection of all nature and when winter is done life begins anew. Easter is the season of celebrating the rebirth of all life.

"Into the winter of death all who have lived on earth have gone, and all who will live on earth are going. The grave is never satisfied and into its cruel depths we cry and no answer comes but the hollow echo of our own voices.

Only One Has Returned.

"The tread of all men has left myriad footprints all going in and none coming out. Yes, there is one coming out, and that is the print of a wounded foot, and there answers back from that dark depths one voice and that voice says, 'I am the resurrection and the life. Whosoever believeth in me shall never die.' The warning sun of righteousness shines into the winter of death and spring comes with renewed life and hope."

"To those who see across the flood by faith, death itself becomes but a narrow stream. Some one asked a little girl if she were not afraid to go through the cemetery and her reply was, 'No, I only go through the cemetery on my way home.'

"So it is with all of us. We pass through the cemetery on our way home. Cemetery means a sleeping place and Jesus said, 'Our friend Lazarus sleepeth and I go to awaken him.'

"Like some kind parent who slips into the children's bedroom and turns back the covers and says, 'Get up, children, it is day,' so shall our heavenly Father turn back the sod from the lowly beds of his sleeping children and say, 'Get up, children, it is day.'

Most Majestic Symbol.

"The Cross is the most majestic symbol on earth. It is at the same time the most inexplicable. Should God die? He hung upon the Cross. They took Him down and wound Him in grave clothes. They put Him in a tomb and sealed it with the seal of the Roman Empire. Death waved proudly his scepter over the grave of God. But there was a woman who had been redeemed and God can not die as long as a redeemed soul remains to testify to His saving power.

"Magdalene, out of whom had been cast the seven devils, came, within her the evidence of redeeming grace. How humbly she came. When she stopped before the door of that tomb she found the stone rolled away, and the tomb occupied by angels. They said to her, 'He is not here. He is risen. Why seek ye the living among the dead?' Christianity worships at no tomb, for her Christ broke open the doors of death and rides victorious over death and the grave. Shall we then look for our dead in the cemeteries of earth?"

IMMORTALITY HELD PART OF ALL FAITHS

Hamline Pastor Describes Presence of Belief in After Life in All Ages.

"One can not study the history of religions without being impressed with the fact that belief in the survival of man after death seems to be almost universal," declared the Rev. H. W. Burgan, pastor of the Hamline Methodist Church, preaching yesterday morning.

The Rev. Mr. Burgan was speaking on the subject, "Easter Assurance." His text was taken from the second verse of the fourteenth chapter of John. He said in part:

"The paleolithic cave dwellers of the quarternary period in Belgium and France were contemporary with the mammoth, the cave lion and the cave bear. Their skulls show that they were nearer the apes than any existing race of men, yet their burial customs reveal their belief in a life beyond death.

"The same is true of the neolithic man. In the more highly organized religions, later, we find immortality a conspicuous factor in belief.

Central Christian Belief.

"A study of the religions of Egypt, Babylonia, Assyria, Persia, Greece and India prove this universal acceptance of the survival of the soul. This belief appears also in the development of the religion of the Hebrew people.

"In Christianity the belief is central, Jesus confirming it by both His teachings and His resurrection. To men of all ages who believed in eternal life, Jesus says, 'If it were not so I would have told you.'

"The universality of this belief grows out of the demands of the nature of man. As a rational being he seems to demand a life beyond this. It is almost impossible to form any adequate philosophy of life, and human history, without viewing all of it in the light of man's immortality. Our social nature requires it. It is not so much life we crave as it is the restoration of the relationships once we enjoyed and were broken by death.

Moral Natures Crave It.

"Our moral natures need it, for the justice of God in his dealings with mankind can not be vindicated except we posit yonder life which continues this one. Justice is not in evidence here, as we behold the fate of individuals, and there needs to be a continuation of this life for justice to have its perfect work.

"Easter is Christianity's assurance to mankind that the yearnings of the heart will be satisfied, and that man's belief in immortality is based upon truth. No religious leader has ever spoken in such notes of certainty concerning the things after death as has Jesus. To his wonderful words were added His own triumph over the grave on the world's first Easter Day.

"Easter, too, completes the picture of man's immortal dreams. All religions do accept immortality as cardinal in their doctrines, but how dismal are their notions of the other world. Jesus makes it the life more abundant. Jesus speaks of it in terms of 'My Father's house.'

"My father's house is associated in our thinking with the idea of home My father's house was ever my home. Jesus declares to a weary world, tired in the midst of the journey of life, that when it all is over there is satisfying life at home, in the eternal home of the soul."

The Hamline Church was attractively decorated for the Easter season with more than 150 lilies given by members of the congregation in honor of loved ones.

Last night a cantata, "Christ the Victor," was presented at the church.

NOTABLES ATTEND CELEBRATION HELD BY CAPITAL GREEKS

Anniversary of Independence and Bicentennial Are Observed.

KING AND SIMOPOULOS SPEAK AT SCHOOL FETE

Washington Is Described as Inspiration; Several Hundred Present.

Several hundred of the Greek population of Washington gathered in the auditorium of Central High School yesterday afternoon for a combined celebration of the George Washington Bicentennial and the anniversary of Greek independence.

The exercises were opened with a concert from the Boys Independent Band, which was followed by the assembly of colors by the Order of Ahepa. The significance of the two celebrations was described by the Rev. John Papanicoleou.

Talks by Notables.

Addresses were then made by Charalambos Simopoulos, Minister of Greece, Achilles Catsonis, supreme secretary of the Order of Ahepa, and by Senator William H. King, of Utah. Following the addresses a program of songs, tableaux and poems was presented by students of St. Sophia School.

Greece won her war of independence in the years 1821-29 and became a kingdom under the guarantee of Great Britain, France and Russia. The speakers yesterday called attention to the fact that Greece, in fighting for independence, was, no doubt, influenced and inspired by the success of the United States, under the leadership of George Washington in the previous century in gaining independence from England.

Washington Praised.

The day was described as one for which Greeks may thrice be thankful—Easter, which opened the gates to Christianity, Greek Independence Day, which marked freedom for Greece and the observance of the Washington Bicentennial, which was pointed to as an inspiration for all Greek-Americans.

Greely, at 88, Talks Over Arctic Trip With Brainard

Explorer Is Visited by Crony on Birthday Anniversary.

Gazing into a dancing fire on his study hearth that perchance reflected memories of Arctic rigors of 48 years ago, Maj. Gen. Adolphus W. Greely yesterday passed in reminiscent mood his eighty-eighth birthday anniversary.

Sitting with Gen. Greely in the Georgetown home of the old explorer was Brig. Gen. Davis L. Brainard. The two are the sole suurvivors of the hardy seven that were living when a rescue party finally reached Cape Sabine in 1884 and saved them from the wintry death that claimed 18 of the original 25 that had started for the North Pole.

Messages of congratulation frequently interrupted the two old explorers as they sat by the fireside. Gen. Greely observed with regard to the missivse:

"It's pleasant to know you are not forgotten after all these years."

He added as a birthday wish that "I hope I will never live to see a birthday when my faculties for enjoying these remembrances are impaired."

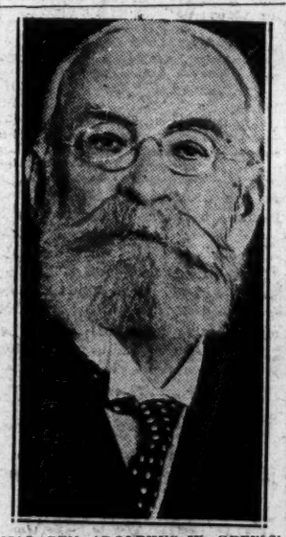
"I don't look back on yesterdays much," said Gen. Greely, though admitting with a chuckle that he and Brainard had talked of their adventure in the Far North.

"It's today that counts and tomorrow never comes," Gen. Greely told interviewers in explaining his philosophy of life.

In 1881 Gen. Greely—then a first lieutenant—led his band of 25 in a projected trek to the North Pole. They bettered the long-time record of Great Britain, approaching within 400 miles of their objective.

The Proteus, the ship that was to bring the party back to civilization, was crushed in the ice en route. Two subsequent relief expeditions failed to reach the party at the rendezvous—Cape Sabine.

For ten months—ten months of near-starvation and misery—the hardy band camped on the ice, dwindling steadily. On June 23, 1884, when provisions had been exhausted for two days, a relief ship hove into view, even as Greely, Brainard and their five remaining companions talked of their imminent death.



MAJ. GEN. ADOLPHUS W. GREELY.

That was 48 years ago and yesterday the two cronies culled over their memories, though there were no signs of the "good old days." The loss of his comrades in the North still forms a regretful retrospect for Gen. Greely and he still looks upon the tragedy as a hideous dream."

A bit infirm, Gen. Greely is quite clear of mind and continues to work away at the collection of books he has written on his Arctic and other experiences. Of his health, he remarked yesterday:

"I feel splendid. Don't even know I have a stomach. I don't walk well, though." The last remark he made as an apology for not accompanying visitors to the door as they made their adieus.

Gen. Greely has made his home in Georgetown, at 3131 O street, for many years and in the past has been a familiar figure strolling about the bowered thoroughfares of the historic old section during sunny days.

Man Uses Gasoline in Fire; His 2 Children Are Burned

Painful second-degree burns were suffered by the two small children of Tony Catina, 1219 G street northeast, yesterday morning when he poured gasoline on his kitchen fire.

The children were rushed to Casualty Hospital in a passing machine. Mary Catina, 5, was treated for burns about her legs, while Tony, 2 was treated for burns on his legs, feet and wrists.

Casualty Hospital physicians said they advised Catina to take the boy to Children's Hospital for further treatment, but last night the child had not been treated there.

Boy, 16, Is Arrested After Fire Alarm Given 'For Fun'

Sounding a false fire alarm "just for fun" last night cost a 16-year-old youth his freedom when police of the Seventh Precinct arrested him less than fifteen minutes after he was alleged to have pulled a fire box at Thirty-first and O streets northwest.

The youth, Clifton Smith, colored, of 820 Twenty-fourth street northwest, was charged with sounding a false alarm. Police said he was arrested on a description furnished by residents of the community who saw him loitering near the box. The boy was said to have admitted the crime after questioning by police.
